War-Mongering Accusation Against President Rouses Secretary

By the United Press

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes last night charged that Wendell L. Willkie, in accepting the Republican nomination, indulged in "cheap bravado" and "unpatriotic demagoguery" by criticizing President Roosevelt's foreign policies and inviting him to debate campaign issues on a common platform.

Selected by the Administration to reply to Willkie's speech, Ickes said that the G. O. P. nominee's declaration that the President was "deliberately inciting us to war" was "contemptible." He described Willkie as "the rich man's Roosevelt; Willkie, the simple, barefoot Wall Street lawyer."

Flynn Goes on the Air

In New York, meantime, Edward J. Flynn, new chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said the main issue of the Presidential campaign will be whether "we shall continue the policies that have made this country of ours the envy of all the rest of the world, or whether we are to revert to the type of government which resulted in huge fortunes for a few and dire poverty for the many."

Flynn spoke over a C. B. S. network while Ickes' reply went out over an N. B. C. hookup. Both noted that Willkie had embraced a major part of the New Deal's program of social legislation.

Both also forecast a Democratic triumph in November. Flynn said there was no disunity in Democratic ranks, and insisted that those party members who have "taken a walk" to the Willkie camp control no votes but their own. These strollers, he said, are "old-line Liberty Leaguers,

Danaher Asks Probe of Ickes' Stamp Buying

By the Associated Press

Asserting that Secretary of the Interior Ickes stood to make a "profit" of $187,417.50 on 150 imperforate stamps purchased for $32.50, Senator Danaher (Republican), Connecticut, yesterday demanded a Senate investigation to determine whether "certain persons by virue of official position or otherwise" had received special privileges in acquiring postage stamps.

Danaher introduced a resolution calling for an inquiry by the Postoffice Committee to learn whether there had been any violation of law in the distribution of stamps sold for collectors' purchases.

The Connecticut Senator read to the Senate what he said was a copy of a letter from Ickes to Harry W. Chase, chancellor of New York University, in which Ickes offered imperforate, gummed stamps of a series issued in commemoration of the National Park Service, with the notation that he originally had obtained 200 of this group. The stamps were offered to Chase for sale at a charity auction.

Danaher said similar stamps, which were not gummed, were placed on public sale. But he said Ickes letter indicated that the stamps held by the Secretary of the Interior were valuable because

Boy, 14, Keeps 30-Hour Vigil Over Brother Hurt in Woods

Two sandy-haired youths, 14 and 15, returned to their Washington home last night with the tale of a 30-hour vigil kept by the younger beside his injured brother in a shack on the banks of the Potomac, 2 miles above Langley, Va.

Richard McLaughlin, 15-year-old pupil at Powell Junior High School, injured his leg Sunday while hiking in the woods with his brother Robert.

With four youthful companions, they made their way to a cabin and remained overnight through the storm while their frantic parents scoured the banks of the river above Chain Bridge in a futile search for them.

Yesterday morning, police, notified by the boys' father, Charles McLaughlin, a Census Bureau employe, began a search.

McLaughlin, who returned home last week after seven months in Georgetown Hospital recovering from a battering administered by thugs in January, hunted his sons in the woods.

The search ended last night when Richard, aided by his brother, limped into his home, at 2509 Seventeenth street northwest, and greeted his parents, who had just asked police to drag the river, fearing that the boys had drowned while swimming.

'Astonished' By Ickes Reply, Says Willkie

Accuses Secretary Of Stating 'Plain and Simple Falsehoods'

By the Associated Press

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 19.—Wendell L. Willkie said tonight that Secretary of the Interior Ickes had stated "plain and simple falsehoods" in a radio address tonight, and that he was "astonished that the President of the United States would authorize such a speech.

The Republican Presidential nominee sent the following telegram to Chairman Joseph Martin, of the Republican National Committee:

"Please waste no money in buying radio time to answer Ickes. It is unworthy of answer. Unable to make any reply to the acceptance speech, the New Dealers are evading issue by resort to false personal innuendoes.

"I am not surprised that Ickes would stoop to such levels, but I am astonished that the President of the United States would authorize such a speech.

"The statement of Mr. Ickes that I am or ever was a member of Tammany Hall and his implication that I ever approved of the activities of Samuel Insull, or that I have any business connections of any kind today are plain and simple falsehoods.

"As a matter of fact, I specifically opposed Insull and voted for Mayor

Senate Action Bars Financial Loss to Draftees

Amendment Would Protect Conscripts From Foreclosures

By John G. Norris.
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday voted to give any men drafted for compulsory military service special protection against seizures, foreclosure or loss resulting from their change from well-paid civilian jobs to a soldier's $30 a month.

By voice vote, the Senate made sections of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act of 1917 applicable to men conscripted for military service under the pending Burke-Wadsworth bill. In effect, the action would place a moratorium upon the debts of draftees during their service, except as the courts might order other equitable action.

Adoption of the amendment, offered by Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, was regarded more in the light of a Congressional promise to care for the civil rights of men drawn for military service than a final settlement of the matter, as the 1917 act is out of date in many respects. Separate legislation on the subject, however, is now being drafted by a House committee.

Meanwhile, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved a $5,023,169,277 appropriations bill provid-

Wickard, a Dirt Farmer, Elevated to Wallace's Post

Undersecretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, an Indiana dirt farmer, yesterday was nominated to succeed Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in what may be the start of a White House policy of promotion to the Cabinet from the ranks.

At the same time President Roosevelt accepted the resignation of Wallace, his third-term running mate, to take effect September 5, when Wallace expects to start active campaigning.

Paul H. Appleby, who has been chief assistant to Wallace since 1933, was named by the President to succeed Wickard as Undersecretary.

Wickard, who was in Biloxi, Miss., when word reached him of the promotion, immediately declared that, if confirmed, he would carry forward the farm policies set in motion and carried out since 1933 by Wallace. Wickard has been active in the New Deal farm program since its beginning.

"I hope that it will be possible," the new appointee said, "for all agricultural groups to help support these policies and to see that they become recognized as an essential part of our defense program."

"There never was a time when there was so great a need for solidarity and unity of purpose among our economic groups as at present."

The end of Wallace's eight-year service in the Agriculture post was revealed in an exchange of letters between him and President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y.

In his letter of resignation, Wal-

U.S. Warships May Patrol Canada

Use of Destroyers Seen Involved In Pact; Roosevelt To Name Board

By Bertram D. Hulen.
Copyright by New York Times

The possibility of American destroyers patrolling Canadian waters was seen here yesterday by usually well-informed diplomats as a result of the agreement for hemispherical defense reached by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King. Whether this might extend to convoying operations seemed less definite.

In event the American vessels were used, it was pointed out, British destroyers and other naval vessels could be released for operations in home waters. It was contended that this would be the equivalent of sending Britain destroyers she so much needs while avoiding legal obstacles that worry the State Department about an outright sale or transfer of American destroyers to Britain.

To Be U. S. Contribution

This arrangement, if made, it was said, would not be the only one under the broad agreement reached between Canada and the United States, but it was predicted that the use, in some form, of American destroyers, would be the American contribution. On the other side, Canada, it was assumed, would consent to the use by the United States of air and naval bases in her territory.

All this would be in furtherance of hemispherical defense. At the same time it would be of assistance to Britain, and especially so, if because of the fortunes of war she transfers the seat of government to Canada.

[An International News Service dispatch from Ottawa last night said that the defense alliance is expected to result in the direct transfer of from four to six American over-age destroyers to Canada in return for naval and air bases. This was indicated, the dispatch

Bullitt Called 'War-Monger' In Congress

In fiery floor debates Congressional isolationists yesterday angrily denounced Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt as a "war-monger" for his warning in Philadelphia Sunday night that war was coming to the United States.

Bullitt, declaring that this country was in danger of invasion by Germany, backed conscription and urged that American destroyers be sold to Britain.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, opened the attack, charging the Ambassador's statements were "very little short of treason." He was followed by other opponents of Administration foreign policy, who caustically condemned the speech as "war-mongering" and contended it must have been given advance approval by the White House.

They argued that this was shown by the fact it was released through the State Department here.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, declaring he wouldn't "follow any Administration that is leading us into war," told the Senate United States into war on the side that "no man in the United States has done more to try to get the of France" than Bullitt.

"A man who advocates going to war," the Montanan shouted, "is worse than a Fifth Columnist. To me he is a traitor to his Government."

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, joining the debate, said that "if Bullitt should succeed in getting us into war, he will find a safe place for himself to hid out during the progress of the war."

"After the last war broke out, after shouting for war at the top

Willkie Indorsed By Knox's Paper

The Chicago Daily News editorially indorsed Wendell L. Willkie for President yesterday, and Secretary of the Navy Knox, its publisher, issued a statement here saying that he was no longer directing its policy and would not participate in the campaign.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer yesterday broke a century-old tradition of refraining "from supporting for President any other than Democratic candidates" and announced it favors Willkie.

British Open Fierce Offensive In Air as German Attacks Halt; Fight Way Out of Somaliland

English Withdraw From African Port By Boat, Destroying Abandoned Arms

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 19.—The British Middle East headquarters announced tonight that British troops had withdrawn from Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, under heavy Italian attack by tank, artillery and aircraft.

As at Dunkerque, when they were forced to flee from Flanders, the British said they stuck to the fight as long as possible to make the Italians pay the highest price for their victory.

Then they made a successful withdrawal by ship, removing much of their material with them and destroying what was left behind.

[Italians claimed a counterpart of the German victory on the beaches of Dunkerque, a rout from burning Somaliland of British troops taking to their boats under bombing and machine gunning by Italian airmen.

[Authoritative Fascists said 7,000 British troops at Berbera are trapped and seeking only to get away.]

Reason Given for Withdrawal

The Italian victory ended the first decisive phase of the war in Africa, where Italy is trying to rout the British from control of the Suez Canal and sever British Empire communications.

British airmen rained bombs on troop movements and supply lines stretching from Italian Somaliland clear to the coast through the British protectorate on the Gulf of Aden, to cover the retreat.

British naval units embarked native British troops and materiel, destroying what stores they were unable to move.

Fascist troops behind their advancing tanks and artillery barrage entered the capital tonight and Italian aircraft attacked the troop-loaded British ships in the Gulf of Aden.

Withdrawal was decided on, the British announcement said, as an alternative to reinforcing the Somaliland garrison with reserves who were needed elsewhere.

"All guns except two lost in the early stages of the action have been embarked," it said. "A great part of the materiel stores has also been evacuated and the remainder destroyed. Our wounded have been safely brought away."

Capture of Berbera came after an Italian drive of 300 miles along the

R.A.F Pilot Rams Bomber, Killing 5 Nazis and Self

London, Aug. 19 (AP).—A 26-year-old R. A. F. sergeant who had just gained his wings rammed his unarmed training plane into a Heinkel bomber last night during Nazi air raids, killing himself and five German airmen.

The British pilot was about to land his comparatively slow-moving plane when the German bomber machine gunned him.

Spectators watched the two planes maneuver in a moonlit sky, then collide and crash interlocked.

Whether the ramming was intentional, "we will never know," the air ministry said.

German Embassy Warns U. S. Relief Ship Is in Grave Peril

COURSES OPEN TO THE S. S. AMERICAN LEGION—The shaded area is the "extremely dangerous" blockade zone

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, first secretary of the German Embassy, summoned newspapermen yesterday to issue a warning that the Army transport American Legion was in "grave danger" from Nazi mines as she heads homeward through the total blockade zone north of the British Isles.

The vessel sailed Friday from Petsamo, Finland, bearing 897 refugees, including Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, of this city, United States Minister to Norway; Mrs. Frederick Sterling, wife of the United States Minister to Sweden, and Crown Princess Martha, of Norway, and her three children, who are coming to this country at the invitation of President Roosevelt.

Dr. Tannenberg, in one of the few press conferences held at the German Embassy since the outbreak of the war, made his statement shortly before 4 p. m. He said he thought the American Legion was then already in the mine-infested area and would continue to be "for about 12 hours."

In precise English, with a bare trace of accent, Dr. Tannenberg said that the American Legion had taken a route which the German foreign office had told the American Embassy in Berlin was "extremely dangerous." This warning, he said, was given on August 14, two days before the refugee ship sailed.

The day after the sailing, on Saturday, Germany proclaimed her total blockade of Britain. Dr. Tannenberg said it would be "safely assumed" that, after the blockade was announced, German planes planted mines in the waters north of the British Isles.

It is through these waters that the American Legion is now sailing.

"The ship," said Dr. Tannenberg, "is in very grave danger, considering our warning that these waters are innfested by mines. Please, ladies

After Almazan, Mexico Halts U. S. Freighter

By Jack O'Brine
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Mexico City, Aug. 19.—Armed forces of the Mexican navy halted and boarded an American merchant vessel off Mexico's west coast today in a reported attempt to apprehend Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, opposition presidential candidate, last reported "resting" in Panama on the second leg of a "vacation" which he started ten days after the July 7 election.

The halting of the vessel the S. S. Herman Frasch, coincided with extraordinary vigilance invoked in the last 24 hours by the Mexican army and navy—apparently to forestall the possibility of a seditious move by the opposition.

While the navy department at first described the incident as "unbelievable" and denied that any American vessel had been stopped or boarded, it was later confirmed that the Mexican gunboat G-22, commanded by Lieut. Luis Cortes Acosta, had halted the Frasch at a point some 70 miles northwest of Acapulco, off the coast of Guerrero state, regarded as a stronghold of Almazan.

Naval officials said the halting of the freighter was in accordance with coastwise patrol work coincident with hemispheric precautions and anti-fifth column activities of the Mexican government, but at the same time admitted that naval commanders had orders to keep a sharp lookout for Gen. Almazan and other antigovernment leaders.

The officials placed stress upon their information that the search of the Frasch had taken place within Mexico's territorial waters and insisted that the "15 minute delay" of the American ship was "in the

Navy Mighty but Army Weak In Hawaii, Inspection Shows

By W. W. Chaplin
International News Service Staff Writer

(This is the first of a series of articles on America's Pacific defenses.)

Honolulu, Aug. 19.—Hawaii today is the greatest maritime fortress in history, but solely because the U. S. fleet is in the vicinity.

At the moment, the fleet is steaming slowly out of the harbor for maneuvers and when it finally moves farther away from this base it will leave behind it nothing but a skeleton defense for the American mainland.

But the fleet is still sufficiently near at hand to make the Hawaiian Islands the spearhead of the main American defense line in the Pacific — the Alaska-Hawaii-Panama triangle which is American insurance policy against aggression from the Orient.

Today, before the fleet's departure, I made a survey of the naval defense of these islands, and while it is not complete it gives a reasonable idea of the power the Navy has in this increasingly strategical section of the world.

Virtually all of the U. S. fleet was concentrated here. Navy officers wouldn't tell how many ships were here, how many battle wagons, how many cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers, submarines and other units of the fighting fleet.

But by special dispensation I rode

3 Waves of Planes Blast Boulogne; Air-Raid Alarms Sound in Berlin

R. A. F. Attacks

By the Associated Press

London (Tuesday), Aug. 20.—Britain flung the full force of air offensive against Germany and the Nazi-held French coast last night and today in the fiercest bombings of three nights of successive raids.

While the Royal Air Force launched squadron after squadron across the explosion-lighted English Channel, the drove of scattered Nazi planes was heard over almost every quarter of this embattled island, but no concentrated attacks were reported.

[Air raid sirens kept more than 4,000,000 Berlin residents under cover for an hour and 40 minutes shortly after midnight, and one by one every other German radio station went off the air, indicating widespread British bombing attacks across the Rhineland.

[There was no report of airplanes over the German capital but some citizens there said they heard distant antiaircraft artillery firing west of the city. Last Wednesday night, Germans said, British raiders were turned back at Potsdam, 20 miles from Berlin.]

Huge Fires Seen

Bomb bursts, huge fires, and the flash of antiaircraft explosions seen clearly in southeastern England showed the intensity of the Royal Air Force's third successive overnight pounding of the nearby coast of France.

Three waves of British planes smashed at Boulogne, big Nazi base and center of a wide coastal stretch over which the British fliers ranged.

Observers said the new blows were the hardest the British have yet struck along the coast.

German Attack Lets Up

Germany's storm of bombs abated mysteriously yesterday, but Britain, aware that life or death of her empire may be decided in the skies in one fateful week, took new precautions in the effort to make herself impregnable.

With even the Luftwaffe lull indicating that a Nazi attempt to deliver a direct, crushing blow may be near, the whole island was decreed a defense zone and British airmen struck wholesale at the sources of Nazi might.

The Royal Air Force bombers lashing at Boulogne, put on a regular Fourth of July fireworks display for cheering watchers on the English shore.

There were repeated brilliant flashes on the opposite side of the English Channel, about 22 miles distant. They obviously were made

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Nantucket, Aug. 20.

NANTUCKET GOES FOR WILLKIE

We heard there was a Roosevelt man on Nantucket Island, that stronghold of conservation. . . . So we set out to investigate. . . . On the boat from Woods Hole we saw plenty of Willkie buttons. . . . Worried businessmen hurrying to join their wives for the week-end: they want Willkie.

Harlan Miller

On the dock we heard a strong Boston accent accuse: "So you're a Willkie man, huh?" . . . The Willkie man stood his ground. . . . Many automobiles meeting men at the pier have Willkie windshield stickers, big ones, obstructing vision on sharp and narrow turns.

* * * *

On Nantucket's rough stone cobbled Main street, one of the fancier shops has a Willkie sticker on the door, and distributes Willkie buttons assiduously to customers . . . Across the street a man with a megaphone importunes men in sport coats and women in pastel tweeds to help Nantucket send an ambulance to Britain.

"Before it is too late!"

* * * *

The only Roosevelt button I saw in Nantucket was on the lapel of Congressman Joe Casey, who spent less than a day here and chartered a plane to fly his wife home. . . . Around the White Elephant Hotel or the Nantucket Yacht Club landing or glaring white tennis courts a Roosevelt button would create a furore.

"—for Willkie and an ambulance"

At the solitary, wooden movie house with a big front-porch, a newsreel shot showed Roosevelt and Secretary Knox inspecting a Navy Yard. . . . There was the most spirited burst of applause and cheers I've heard for a Roosevelt newsreel in months.

* * * *

Instantly the applause was followed by a boom of boos with a sibilant accompaniment of hisses. These incited the admirers of Roosevelt to redouble their applause—handclaps, cheers and whistling. But the boos continued.

* * * *

I examined this phenomenon closely. It was a Sunday evening, and it developed that the theater was jammed with chauffeurs, gardeners, house servants and nursemaids, all enjoying an evening off.

* * * *

Also in the theater were their bosses, a scattering of townspeople, and ordinary run-of-the-mine vacationists, with a good sulting of Harvard and other college boys who work at the hotels.

* * * *

So it was the servants, to a considerable extent, matching their applause for Roosevelt against their employers' boos—with the townspeople and the rest probably not quite so singleminded, but contributing some applause, a few boos and a sprinkling of hisses. Verdict: Predominantly Willkie on the front porches.

"—Roosevelt man in flight"

There are so many flags flying in Nantucket today that I inquired whether it was a special local holiday. No; it's merely a local custom, adopted by many townsfolk and summer cottagers, to hoist the Stars and Stripes every morning and pull it down at sunset.

* * * *

From a boat off-shore across the blue water you can see dozens of flags, holiday or no holiday. It's a custom that might well be adopted by many another community which hasn't got its roots so deep in American history.

* * * *

Nantucket is definitely pro-British. You can scarcely go into a shop without finding signs, canisters for your spare change, reminders of the ambulance Nantucket wants to send to England "before it is too late."

* * * *

This island wants England to win, and most of the talk you hear is in favor of turning over the 50 destroyers before it is too late to defend Britain.

But one linen merchant on Center street feels the world situation is a little out of hand:

"Due to unsettled conditions in Europe beyond our control," says a sign in his window, "we are sacrificing our entire stock."

* * * *

At sundown I saw a canoeist out in the harbor paddling briskly toward the mainland. Maybe it was that lone Roosevelt man I had heard about . . . Incidentally, all the way north from Baltimore there was scarcely an hour when our radio didn't pick up a foreign language broadcast from one of the big cities—French, German, Spanish, Italian, Polish and others. This is still a melting pot. Even in old Nantucket.

Nazi Agent Fined $2,000 in Panama

Balboa, Canal Zone, Aug. 19 (AP).—Dr. Emil Wolff, 52, a German chemist, was fined $2,000 and given a suspended sentence of three months in the penitentiary today on a plea of guilty to acting as a foreign agent without registering as such, as required by law.

Dr. Wolff, first arrested on a narcotics charge July 2 when removed from a Japanese ship, admitted he had sailed from San Francisco with a trunk containing "diplomatic documents" from the German consul in San Francisco to the consul in Valparaiso, Chile.

Complete Text of Secretary Ickes' Reply to Willkie Acceptance Speech

Criticism, Challenge To Debate 'Cheap Bravado,' He Says

By the Associated Press

The text of address of Secretary of the Interior Ickes follows:

On Saturday last, Mr. Willkie gave to the American people what he called his personal keynote.

It was reminiscent of Alfred M. Landon four years ago. As I listened carefully, I came to understand why he had not lived up to his advance buildup. A man cannot make an effective assault upon the New Deal when he accepts the New Deal in principle. He cannot make political capital out of the foreign policy of the Administration when he agrees with that policy. It has aptly been said that he agreed with Mr. Roosevelt's entire program of social reform and that it was leading to disaster.

However, on several important points, Mr. Willkie arose above partisanship and, for this, as an American citizen, I thank him.

I thank him for his denunciation of intolerance at home and abroad. And I hope that he will have the courage to tell the Coughlinites, the Bundists and other Fascists who are rallying to his support that he does not wish their favors.

"I Thank Him"

I thank him for saying plainly that our interests and our way of life would be adversely affected by the loss of the British fleet, and for standing squarely with the President for aiding with our material resources those peoples who are resisting Hitler's aggression.

I thank him for recognizing the incompatibility of the Nazi way of life and our own. I thank him for standing with the President for some form of selective service.

However, I deeply deplore the fact that Mr. Willkie felt compelled to toss a sop to the bitter anti-Roosevelt isolationists by his ill-considered and demagogic attacks upon the President's conduct of our foreign affairs as "deliberately inciting us to war," and as "unscrupulously" misleading other nations. Those were contemptible remarks for you to make, Mr. Willkie, with reference to the President of the United States.

Let Mr. Willkie remember that Franklin D. Roosevelt has become the world's symbol for fearless support of democratic principles, the emblem of the world's faith in freedom, the substance of the world's hope that right will prove stronger than might.

By what warrant does Mr. Willkie presume to accuse the President of the United States of issuing inflammatory statements and indulging in manufactured panics?

By what grasshopper leap of the imagination does this candidate conclude that the President has not taken the country into his confidence on foreign policy?

Have the dangers against which President Roosevelt repeatedly warned failed to materialize? Is the Hitler attack on England a manufactured panic? Does not Mr. Willkie remember that, time and again, the President sought to arouse the American people to the danger in the European situation, only to have his request for defense appropriations attacked again and again as excessive and unnecessary; only to have his warnings met again and again with jibes from Mr. Willkie's new-found friends, and to be accused, as Mr. Willkie shabbily accused him on Saturday, of inventing war scares for selfish political purposes?

This sort of demagoguery cuts to the heart of Mr. Willkie's assumptions of statesmanship. Barely a year ago, Mr. Willkie himself was denying that the Administration's plans for mobilizing power resources in the interest of defense were in any way justified, and he consistently refused to acknowledge the paramount importance to the national defense of the TVA, although this was later singled out as indispensable by the defense commission.

Mr. Willkie criticizes the Blum government in France and holds it responsible for the defeat of France. Has he never heard of Bonnet, Flandin, Laval, and other highly placed pro-Nazi personages in France? Has he no criticism of England's pro-Munich government, with its policy of appeasement?

Sees Social Revolution

Has Mr. Willkie no realization of the fact that America faces today, not only a World War, but a world-wide social revolution? Does he not know that the New Deal in America has made this country the only one on the face of the globe where it appears probable that the vast agglomerations of economic power and special privilege can be modified without resort to violence? Does not the Republican candidate know that our last line of defense, which is right here in America, is being thoroughly organized and is strongly held—thanks to the New Deal reforms? Has he not the candor and the courage to admit that Roosevelt in America, like Churchill in England, warned the people while the Nation slept?

Today, Mr. Willkie accepts the New Deal reforms in principle. He is for curbing monopoly; he favors collective bargaining for labor; he stands by the wages and hours act; the Public Utility Holding Company Act; the Securities and Exchange Act; the social security measures; farm relief; the rural electrification program; and the work-relief methods by which the New Deal has remembered the forgotten man.

We would like to take him at his word. But first we must ask him, since he proclaims that he is a liberal, where was he when the battle for these measures was being fought by us of the New Deal? Where was he when his newly possessed party was whittling down the WPA funds and hamstringing the Relief Administration? Where was he when we were struggling for a decent farm bill; when we were trying to force a reactionary Rules Committee in Congress to act on the wages and hour bill? Where was Wendell Willkie when the Republicans were fighting tooth and nail against all of these measures which he now says that he supports.

All through this period he was doing his very able best to prevent the most dynamic and hopeful project of the whole New Deal—the Tennessee Valley Authority—from functioning.

On Saturday, Mr. Willkie admitted that, by 1929, the concentration of economic power had gone further than it should ever go in a democracy. Yet in 1935 he testified before the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the United States Senate as follows:

"If you think these corporations are large enough as they are, stop the matter where it is, but don't dismember them, and deal with all in that way, no matter what the degree of size."

It was in 1929 that Mr. Willkie went to New York to give his services exclusively to a giant utility holding company which was just being formed by Wall Street promoters to control local operating systems in 11 different States. When President Roosevelt proposed that we should emancipate the regional operating systems from the control of such giant holding companies, Mr. Willkie was the first to protest. And, despite the enactment of the Holding Company Act more than four years ago, the billion-dollar Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, under Mr. Willkie's management, still clings tenaciously to its control over its regional operating properties.

Whatever last-minute conversion on the subject of public power Mr. Willkie may later made as a private utility magnate confess to, the record that he has stands in all its unashamed opposition to the public interest. Part of this record may be found in his address before the Economic Club of New York on January 21, 1935.

Here is what he said:

"I do not like to make personal references (sic!) but I want to say to you that no duty has ever come to me in my life, even that in the service of my country, which has so appealed to my sense of social obligation, patriotism, and love of mankind as this, my obligation to say and do what I can for the preservation of public utilities, privately owned."

Thus spoke Willkie, the rich man's Roosevelt; Willkie, the simple, barefoot Wall Street lawyer.

If Mr. Willkie spoke honestly on that occasion, and one of his boasts is his frankness, is he by any chance running for President of the United States in order to "do what I (he) can for the preservation of public utilities, privately owned?"

Mr. Willkie loves to boast that he learned his liberalism at the feet of the elder La Follette. Here is what La Follette's Progressive, a publication which continues to carry on the fight of the great Wisconsin liberal, has said of him:

"There is one thing about it. If Willkie should . . . be elected, the country would then have a President who could teach the American farmers how to water the stock and shear the sheep."

In his speech of acceptance, Mr. Willkie challenged the President of the United States to a series of joint debates.

One cannot challenge the President of the United States to go about the country barnstorming, after the pre-radio fashion of the past century, without laying himself open to the charge that he is indulging in cheap bravado. The gravity of Mr. Willkie's offense consisted of the fact that he was reflecting upon the dignity and striking at the prestige of an office which, as a candidate for the Presidency, it ought to be his zealous duty to uphold and defend. The President cannot adjourn the Battle of Britain in order to ride the circuit with Mr. Willkie. The Presidency is not a job for a mountebank.

At that Mr. Roosevelt has been effectively debating the Wendell Willkies of this country for years and will continue to do so.

If Mr. Willkie is so eager for a debate in order to hold his audience, I suggest that he challenge his running mate, Senator McNary, with whom he is at greater variance on domestic and foreign issues than his speech of acceptance shows him to be with the President.

"Record . . . an Open Book"

The Roosevelt record of the last seven years is an open book. The people know what President Roosevelt has done, and they know what he will do.

For a time, Mr. Willkie thought and spoke like a lion; then the weasel, which has replaced the elephant as the Republican symbol, asserted itself. Like any other professional politician, he twisted about awkward issues by the use of glittering generalities. He talked about "wider horizons," "a new companionship in industrial society," "unlimited production," "full production and reemployment by private enterprise," "hardship, sacrifice and suffering." Here he seems to have gotten his bottles mixed. Up to this point he had been talking about regaining prosperity, increasing relief and reducing spending.

Mr. Willkie talked like the Republican platform until it seemed to those who heard him that the Republican Party had better change its tune from "God Bless America" to "Pop Goes the Weasel!"

When the meandering platform of the Republican Party was promulgated, we were assured that Mr. Willkie would clarify it. If that gentleman's speech in Elwood means anything, it means that it is now necessary for some one to clarify Mr. Willkie.

The only clarification so far offered is the personality and record of Mr. Willkie himself. He talked about free enterprise and finding jobs for everyone. Yet his whole history negatives any interest in free opportunity. The country knows him as a holding company executive. The opportunity that he has given to free enterprise has consisted in cutting the throats of small independent power companies. This has meant less economic opportunity for the average man and a greater concentration of economic power in Wall Street.

The American people want to know specifically, with chapter and verse cited, how the minority party's candidate proposes to do more to preserve the blessings of American liberty in the modern world than our President is doing. They want to know whether Mr. Willkie's "new life" means the "New Deal" for the common people or a "new life" for the old guard. No glittering generalities about the candidate's belief in collective bargaining will quiet labor's fears so long as the labor baiting Weirs and Girdlers remain unrebuked. No fine words about the candidate's foreign policy will quiet fears as to what will happen if, in the event of Republican victory, Hiram Johnson becomes chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs and Hamilton Fish chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Relations.

The American people are worried about the stage settings which are constantly being arranged for the minority candidate. And the American people have a right to ask what it is all about.

I would like to explain to you why Mr. Willkie's acceptance speech was staged at or near the town of Elwood, Ind. Customarily, a candidate invites the people to his home. After all, one cannot give a front-porch speech from the tenth floor of 1010 Fifth avenue, New York City, where Mr. Willkie actually lives. It is many years since Willkie lived at Elwood, Ind., and most people had forgotten that he ever lived there. It is legitimate to infer that his going to Elwood was for protective coloration. He wanted to dissociate himself in the public mind from his banking and utility connections.

The people are being encouraged to forget Willkie, the Wall Street lawyer, the utility executive, the director of one of the principal banks affiliated with Morgan & Co. This explains the effort to put him across as the barefoot farmer's boy.

Mr. Willkie has had much to say in condemnation of political machines, especially those in the cities. I wish that he had explained just when he developed his moral fervor on this subject. At the Philadelphia convention he might have repudiated the votes of those Republican machine delegates from the Southern States who, every four years, from time immemorial, have been bought and sold on the auction block. This particular Republican machine constitutes the greatest scandal in American politics.

No one ever heard Mr. Willkie lift his voice against any political machine until after he had been nominated for President. It was the present Federal Administration that sent Boss Pendergast, of Kansas City, Mo., to the penitentiary. It was New Dealer Mayor LaGuardia who cleaned up New York City, despite Tammany Hall, of which Mr. Willkie is a member. It was the Federal Administration which sent to the penitentiary the notorious Moe Annenberg, one of the most corrupting influences in American political life. However, Annenberg was not put behind the bars until he had circulated among the Republican delegates at Philadelphia, urging them to greater endeavors against the New Deal. And his paper, the Philadelphia Inquirer, is today vigorously supporting the candidacy of Mr. Willkie.

Poses too Late, Says Ickes

Mr. Willkie poses too late as a champion of political purity, especially in view of the record of public utility companies within his control. He has always enjoyed association with political machines. He was a regular Democrat in Indiana, he was a regular Democrat in Ohio, and he has been a regular Democrat in New York. He never joined in any fight on any political machine anywhere at any time. His policy has been to "join 'em." He attended conventions as a regular Democrat, and he always went along with the majority.

After Mr. Willkie had put on his shoes and become a resident of New York City in 1929, he lost no time in becoming a member of the Tammany organization. He joined in 1930 and he has not resigned to this day. Along about 1936 or 1937, there was a primary fight in which the braves of Tammany Hall were bitterly engaged. A new and young group was trying to drive out the old guard. Here was an opportunity for Mr. Willkie to show his zeal for political reform. But he didn't.

Mr. Willkie fought in the ranks of Tammany Hall, which sought the defeat of Fiorello LaGuardia, the courageous and incorruptible administrator of a great city whose record as mayor will serve as a model for right-minded men for all time to come. Here was another chance to fight a political machine. But he didn't.

As a crusader for political purity, I wish that Mr. Willkie would tell us something about the forces that make political machines corrupt. Venal politicians do not bribe themselves.

Public utilities have been among the principal corruptors of public officials in the country. I was somewhat familiar with the situation in my own city of Chicago and State of Illinois (to which I had gone as a barefoot farmer's boy from my birthplace in Pennsylvania) and I knew, as did others, of the corruption lavishly indulged in by utilities under the domination and control of the late Samuel Insull. This corruption is a matter of public record.

I mention Insull because I was shocked to discover that, in Mr. Willkie's speech before the Economic Club of New York, he referred to Insull as a "forceful, dynamic and attractive figure." There are many thousands of people in this country who execrate Insull as the man who ruined them. By them he is remembered as the unscrupulous manipulator who induced his employes, his customers, and even his friends to invest in his utility stocks. They remember him as a man who bribed public officials whenever he needed them; who was indicted by a Federal grand jury; who had eluded the hand of justice and had been brought back to his adopted land as a craven fugitive. But to Mr. Willkie, Mr. Insull was an "attractive figure."

I have thanked Mr. Willkie for the flash of decent statesmanship in his Elwood speech. I have criticized him for his unpatriotic demagoguery and for his unpardonable references to President Roosevelt. I have raised some questions as to his record.

But I insist that Mr. Willkie has not been specific and definite in telling the American people how he proposes to meet the challenge of our domestic situation, the menace of Hitlerism, and the threat of world-revolution.

We can defend America only if we hold fast to the principles of national unity and social solidarity. I defy Mr. Willkie, who claims to be a student of history, to name any like period in the history of any great nation when so many and so great steps have been taken for social betterment with so little bitterness and dislocation.

I defy Mr. Willkie to tell his fellow citizens if there has ever been a time when those who were deprived of even a little of their powers and privileges for the common good, did not protest loudly, deeply, and very bitterly. Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, and Woodrow Wilson were hated by those whose privileges they attacked. So is Franklin D. Roosevelt hated by those whose privileges the New Deal has curtailed.

If indeed, as he says, Mr. Willkie has no hate in his heart, there is a great deal of missionary work for him to do among his "hate-Roosevelt" followers.

Mr. Willkie's current party contains the loudest and bitterest of those who protest against farm relief; work relief; collective bargaining; fair wages and hours for labor; taxation based on ability to pay; religious freedom; racial toleration; and measures necessary to check excessive concentration of control over other people's savings and other people's lives.

The Republican Party in 1940 contains the equivalent of England's and France's pro-Nazi Munich appeasers of 1938—the men with the black umbrellas. Mr. Willkie's current party contains the men who think that they can appease Hitler by making a deal—the big business men who were caught conferring in secret with a notorious Nazi agent, Dr. Westrick.

Mr. Willkie's current party includes the men who think that they can ward off social reform by calling the reformers Reds. Mr. Willkie's current party includes the men who think that big business should be allowed to capitalize a grave national crisis for its own private profit; that, somehow or other, the country will muddle through if only the party of big business and appeasement is given an exclusive right to handle the defense program.

What has Mr. Willkie's current party to offer America but more Munichs, more appeasement abroad, and more defeatism and more reaction at home?

President Roosevelt and his New Deal Administration have given America seven and a half dynamic years of defense of democracy. President Roosevelt has made America the symbol of light in a darkening world. Under President Roosevelt we are going forward to complete the mighty tasks which must be achieved if America is to be defended and democracy preserved.

Make Hair Grow while the sun shines

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is more rapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT Hair grows faster in the summer than at any other season is an established scientific fact. You can take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting Thomas' hair and scalp treatment at once.

Your hair will respond more quickly to this famous proved method of treatment now than at any other time. Within an unusually short time your dandruff will disappear, abnormal hairfall will stop, and new hair will actually be visible on the thin and bald spots. Call at the Thomas' office and talk your problem over with the expert in charge. He will gladly examine your scalp without charge or obligation and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do for you. Come in today.

Guardsmen Stage First Big 'Push'

D. C. Area Troops Move 40 Miles; 'Enemy' Blitz Halted

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 19.—A chill, penetrating rain, lashed by high winds for a time today threatened to bog down the first big push of the three-day mimic war, final show of the first Army maneuvers.

But the 9,000 toughened, sunburned officers and doughboys of the National Guard regiments from the District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland united with other Second and Third Corps troops as the Blue force, moved two score miles to meet an invading Black force, composed of the First Corps.

The long marches of the maneuver's initial day brought the First Virginia Infantry from its camp at Rensselaer Falls, 22 miles across rain-soaked woods to the front line west of Morley. Close behind, marching over an estimated 15 miles, were the 121st Engineers of the District of Columbia National Guard, spread out to reinforce the Fifty-eighth Maryland and Ninety-first Virginia Infantry Brigades, now constituted as combat teams.

Fewer Than 100 Fall Out

The men stood up under the gruelling grind. Fewer than 100 guardsmen fell out and they were moved to the 104th Medical Regiment hospital tent. A collecting center for soldier patients had been set up near Woodbridge Corners. Victims of cold, indigestion and blistered feet were taken in ambulances back to Renssalaer Falls.

The action ended early this evening.

The maneuver situation was stabilized in the Madrid-Canton sector and the Twenty-ninth Division troops took up positions for their next big push at dawn tomorrow. The opposing Blacks also were "digging in," but planned a series of raids tonight.

The powerful First Division Black force, with mechanized units streaming out like long fingers, stabbing at the Blue outposts, for a time threatened to quicly end the war as hostilities began early today.

Advance Is Halted

The initial thrust of the first triangular division of 30 miles from the vicinity of Winthrop, to a point south of Waddington, was gained with quick dispatch. It was only halted in time when shock troops of the Twenty-eighth Division staved off the attack after desperately holding the line of Waddington-Chipman.

As the Blacks hammered the Blue line, elements of the First Division captured Lieut. Col. Isaac Gill, headquarters commandant of the Third Corps; Lieut. Col. Otis K. Sadtler, Signal Corps signal officer, and Maj. L. S. Stickney, of the Signal Corps, 4 miles southeast of Lisbon. The officers were engaged in setting up the forward echelon of the Third Corps command post.

Sleep in Grange Hall

When Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Twenty-ninth Division, and his staff reached Marley the command post was established near the Grange Hall, which was rented for sleeping quarters and a mess hall, and plans were made for the next phase of the war.

Tonight, the Blue and Black forces, forward elements, were in contact along the line from Weddington to Russell.

The Blue forces were preparing against surprise and against further attacks by the D. M. F., a strong mechanized force made up of elements of the Twenty-seventh Division and the Twenty-second Cavalry. The D. M. F. may be the "secret element" that the Blue forces were fearing would strike with lightning rapidity. For it was the D. M. F. that pushed from 9 to 12 miles into Blue territory without ecountering resistance.

But the Blue forces retaliated. The Fifty-eighth Brigade crossed the Grasse River at Brooks Bridge, the Ninety-first crossed at Marley, and it was there that the outfit had completed the 22-mile march without firing a shot. But the Ninety-first outran its communications artillery and food supplies and it had to stop and re-form its combat team.

Invader Troops Captured

In the rush forward, the Twenty-ninth captured numbers of isolated Black infantry in Slab City. The Fifty-eighth Brigade encountered a few brisk skirmishes when its patrols on reconnaisance collided with Twenty-sixth Division patrols.

Tonight there is considerable bulge, or salient, in the center of the Blue front line, with the apex pointed at Potsdam. It is apparent that the efforts of the Blue force to reach the Racquette River were frustrated.

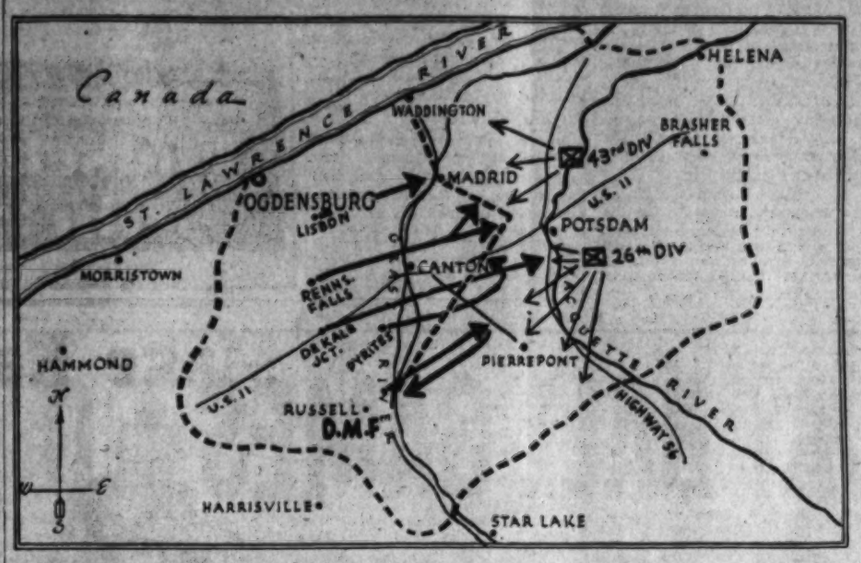
No major engagements resulted from today's operations. With the main Blue and Black forces now in contact, it is expected that plans will develop during the night for operations tomorrow which will definitely indicate the main effort of the Blue force.

As the weather, which had grounded aviation on both sides most of the day, cleared, Blue ground units went on the alert for Black attempts at aerial bombardment.

Patterson Arrives for Tour

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson was greeted with a 17-gun salute today as he arrived here in an Army plane from Washington to tour the maneuver areas.

'Invaders' Smash Through Blues on 'Madrid Front'



BLACK ARMY ADVANCES—Map shows thrusts Black army, the invading forces, made yesterday through front line (broken arrow from Wadding, through Madrid, southwest to Russell) of Blue defending forces. Arrows indicate: Twenty-eighth Division moving from Lisbon; Fifty-eighth Brigade and Ninety-first Brigade, both striking out from Rennselaer Falls to the front, meeting the Forty-third Division; Twenty-seventh Division moving out of DeKalb Junction to the front, clashing with the Twenty-sixth Division at Highway 56, south of Potsdam; Twenty-second Cavalry Division advancing on Pyrites, northeast to U. S. Route 11, driven back to the established front. DMF (a strong mechanized force) broke through to a point north of Pierrepont, made lightning attack and retreated to base at Russell. Marines Told To Expect Long Duty Elsewhere

D. C. Reservists Start Maneuvers At Lakehurst, N. J.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 19.—Arising at dawn today to begin two weeks of target practice and maneuvers, Marine Reservists from Washington heard their commander warn that this training period might well be their last before they saw "longer duty elsewhere."

Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller, commander of the Fifth Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, urged his men to give their best efforts to their work at the Naval Training Station here, declaring this might prove to be a final rehearsal for subsequent activities.

Col. Miller also told the massed battalion that the sudden order changing the battalions training site from Quantico to Lakehurst demonstrated the extreme mobility of the corps and showed how reserves could fit into the general Marine Corps picture.

The battalion's first week will be given to shooting rifles for record, practice firing of automatic rifles, machine guns and .37 millimeter field pieces and hand and rifle grenade practice.

The second week will be a combat period, with squad, platoon, company and full battalion problems and maneuvers, involving day and night attacks, defense, advance and rear guard actions, withdrawals and delaying actions.

The reservists will be unable to work on landing force problems and ship-to-shore maneuvers, as planned when the battalion was ordered to Quantico. However, many of the men have received such training in previous years.

Smith Smitten

Rep. Rankin Debunks Pocahontas Legend

By the United Press

The House learned from Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, yesterday that Pocahontas didn't save Capt. John Smith from the Indians—it was a couple of other people.

This information intrigued members because for 115 years there has hung in the rotunda of the Capitol a carving showing the Indian maiden pleading with Chief Powhatan for the life of the English adventurer.

The only thing wrong with the Pocahontas-John Smith story, Rankin said, was that it wasn't Pocahontas, it was an Indian chief's daughter named Ulele, and it wasn't John Smith, it was a Spaniard named Juan Ortiz.

After hearing Rankin's story the House voted, 140 to 104, to approve and send to the White House a bill authorizing a celebration next year of the 400th anniversary of the crossing of the Mississippi River by Hernando de Soto.

Rankin accused Capt. Smith of stealing the Pocahontas story out of the journal of De Soto's expedition to North America. He pointed out that Smith did not mention his supposed rescue by the Indian maiden in the first book about his experiences in the New World, published in 1609. Not until 17 years after Pocahontas' death, said Rankin, did this story, since embedded in history, appear in another book of Smith's.

Defense Sidelights

Knudsen and Arnold Leave To Inspect Aircraft Plants

Defense Production Chief and Head Of Army Plane Corps Will Tour Military, Factory Centers in Midwest

William S. Knudsen, production chief of the defense commission, left Washington with Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, yesterday to inspect air corps establishments and major aircraft plants in the Middle and Far West.

The two defense officers were expected to make a close inspection of present plane production facilities and an estimate of further needs.

The War Department said Knudsen and Arnold, traveling by Army plane, would visit Dayton, Indianapolis, Wichita, Kans., and Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Francisco and Seattle.

The Senate yesterday passed two bills designed to produce additional officers required for the expanding Navy.

One would permit the appointment of 270 alternate candidates for the Naval Academy, who qualified for entrance but were not enrolled in 1939 and 1940. They would enter the Annapolis school next month for the regular course.

The other expands the Naval R. O. T. C. units at colleges and universities from 2,400 students to 7,200. Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, told the Senate the Navy plans to increase the number of units from 11 to 27 if the measure passes.

Both bills now go to the House for consideration.

Army recruiting, on the upgrade since late May, reached another weekly peak of 8,605 new enlistments between August 11 and 18.

In making this weekly report yesterday, the War Department said new enlistments since May had now reached 59,172, with the Southeastern States leading in recruiting with a total of 12,821 volunteers.

Working toward an immediate goal of 332,922 for the total strength of the Army, to be obtained as rapidly as possible, the Army had an estimated enlisted strength today of 283,000, the largest number ever enlisted in peacetime and 3,000 more than the previous maximum statutory limit of the Army.

The sent to the White House yesterday legislation authorizing the President to appoint an unlimited number of reserve aviators as permanent officers in the Navy and Marine Corps.

As explained by its sponsors, the measure would open a Navy career to certain selected reserve flying officers who otherwise could attain only a temporary status in the Navy or Marine Corps.

Inquiry Demanded On Ickes' Stamps

At collectors' prices, the Senator added, the 150 stamps Ickes still held would be worth $187,500.

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, who said he had telephoned Ickes and asked him "what's the stor about this," declared that Ickes' acquisition of the stamps occurred in 1933 "and that's seven years ago."

Offered at Face Value

"I do not think," Byrnes said, "that anyone would even intimate or think the matter was brought up at this time because of the fact that over the radio tonight the Secretary of the Interior is scheduled to make a few remarks in reply to the Republican gentleman now running for President. I'm sure that would be unworthy of us."

Ickes, Byrnes added, never sold any of the stamps. With regard to Danaher's assertion that the stamps were worth $187,417, Byrnes said he had "the authority of the Secretary" to offer the issue to Danaher "If he will pay the face value" of $82.50.

Danaher insisted that the stamp issue came out in 1935.

"I spoke to Mr. Ickes and asked him what the story of the stamps was," Byrnes related. "He said, 'what! That old story. Why they used that in the 1936 campaign.'"

The Federal Diary:

Housing D. C. Defense Influx Up to Palmer

Must Anticipate Needs, See That Shortage Is Avoided

By Edward Ryan

Charles Palmer, new housing coordinator for the National Defense Advisory Commission, will be given the last word on any plans to find homes for Washington's expected influx of extra Government employes, officials indicated yesterday.

Palmer, the commission said, will be expected to "anticipate housing needs that may arise as a result of defense activities and to take whatever action may be necessary to avoid any housing shortages."

The District, according to officials of the District Alley Dwelling Authority and the United States Housing Authority, faces a serious shortage of adequate homes for workers in this salary range as soon as it gets the money.

Ample Supply Claimed

Washington building owners, however, have said that the city has an ample supply of vacant dwellings to take care of an influx of new workers, and that private business can provide whatever extra housing facilities are needed.

Palmer, the Commission said, will be responsible for planning the defense housing program and for carrying it through, with the aid of private industry and the Federal agencies that deal with planning, financing and building homes.

Reports about Washington's housing needs have already been turned over to Palmer, it was learned. A list of housing priorities is being prepared now, under direction of Jacob Crane, assistant coordinator.

Throughout the defense housing program, it was pointed out, Palmer will tie up his work with that of Defense Commissioners Sidney Hillman, in charge of labor supply, and Miss Harriet Elliott, in charge of consumer protection.

Hillman to Be Consulted

These standards, the commission said, will include "those factors in construction which affect costs and thereby rents, and those factors which affect livability, including lay-out, spacing of dwellings and availability of utilities and of community facilities."

In addition, when Federal funds are to be used, Hillman will be consulted on construction plans to insure satisfactory terms of employment and an adequate labor supply.

Part of Palmer's job, the commission said, will be to review housing legislation to determine how far the housing program could go under existing laws and to recommend new legislation if necessary.

Jobs—Civil service exams have been opened for these defense jobs: Senior tool and gauge designer, $2,300 to $2,900 a year at the Washington Navy Yard; toolmaker, $7.96 to $8.92 a day, Norfolk Navy Yard.

Robert H. Hinckley, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, yesterday was given an engraved resolution praising his work as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

The resolution, adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board, was presented by Harllee Branch, new board chairman. It praised Hinckley's "valuable services to the advancement of the aviation" and expressed "the personal pleasure which the members of the board have derived from their association with him."

Hinckley was transferred to the Commerce post when the Civil Aeronautics Authority was reorganized and shifted into the department.

New Government employes will be permitted to transfer into other jobs in defense agencies during their period of probation, under a new order of President Roosevelt. The probation period for new employes normally runs from six months to a year.

Rep. Barton to Address Willkie-McNary Group

Representative Bruce Barton (Republican), of New York, will be principal speaker at a meeting of the Willkie-McNary Campaign Club membership committee at 8 o'clock tonight in the Willard Hotel.

James C. Wilkes, chairman of the District Republican State committee, also will speak. James A. Councilor, president of the club, will preside.

Rush Swamps D. C. Birth Record Bureau

Many Seeking Proof Of U. S. Citizenship, Suddenly Valuable

The bureau of vital statistics at the District Building is busier than it has ever been these days trying to prove that persons were born in the United States of America.

Work has been doubled in the past two months, said Howard W. Bowie, chief of the bureau, as an unprecedented number of persons swamp the tiny office for copies of their birth certificates.

The largest percentage of applicants, he said, are employes and prospective employes of aircraft corporations, plants and other private industries which have contracts with the Government under the national defense program.

And because immigration authorities have tightened up on regulations for United States tourists returning from Canada, travelers seek a birth certificate as the best proof of citizenship and they have added to the harassment of bureau employes, Bowie said. In addition, prospective candidates for the Army and Navy are asking for proof of their citizenship.

Bowie warned parents to apply well in advance for the birth certificates of children who are entering school for the first time this fall.

Navy Is Found Strong, Army Weak in Hawaii

Virtually All of Fleet There, Land Forces Lack Equipment

through lines marked "no one may pass here" and counted for myself the naval strength massed in these islands as the first line of American defense in the Pacific.

At Pearl Harbor, I counted seven battleships and long lines of cruisers, destroyers and wallowing submarines. For reasons of national safety I am not in position to tell exactly how many ships were present (lest potential enemies estimate from that what other parts of the Pacific are unpatrolled) but I can say that I saw today the greatest show of naval force that has ever been seen right here in these American islands.

Ships Ready for Action

After surveying all the fighting craft anchored in Pearl Harbor, I inquired among naval officers and other officials engaged in the rearmament program and learned that many more ships were anchored in the shallows between this island of Oahu and the adjoining islands of the Hawaiian group.

Every fighting ship I saw was in readiness for action; painted, manned, engines turning over so that slow smoke drifted into the tropic sky, guns pointing symbolically westward to the sea, upward to the sky.

If trouble ever comes out of the West, to complicate the tangle of national interests in Europe which have set the world on fire, the U. S. Navy will be ready—if surface ships are still of use against blitzkrieg from the skies.

Army Ill-Equipped

As for the army in Hawaii, it may be big enough and brave enough for any emergency, but it is definitely hamstrung at the present time by lack of modern equipment.

It is equipped like an army of the last World War's vintage and could not meet any modern army on equal ground.

his is solely theT opinion of one man, but of one who spent months with the British army before it was driven out of France, with the French army before it lay down its arms before superior force.

At Scofield Barracks on the hills in the center of Oahu Island, there are 30,000 soldiers, drilled in the ways of defense, trained to meet an invader. But these thousands of men are not armed to meet any invader as invaders are armed today.

The army in Hawaii is motorized, and can be moved swiftly from its central position to any point of need, but when it gets there it hasn't the equipment necessary to do its job.

Army Has No Tanks

A careful survey of the Army equipment here uncovered the following facts. This Army has none of the new Garand semiautomatic rifles. It has no tanks, no armored cars. It has none of the new 90-millimeter antiaircraft guns.

The strategy of the Army here is based on the fact that Oahu (the only island the Army plans to defend in case of aggression) is cut off by two mountain ranges which dictate that landings must be made at Honolulu or directly across the island.

Therefore the Army is held at the center of the island, ready to rush to one side or the other.

In the antiaircraft section there are 100 mobile modern antiaircraft searchlights, but there are only 24 mobile antiaircraft guns, all of 75 millimeters (3 inches) which Army officers testifying before Congressional committees have declared outmoded.

Scofield Barracks is the largest Army post anywhere in the United States, it is equipped to handle the proper feeding and training of its 30,000 men, but it is not furnished with the mechanized equipment which the European war has shown is necessary to the continued existence of any army, offensive or defensive, under conditions of modern war.

The Hawaiian Islands—"Crossroads of the Pacific"—are regarded by American Navy and Army experts as of utmost strategic importance to the United States. Honolulu is 2,100 miles from San Francisco, 2,226 miles from Los Angeles and 2,409 miles from Seattle.

This tropical paradise of luxuriant vegetation and volcanic mountains is the mainspring on which the American armed forces count to block and ward off any attempt by any power to cross the Pacific and strike a blow at our western coast.

Of the total population of 411,485, 153,539 inhabitants—or more than a third—are Japanese, of whom there has been a steadily increasing infiltration in recent years.

German Embassy Here Describes Relief Ship American Legion as in 'Grave Danger' From Mines

U-Boats No Danger

He said that there was no danger from German U-boats, since their commanders all had been warned that the American Legion—well marked and well lighted—was heading in that direction.

The course being followed by the American Legion was decided on at a conference involving the State Deparment(the War Department and the Navy Department.

Why, the Navy Department was asked, had the American Legion been directed to follow a course which the German government had warned was "extremely dangerous?"

Course Chosen by Navy

Why, it was asked further, had not the vessel been routed either just north or south of Iceland? (Dr. Tannenberg had expressed it as his personal opinion that this would have been the logical course.)

A Navy spokesman explained that the Navy had decided on the course which the American Legion is now following because, on the basis of the "facts at hand" at the time, this seemed to be the safest course.

One of the facts at hand, he said, was a British admiralty warning, printed July 24 by the Navy hydrographic office, that the "waters between the Orkneys and Iceland and Iceland and Greenland are dangerous owing to mines."

Total Blockade Zone

The British warning at that time advised all vessels approaching the North Sea in that general area to proceed south of the latitude of North Rona and Cape Wrath.

The American Legion is believed to have traveled down the coast of Norway and thence through the zone of total blockade between Rona Island and Cape Wrath.

It would seem that the Navy Department, in charting the course of the American Legion, was confronted on the one hand by the British warning that the waters around Iceland were mined and on the other by the German warning that the Army vesssel should not take the farther south route.

Mines Unexpected

What the Navy Department did not know, the department's spokesman explained, was that Germany was going to proclaim a total blockade of Britain which would mean the mining of waters through which the American Legion had been directed to sail.

Before the Navy Department and the rest of the world learned about it, the American Legion was on her way.

Whether any attempt would be made to halt the American Legion could not be ascertained last night. If Dr. Tannenberg was right in his estimate about the ship having 12 more hours of sailing time in the mined waters, she should emerge—if she is to emerge—at about 4 o'clock this morning.

Passengers Unaware

Mrs. Harriman, who is returning to Washington after distinguishing herself during the German invasion of Norway, told the Associated Press in a wireless message from the American Legion yesterday that the passengers aboard the vessel knew nothing about Germany's warning.

Responding to an inquiry from the Associated Press, she said:

"Your message first intimation of newly mined area. No one aboard informed."

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, would only say yesterday that the route being followed by the American Legion was considered safer than any other and was being followed upon the recommendation of Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and the Army general staff.

Negotiations Reviewed

Dr. Tannenberg, who has what appears to be a Heidelberg scar on his left check, receiped reporters in a long, narrow room on the second floor of the old red-brick embassy on Massachusetts avenue, off Thomas Circle. He said that, to clear up confusion and in the interest of enlightenment, Dr. Hans Thomsen, the charge d'affaires, had advised him to call in the press.

He then reviewed the negotiations between the United States Government and his own government with respect to the voyage of the American Legion. These negotiations began on June 14, when the American Embassy at Berlin advised the German Foreign Office that this country planned to send a warship or a transport to Petsamo in order to repatriate American citizens, and asked the German Government for assurances of the safety of the vessel during the voyage.

On July 9, according to Dr. Tannenberg's memorandum, the American Embassy was advised that there was no occasion for specific assurances inasmuch as German naval forces would not "undertake warlike actions against neutral war vessels."

Ship Carefully Marked

On August 9, the German diplomat said, the American Embassy in Berlin stated in writing that the Army transport American Legion would sail from Petsamo for New York on August 16, that she would be carefully marked and well lighted, and would sail between the Isle of Rona and Cape Wrath, just north of Scotland.

"By a note of August 14," said Dr. Tannenberg, reading from the memorandum, "the American Embassy was advised that the German competent authorities considered the passage through the zone of military operations around England extremely dangerous. The German government coupled this statement with the urgent advice that the vessel take a different course.

"On August 16 at noon, the German government received a note from the American Embassy stating that the American Legion, notwithstanding the German government's advice, would follow the course previously stated, and would sail from Petsamo on August 16."

Nye Demands Inquiry

On that same evening, Dr. Tannenberg said, the Germany Embassy sent a note to the American Embassy saying that the German government declined any responsibility for the damages the American Legion might suffer and that the United States Government would have to bear the sole responsibility.

Earlier yesterday Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, demanded that an inquiry be made to ascertain whether the American Legion was allowed to sail without safe conduct pledges from Germany.

Canadians Find Radio in Prison After Nazi Flees

Somewhere in Ontario, Aug 19 (AP).—Escape of a German war prisoner from an internment camp in northern Ontario with the aid of a woman Fifth Columnist resulted tonight in discovery of a powerful radio transmitter concealed in the ceiling of the prison barracks.

The prisoner, 29 years old, was missing at reveille. He had tunneled 50 yards under the camp fences from an ice house where he worked.

That the fugitive might be of some importance was intimated in reports that he was in civilian clothing when captured by the British. He was identified as a German officer.

Senate Passes Bill to Remove War Children

Legislation Permits U. S. Ships to Go For Young Refugees

By the Associated Press

The Senate yesterday unanimously approved legislation permitting American ships to remove children from the war zones under safe-conduct pledges from the belligerents while a German embassy spokesman warned that the Nazis' "total blockade" would make it dangerous for any vessels to enter British waters.

Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, of the embassy, was asked about the children's transportation at a press conference regarding the Army transport American Legion which is bringing Americans home from Finland through waters which the Germans warned are perilous from mines.

He said that German military authorities would have to decide whether ships could be sent through the blockade for the children, but expressed the view that such voyages would be dangerous.

The Senate acted after brief debate in which Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, said that he did not "regard safe conduct offered by Hitler as of the slightest consequence."

Senator Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, in charge of the bill, expressed hope that the House, which already had passed it, would quickly accept the Senate's "clarifying" amendments.

The bill would amend the Neutrality Act to permit American ships, under prescribed conditions, to transport children under 18 years of age who were sponsored in this country in such a manner as not to become public charges.

"Hitler is what we call a lycanthropist—that is, a man who imagines he is a werewolf," Ashurst told the Senate.

"Hitler would sink these ships and send these children to be devoured by the monsters of the deep if he could advance himself or his views one inch.

"Is there a man alive who in his heart believes that safe conduct granted or issued by Hitler is worth anything? Hitler has broken every promise he ever made. His word is worthless."

Holy See Gives Florida Bishopric To Msgr. Hurley

The Right Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Hurley, an attache in the secretariat of state at the Holy See, Vatican City, since 1934, has been appointed Bishop of St. Augustine, Fla., the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, announced yesterday.

Bishop-elect Hurley, 46, is a native of Cleveland. He served as secretary to the Most Rev. Edward Mooney when the present Archbishop of Detroit was apostolic Delegate to Japan from 1931 to 1933.

Pope Pius XI made Bishop-elect Hurley a domestic prelate with the title of right reverend monsignor on March 6, 1934. The Diocese of St. Augustine includes all of Florida west of the Apalachicola River.

Navy Authorized To Transfer Land For Va. Highway

By the Associated Press

The Senate Naval Committee approved yesterday—on recommendation of Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland—legislation authorizing the Navy to transfer 13 acres of proving grounds at Dahlgren, Va., to Virginia for a highway route.

"That's the famous Tydings bridge terminus, isn't it?" Tydings said. "I move it be reported favorably."

President Roosevelt announced plans for construction of the bridge, over the Potomac between Maryland and Virginia, at the time of the 1938 primary election when the Administration supported an opponent of Tydings for the Senatorial nomination.

Homes in D. C. Sought for 140 Child Refugees

'Unspecified' Children Expected to Reach U. S. in a Few Days

Reminding that 140 "unspecified" refugee children are expected to reach the United States within a few days, the Washington branch of the United States Committee for the Care of Refugee Children yesterday urged that homes be made available here.

Many homes have been offered the refugees, but few of the families have been willing to complete arrangements that must be made before the children can be allotted, it was said by Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, the local branch chairman.

$63 Must Be Filed

Affidavits guaranteeing support of the child, accompanied by a check for a minimum of $63, must be filed with the United States committee in New York before a child is allotted, Mrs. O'Connor stated. The $63 covers the visa and head tax of $10, a credit investigation of $2.50 and a payment of an insurance fund of $50, she stated.

The Washington branch will meet at 2 p. m. Thursday to hear reports from branch representatives who recently attended a meeting with the national committee in New York.

The United States committee had sufficient funds to guarantee homes for 1,000 children, and all ships arriving from England will carry some of the young refugees, according to Eric Biddle, chairman of the committee.

Asks for Offers Now

"We cannot sit by and wait until the children are here. Definite offers of homes must be forthcoming to make good the spontaneous American generosity which originally proposed a haven for the children here," Biddle said.

People hoping to provide temporary homes for specific children evacuated from Great Britain were requested by Biddle to submit the required affidavits through the committee rather than individually to American consulates abroad.

Mr. Wallace's Campaign

The advancement of Claude R. Wickard to be Secretary of Agriculture is a logical sequel to Secretary Wallace's resignation from that office. Since he steps up from the position of Undersecretary, Mr. Wickard may be expected to carry on the policies now in effect. While Mr. Wallace stumps the country he need have no fear that his successor will undermine the agricultural doctrine he preaches.

This arrangement should be satisfactory to everyone. Mr. Wickard will be able to direct the Department of Agriculture as its actual chief and not as a mere substitute for a campaigning official. Mr. Wallace will be able to devote his full time to the hustings. The Democratic Party may escape charges that farm subsidies are being used to elect a Vice Presidential candidate. And the public is likely to get a clearer view of the issues at stake.

It is not yet certain, however, what part Mr. Wallace will play in the campaign. President Roosevelt suggests to Mr. Wallace that he is now free to devote his time and talents "exclusively to an interpretation of your agricultural program to the American people." Apparently the Vice Presidential candidate is supposed to talk about only those things which vitally concern the farmer.

This suggestion is curious for two reasons: First, the President himself does not expect to conduct an active campaign. If Mr. Wallace talks only about agriculture, there may be some broad gaps in the Administration's offensive and defensive strategy.

In the second place, it is difficult to understand why Mr. Wallace should need to spend his full time between September 5 and November 5 interpreting to voters a program that has been in operation for seven years. It almost looks as if the President believes his Secretary of Agriculture has a lot of explaining to do. But, of course, that could not be his meaning.

Still the mystery remains. Nor is it minimized by the President's statement that despair has given way to self-respect and "sane thinking" under Mr. Wallace's "guiding hand." We can only hope that this achievement of "sane thinking" on the farm and the concentration of campaign efforts there will be explained by Mr. Wallace's forthcoming speeches.

Industrial Pioneers

The life history of Walter P. Chrysler, who began his earning career as a machinist's apprentice in a railroad shop and rose to the headship of one of the country's largest automobile companies, is a typical American success story.

It is also a reminder that the pioneering days of American industry, offering chances for fame and fortune to obscure young men, are not in the remote past. For Mr. Chrysler was only 65 years old at the time of his death, and was actively associated with the company he founded until 1938.

Like Henry Ford and Alfred P. Sloan, Mr. Chrysler in his youth toiled at mechanical tasks and acquired a thorough knowledge of machinery. Without conscious intention, he thus equipped himself to become a production expert in a new field of industry. When we talk about the alleged lack of new industrial openings in this country it is worth recalling that many persons in the prime of life can remember distinctly when the first automobile appeared on the streets of their home towns.

Today the problems of financial management, personnel relations, and salesmanship are extremely important for large-scale corporate industries. They figure so prominently in current discussions that we are in danger of forgetting that the production end of a business is the foundation of its whole structure.

The lawyer, the financial expert and the trained salesman who may never have set foot inside a factory may prove to be very competent executives when an industry has attained maturity and production processes are more or less standardized. This does not mean, however, that industrial progress can be expected to go forward without the energy, enthusiasm, and enterprising spirit characteristic of our industrial pioneers.

The country will always need men who, like Mr. Chrysler, are willing to work and not afraid to take risks when they see opportunities to better their position.

The Ogdensburg Accord

For well over a century the peoples of Canada and the United States have found satisfaction in the 3,000 miles of unfortified border separating the two nations. They have, with good reason, regarded this circumstance as symbolic of the spirit of peace which obtains on this Continent, of the mutual trust, forbearance and friendship which for most of this period have governed the relations between the United States and the Dominion.

Proof of the enduring character of these sentiments is to be found in the fact that neither Canada's war efforts on behalf of Great Britain nor the vast rearmament program upon which this country has embarked is regarded by the other as a danger to itself.

Certainly, so far as the United States is concerned, there has been no suggestion that in building up our defenses we should fortify the Canadian border.

If the United States is to be safeguarded against attack from the north, we must make it impossible for any aggressor to land troops or planes anywhere in Canada or Newfoundland. In other words, the inescapable factor of geography demands the closest degree of integration between the defense efforts of Canada and this Nation.

Until this year the problem was never sufficiently urgent to require more than academic recognition. Canada enjoyed the double protection of the British fleet and of the Monroe Doctrine. But events in Europe during these last months have made quick action necessary.

Should Great Britain be defeated, should the British fleet be captured or destroyed, an invasion of Canada by the totalitarian powers of Europe could no longer be dismissed as the figment of an overheated imagination. And should an aggressor nation establish a foothold in Canada, it would be in a position to menace a large part of the United States.

It is a happy circumstance, therefore, that an agreement has been reached by the governments of the two nations through their chief executives for the creation of a joint board on defense. That board, according to the White House announcement, will "commence immediate studies relating to sea, land and air problems including personnel and materiels." It will "consider in the broad sense the defense of the Northern half of the Western Hemisphere."

The agreement, technically speaking, is not an alliance. In view of the Monroe Doctrine as interpreted by President Roosevelt in his Kingston speech, no formal alliance seems necessary. Out of urgent self-interest, the United States must extend the mantle of its protection over Canada. Yet the Ogdensburg agreement does constitute the first long step in the direction of a thorough-going and much needed coordination of Canadian and United States defense efforts.

It is thus a companion piece to the Convention and Act of Havana concerning the Caribbean Islands now under the sovereignty of European states. And its essential corollary is the arrangement now being separately discussed by the United States and Great Britain regarding the establishment of American naval and air bases in the British West Indies and Newfoundland.

At a time when our defense program is lagging behind in personnel and materiel it is doubly encouraging to note this substantial progress on the strategic front.

An Italian Victory

The withdrawal of British forces from Berbera marks the successful conclusion of a 15-day Italian campaign to gain control of British Somaliland. That colony, with a coastline on the strategically important Gulf of Aden, has now been added to Italy's already considerable holdings in East Africa.

The Fascist government and press will make much of this victory. Nor can anyone doubt that its propagandist value is considerable. For however wise the British were in withdrawing their small garrison from Somaliland, in the face of the much larger and better equipped Italian force, it will be interpreted as a sign of British weakness.

The strategic value to Italy of the Somaliland victory is for the time being potential rather than actual. So long as the British remain in command of the seas, this additional frontage on the Gulf of Aden will give Italy little advantage. Italian Eritrea is directly opposite the narrow Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb separating the Gulf of Aden from the Red Sea. That fact has not prevented the British from continuing their undisputed control of the sea route from the Suez Canal to the Indian Ocean.

The real struggle for mastery between Italy and Great Britain is yet to come. It is significant that during these 15 days of Italian advance into British Somaliland there was no parallel advance into Egypt in the direction of the Suez Canal. The British rather than the Italians have taken the offensive on that front by subjecting the Libyan fort of Capuzzo to devastating shelling from the sea. That fact alone would seem to give the lie to Italian claims of supremacy in the Eastern Mediterranean.

For the moment British energies are concentrated on the defense of the British Isles. The Somaliland campaign was only a remote sideshow.

Only Reliable Method

As the Senate began voting on minor amendments to the Burke-Wadsworth bill yesterday, all doubt that a conscription measure will be enacted seemed to have passed. The question by which Senators are now confronted is what form the measure should take.

Apparently the test will come on the Maloney amendment. No one should make the mistake of assuming that this proposal would strip the bill of its compulsory features. On the contrary, it would merely delay conscription of men for military service until January 1. The draft would go into effect on that date if a sufficient number of voluntary enlistments had not been completed.

All experience with voluntary recruiting indicates that this amendment would give us compulsory service four and a half months hence. That arrangement would be no more satisfactory to Senators who are opposing all compulsory training in peacetime than is the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Probably the least defensible position a legislator could take in this critical period would be to indorse conscription in principle and then defer the date on which it shall become effective. The need for increased national strength is immediate. Congress should not forget that the question now before it concerns only the training of men, which, in any event, will require a year. To delay the scientific selection of men to take this training would be no more reasonable than to repeal part of the appropriations already voted for military equipment.

Fortunately, the issue of conscripting men for military training has been removed from the realm of politics by Wendell Willkie's forthright commitment to that method. Congress would likewise do well to eliminate every scintilla of politics from its debate of this issue. It is time courageously to face the fact that the draft is the only reliable method of obtaining large numbers of men for training in an emergency. And that seems to leave no alternative to prompt approval of this bill.

Surplus Farm Products

According to latest estimates the United States and Canada will have available at the end of the current season more than 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat for export and carryover. At the same time the continent of Europe will be facing an acute shortage of wheat, the deficiency being estimated at 400,000,000 bushels. However, there is slight prospect that any substantial part of the huge surpluses on this side of the Atlantic will reach the other side so long as the war continues and the blockade holds.

The continental markets normally take about one-third of our exports of farm products and Great Britain accounts for another third. But with the former markets closed, the British are also limiting their imports to urgent needs and supplying those needs as far as possible from empire sources. Hence it is not surprising that the prices of wheat, cotton and other agricultural products should fail to reflect the stimulus of wartime demands.

The Department of Agriculture reports that wheat prices in the United States have become largely independent of the European situation since the turn of events in Europe last May. The loan program is now the dominant domestic influence, as regards wheat prices, although speculative movements are, of course, influenced by war and crop news. The outlook for cotton is very favorable as regards domestic consumption, but export prospects in the markets still open to us are said to be "exceptionally unfavorable."

However, it should be remembered that our export outlets for wheat and cotton had become severely restricted and were being maintained with the aid of export subsidies before the outbreak of war. The war and the continental blockade have simply aggravated surplus problems that have long been the cause of official headaches, and have created some new ones due to loss of customary outlets for tobacco and other products.

The Model Motorist

From the Trenton Times-Advertiser.

Automobile Commissioner W. Lee Elgin, of Baltimore, Md., has offered the following concise definition of the model driver:

He is one who keeps his mind on his driving, in the line of traffic, anticipates what other drivers are going to do, watches out for pedestrians, slows down at schools, crossings and dangerous intersections; signals for turns, keeps his car under control, obeys traffic signals and signs, and has his car regularly inspected and maintained.

One might add—Doesn't mix alcohol and gasoline, doesn't attempt to pass cars on a curve or a hill, and never insists on legal rights at the expense of public safety.

Draft Questions

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After it has been proved that a highly trained mechanized few are more efficient than hundreds of poorly trained and equipped men why do people still shout for a large standing army? If men can't be equipped for years to come, why take a year out of a man's life and budget when he can learn via reserve corps?

Why not militarize all high schools and colleges and compel all men to belong to a reserve corps unit between the ages of 18 and 40 with the provisions that reserve units be instructed oftener and longer than in the past? Why follow the road to ruin taken by France and possibly England by playing aviation second to the army and navy? Why take men only from the ages of 21 to 31?

If all youth is snatched away how about the next generation? Most single men between the ages of 31 and 40 who have not become established in a trade or means of livlihood are the spongers and loafers. Put them in the Army; there are thousands of them. Be sure that draftees are from all races, religions, and classes and pass out the exempt jobs the same way.

I am positively against racial, religious, or class prejudice, but every one who wants freedom should be willing to protect it. M. B. P.

Fight On Other Soil

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the popular catch-phrases of the isolationists has been: "We will not send our boys to die on foreign soil." The implication is that it is better to fight on or within our own frontiers. It is well to examine such slogans, which are usually invented to make people jump to emotional conclusions without real thought.

The British have tried both kinds of war. A quarter century ago they sent armies across the water. Many of their men died on foreign soil, but their families for the most part were safe. The survivors came back to find their homes intact.

Now the British are fighting at home. Every household is in deadly peril by day and night. Many women and children and other noncombatants are being killed and wounded and homes are being destroyed. The Norwegians, Dutch, Belgians and French have also seen what fighting within their own countries is like.

Which kind of war may we suppose that the Europeans prefer? There is surely a lesson for us here.

What we really want is peace and order in the world. If force is necessary at times to suppress disorder or aggression, the further the fighting is from our own shores the better it will be for us.

We should still have to face the difficult question whether or not a given conflict is so serious a threat to our peace as to justify intervention, but the precise point where we should fight ought to be decided mainly on the advice of experts. A war in which politicians, however wise and patriotic, choose the battlefields, is likely to be lost before it is begun. If we ever have to fight again let us pray earnestly that it may not be on our own soil.

Stockholders' Meeting

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Cautious corporate managements usually secure passage at stockholders' meetings of a resolution approving all the management has done since last meeting.

This is one of the reasons why so few stockholders' suits against management for violation of trustee responsibility succeed in recovering unwarranted expenditures, such as expense accounts padded with campaign books, or other illegal items.

Corporate officers and corporate employes are trustees of the property entrusted to their care, though frequently handling it as they would their own personal belongings.

This is the basic reason for the provisions in the Corrupt Practice Act against political contributions and expenditures by corporations. It is not the fear of corporation dominance, but the dishonesty of using the property of others to advance your own personal viewpoint.

The slovenly draftsmanship of such laws, however, gives some basis for the suggestion that they are intended as gestures to good government rather than sincere efforts to effect long-needed reforms. Laws which are cumbersome and clumsy defeat themselves.

Public officials, whether of State or Nation, are like corporate officials, trustees of public funds. Or, as was so well said by Grover Cleveland, "A public office is a public trust." Unlike corporate officers, public officials are not subject to suit by the citizen for maladministration. The only recourse of the citizen who disapproves of the manner in which such officers have administered their trust is to refuse to vote approval of a resolution confirming past performance.

Such resolution is proposed at the biennial and quadrennial elections. The next meeting of the stockholders of United States of America is November 5, 1940.

Lindbergh And Pepper

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I express my appreciation of Mr. Morley's recent very fine analysis of "The Lindbergh Speeches." Whether the Lone Eagle is right or wrong is not the point. He is as free to express his views as are others, and certainly those "engaged" by the Government to "answer" what he says should at least give him the courtesy of an impartial reading of what he says. Two Senators who answered him evidently did not even read his statements, their points were so far from the mark. The airman revealed more "statesmanship" than the so-called "statesmen."

But what I most want to say is this—Senator Pepper called Lindbergh "a Fifth Columnist." And now a news commentator on the air and newspaper reports say that this same Pepperman himself declares that he is in favor of making President Roosevelt a dictator! If a dictatorship, then concentration camps for traitors to America and the American way of life.

Moral Slackers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wonder if the necessity of conscription, if it is a necessity, is not another manifestation of indifference to the many blessings democracy has given to us. We have seen France defeated ignominiously because of a laissez-faire attitude toward the vital principles of democracy and Christianity.

We have delegated our individual initiative to the hands of the Government, financially and morally. We have asked the Government to provide our financial security at present and to guarantee it in the future by legislation.

We have lowered our standards all the way along the line and have shirked our responsibilities to ourselves, to our forefathers, who worked and saved, fought and died so that we might enjoy the spiritual satisfactions denied them, and to our posterity.

If we had preserved the spiritual aspirations which inspired our forefathers to found our democracy and had engendered them in our children, I wonder would it be necessary to compel any of us to give up his life to preserve our way of life. C. W. MAURER.

Draft-Age Americans

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I inclose a copy of a resolution signed by a few draft-age Americans who believe that it is about time the Americans, such few as there seem to be in this country, say something in regard to this anticonscription propaganda that has been poured on our heads in the past few weeks.

I merely wish to show that there are still a few men who think that the United States is worth learning to fight for.

I feel that it is about time that an American started an organization for something to counteract all the organizations started by people who are against something.

Anti-British

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I enter my protest against selling warships to England. We need all the destroyers we have if our defenses are as bad as painted.

We are not at war with anybody. England, on the other hand, declared war against Germany and is being attacked.

This Nation has gone stark mad through fear engendered by President Roosevelt's brain storm. If we prepare decently and mind our own business there is no danger of being enmeshed in Europe's power wars. Somebody must have a guilty conscience to be shrieking about the Hun goblins going to get us. Let Britain fight her own battles—she is not fighting for us.

The Dean Estate

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regarding the article recently published on the development at Temple Heights, there is an error in the statement that former Attorney Mills Dean ever owned or lived on the old Dean estate.

My father bought the property directly from Thomas Morgan about 1876. His name was Edward Clarke Dean and he came from Detroit, where he was formerly with MacMillan & Newberry in the Michigan Car Co. I was born on the Dean estate and know the whole history of the place.

The Post Impressionist

Inaugural

ALTHOUGH a devout Democrat, my Uncle Tim attended the inauguration of William McKinley and Garret A. Hobart in 1897. The Vice-President was from New Jersey so my Garden State relative passed up partisanship to be present. My uncle worked with his hands but, from Geneva to the Golden Gate, I've met few more learned men. We talked by the hour—rather, I listened by the hour—but he never mentioned the '97 inauguration.

A decade ago, while I was abroad, Uncle Tim died. In 1938, from Aunt May came a box of papers and souvenirs. Rightly she knew I'd like to have them, including a police pass for the parade of March 4, 1897, and a copy of the Official Programme of the Inaugural Ceremonies, returned to Washington after more than two score years.

Studiously I read the 96-page booklet and learned that the ball was held in what is now the General Accounting Office. I often walked past the former Pension Office Building in Judiciary Square, gaped at the Civil War frieze skirting the structure, but I never saw the interior till The Sunday Post's Our Town revealed it all to me.

Christine Sadler mentioned the "mammoth Corinthian columns." Under Floral Decorations, Inaugural Ball in the Official Programme I read: "Large Columns.—The eight large columns in center of court will each have massed at the base, golden yellow flowering plants, genistas, acacias, jonquils, tulips, etc., and above these, about 10 feet from the floor, will be placed high graceful growing palms, reaching 20 or 25 feet from the floor, the upper portions of the columns being left bare, except for their own ornamentation."

"In the old Pension goldfish pond" two GAO men were pictured at work in the newspaper section. Was, that, I wonder, what the Programme calls the Fountain, decorated as follows: "In and about the spray a grotto of cork bark and rocks will be built, in which will be growing aquatic plants, ferns, lilies and vines. Around the edge, which will be about 3 feet high, will be blooming plants, palms and ferns."

The music for the ball was by the Twenty-second Regiment Band of the New York National Guard and William A. Haley's Washington Concert Band. Four Victor Herbert compositions were included. Coincidence: the composer was leader of the New York band.

Another of our First Ladies favored blue, according to a fashion note in the old programme. "Mrs. McKinley's favorite color is blue, as is shown by the number of blue gowns in her wardrobe, and it is a color which she has worn from her girlhood. A green cloth gown was one suggested by Mr. McKinley and one which, next to the inauguration gown, he took a special interest in."

Below that is a dentifrice ad and at the bottom of the page this item: "President-elect McKinley's instructions in regard to his inauguration suits are that they be made loose about the arms, so that he may not become fatigued by handshaking." A full-page ad by a Fifth avenue tailor in New York features two photographs—"President William McKinley as he appears in afternoon and evening wear" made by the advertiser. Above each cut is a phrase presumably from campaign speeches: "Confidence Fully Restored" and "The Future Transparent."

About 10 p. m. on March 4, 1897, the reception committee welcomed the President and his party to the ball. The chairman was Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles. The following year the general won fame, while, at Camp Cuba Libre, Jacksonville, Fla., a first lieutenant of the Second Regiment Infantry of New Jersey, was my Uncle Tim.

Why So Slow?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the highway construction work now being done on the Virginia side of the Memorial Bridge, it seems that the public generally and the thousands of Government workers living in Virginia, in particular, who must cross daily over the bridge bottleneck should be entitled to more consideration than is given them.

For several days now a total of ten men have been working on this project. Would it not be possible to use ten men in shifts to get the job done quickly? Is there any logical reason why a large force could not work day and night so that the present congestion could be relieved without undue delay?

Must the common good always be ignored because the dignity of the individual cannot be lowered to the extent of requiring him to work more than a certain number of hours a day? Such coddling of selfish groups appears to be symptomatic of the times. In this connection we could well profit by the experience of France, who also pampered and coddled selfish groups.

Shorter Training

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While I am thoroughly in favor in principle of the conscription of young men, as proposed in the pending legislation, I should like to suggest a four to six months enlistment for training rather than conscription at this time.

The youths of today are intelligent enough to grasp all of the fundamentals required in military training in the time suggested, and if they are put on a four to six months period, twice the number of men could receive this training during the period of one year. Young men in jobs today hesitate to enlist for a full year, whereas it is believed that little difficulty would be encountered in a voluntary six-month enlistment period.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Elwood And Washington

ALL THAT CAN be done by a speech Mr. Willkie has done to keep faith with the men and women who rose up to nominate him—to prove the depth and the sincerity of his love of liberty—to make known again his awareness of the peril and his determination to deal with it—to show himself as he is, a right-minded, tough-minded, competent man fit by temperament, training, and conviction to be the President of the United States. Much depended on that speech. Had Wendell Willkie not been the man his friends believed him to be, had he, like so many other candidates before him, yielded up his convictions under the pressure of timorous advisers, the dangers which beset the Nation from abroad would be multiplied by an even more deadly danger from within.

The American people would have been exposed to a rancorous, ruinous division in which their foreign policy and their national defense would have been emasculated in a partisan conflict. In view of the fact that the destiny of America and of western civilization may be decided during this very election campaign, and not next year when the next Administration takes office, a national campaign such as the Republican Party threatened to conduct would have been a disaster. The nomination of Willkie, a Democrat who had never held office under the Republican Party, was a political miracle. It was a miracle wrought by men and women who knew that a miracle was necessary and had the faith that makes miracles. Their faith that Wendell Willkie would be equal to the occasion has been justified at Elwood in his own confession of faith. As a result, the United States need not be stopped by the election from taking the measures required for its security; the choice offered to the voters is not a choice of aims and of policy but of competence to do what needs to be done.

THIS FUNDAMENTAL question of competence is not, however, going to be determined by speeches or by verbal debate on a public platform. It is going to be determined by the actions of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie. Each of them is going to be subjected at once to a severe practical test which will demonstrate, as no amount of words could possibly do, where on the whole the nation can best afford to place its confidence. For the time is long past when words alone can be accepted as a guaranty of performance. The words will have to be proved by acts and, as it happens, each candidate, separately is now confronted by practical problems which will test him far more deeply than anything he can say in a campaign speech.

FOR MR. ROOSEVELT these problems arise from the fact that in order to achieve the total defense which he has promised the country, he must in an election year reverse in practice a large part, the most demagogic part, of the New Deal. His problem is to remove the obstacles to production which in the ten years of depression under Hoover and of restriction and contraction under the New Deal have caused a deterioration of plant, a shortage of tools, and a deficiency of the skilled workers and managers, that we might otherwise have had, and now have to have, in order to arm rapidly.

For Mr. Willkie the problem arises from the fact that he must reverse the policy of the majority of his own party in Congress both on defense and on foreign policy. For just as Mr. Roosevelt cannot arm the nation by adhering to the ideology of the New Deal, so Mr. Willkie cannot arm the country or make it secure if the majority of his party continue to obstruct the national defense and the indispensable measures of foreign policy.

THE TEST will be presented to Mr. Roosevelt in what he does or does not do, now and long before election, about the restriction of work, the recruiting of apprentices, the formulation of taxes, the removal of obstructive bureaucrats, the improvement of his cabinet, the coordination of defense measures, and the arousing throughout the government and of industry of an energy and a spirit of sacrifice that are not yet there.

To do these things Mr. Roosevelt will have to act. No speeches will be a substitute for acts, and no paper plans and no amount of authorizations, appropriations, charts and blue-prints. Either he will act to remove the obstacles to production, either he will by bold and unpolitical measures step up to an emergency pitch the tempo of production, or he will prove himself to be just another of the democratic ideologues who were fervent in words but in action were too late and did too little.

MR. WILLKIE'S TEST will come over whether as the titular leader of his party he can in fact lead his party in Congress today. Nobody is going to be impressed by Mr. Willkie's speeches if in the absolutely vital matters now before Congress his own party refuses to follow him. Thus Mr. Willkie cannot make speeches advocating conscription and the policy of extending to Great Britain "the material resources of this nation," and expect the people to follow him if his own party does not follow him. He is put to a very severe test, as severe as any to which a candidate has ever been put. But the test arises out of circumstances and it is inescapable. The Republican Party cannot have one policy in Congress and another policy which is the personal policy of its candidate. The party cannot offer the country a national leader for the next four years if in the weeks after he accepts the nomination they reject and repudiate his leadership.

This is the crucial problem of Mr. Willkie's campaign. For it is a fact, and the country knows it or will soon be aware of it, that if elected he will probably have a Republican majority in the House though he cannot have one in the Senate. The chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House will then be Congressman Hamilton Fish, of New York, an irreconcilable opponent of the whole policy declared in the Elwood speech. In the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee Mr. Willkie, as President, will have as his party spokesmen, Senator Johnson, of California, and Senators Capper, La Follette, Vandenberg, and Shipstead. Moreover, it will not be forgotten that the opposition to the sale of arms to the Allies was supported in the House by 19 Republicans and opposed by 141; that his running mate, the Republican leader of the Senate, Mr. McNary, voted against the policies of the Elwood speech, and only as recently as last week voted for the crippling amendment to the National Guard bill.

WHEN WE REALIZE the price we have had to pay in delay, vacillation, and weakness because Mr. Roosevelt frittered away his control of Congress in the fateful winter of 1939, we shall realize how serious would be the prospect if Mr. Willkie were elected with a divided Congress and without achieving a firm controlling leadership of his own party. For that reason it is essential to Mr. Willkie's whole campaign that he should demonstrate at once on the critical issues now before Congress his capacity to lead his own party and that he should show that he can impose upon it the discipline without which party government is unworkable in critical days.

But if Mr. Willkie does prove his leadership by making the Elwood speech the program of his party, then he will indeed be the strong man the nation is looking for. For then, but only then, I think, will all the other things he has pledged himself to do become convincing to a people who can no longer afford to be enchanted by fine words.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Let's Boost Army Pay

SOMETIMES I wonder what would happen to the country if I were not around to offer suggestions out of my inexhaustible ignorance, but it were depressing to dwell on this gloomy, though inevitable, state of affairs, so, with this brief windup, I will sling my high swift and see what you can do with it.

My proposal is that the base pay of the enlisted soldier should be raised to $80 a month, rather than $30, the figure which has been proposed in the current discussion, because, for an army of a million men the cost wouldn't be so very much as we count money nowadays, and there is no department in which an equal amount would produce equal benefits. In the field of economics I am a quarryman rather than a sculptor, dealing in big, coarse figures which persons of more refinement can chisel down to beautiful symmetry and detail.

Using my simple expense-account arithmetic, I estimate that the base pay of an army of a million soldiers at $80 a month would be $720,000,000 a year, only $360,000,000 more than the base pay of the same force at $30 a month. Of course, there would be considerable plusage in the way of extras, but those extras exist now and would carry over, anyway, so they are no part of my problem.

NOW THERE IS sure to be talk about the sordidness of the idea that you cannot buy patriotism, but to that I would answer that regular soldiers, in fact the National Guard and drafters, too, when they are in the Army, cannot escape a sense that they are poor folks on as little as $21 or $30 a month, and are driven to frequent low dumps for their pleasures and to feel a resentment, vague or acute, against civilians and their own estate.

If this new army is to be composed of experts, whether in tinkering with the tripes of a gasoline engine or shooting guns, they should be paid on a scale which will permit them to get around decently in their free time, and, perhaps, lay up a little against the day when they are paid off. It doesn't seem possible to pay them regular A. F. of L. wages for their work, but an additional $360,000,000 or half a billion a year spent for their pay wouldn't break the country, and no two ways about it, money in, kick does boost a man's morale.

WHAT CRUISING radius can a man have on $21 or $30 a month, minus deductions? I am not going to make the mistake of speculating on the sort of pleasures that appeal to the enlisted soldier, who ain't no plaster saint, but I will say that whatever they are, he is compelled to patronize the cheaper marts on the present pay, and won't be able to up his social scale much on an increase of $9 a month, or approximately $2.25 a week. Moreover, the present scale and the prejudice against paying soldiers more than tobacco money above their keep are a hangover from an old concept.

As recently as 1910 police court judges around the country would sentence young bums to join the Army or Navy as an alternative to jail for the purpose of getting them out of town and, although neither service would accept a man under such conditions now, the pay roll still preserves the tradition that in their leisure time they rate no better company than they can find in spots frequented by the town rummies, male and female.

SOLDIERS DON'T have access to the homes of the civilians because, again respecting the old tradition or superstition, the American civilians go for officers almost exclusively. Or am I wrong there? It is my impression that the enlisted soldier, when he goes out, is pretty well restricted to public places, and if that is so, then, obviously, on his pay he can't go in for class.

Meaning no reflection on the quality of the present enlisted force, I suggest that a base pay of $80 a month would overcome the reluctance of men who think of Army life in terms of social inferiority.

In addition to all of which it should be kept in mind that, eventually, by the precedent of the bonus and other bounties, the soldiers are going to get at least $60 a month, anyway. That being so, the best results can be obtained by paying it to them when it is important that they feel that they are not busted guys, but somebodies.

And don't bother to say that money can't buy patriotism. Everybody knows that, but everybody knows, too, that the lack of it makes men droop and shuffle and sulk.

WENDELL WILLKIE

In his speech of acceptance the Republican candidate kept faith with the men and women who rose up to nominate him, says Walter Lippmann in his article today

Things To Come

By Mark Sullivan

Consequences Beyond Duration Of War

SEVERAL RECENT events compose the dimly emerging pattern of things to come. They cast a long shadow before.

One event alone looks to as long a future as man can foresee. When Britain expresses willingness to grant naval bases, in the West Indies and Newfoundland, to the United States, she commits herself permanently to a new and portentous status. She makes it forever impossible for her to threaten or resist the United States. She forecloses forever the possibility of clash of interest with the United States. If she thought the empire could have a future which would ever entail any policy contested by the United States, she would not cede those bases. She commits herself, to a great degree, to conformance with whatever may be the course of the United States in world affairs. To a large extent she shares with the United States, perhaps even confers upon the United States, that primacy in world affairs which has been hers for a century and a half.

The cession of naval bases is not all. Add to that the coming mutual defense pact between the United States and Canada. Add to that the proposal to transfer to Britain certain vessels from our Navy. Add to that the remarkable speech, made by our Ambassador to France, Mr. William C. Bullitt—including his indorsement of the proposal to let Britain have some of our Navy's destroyers. Add to that the acceptance speech of Republican Candidate Willkie, in which he indorsed President Roosevelt's policy of material help to Britain, at least strongly enough to justify Mr. Roosevelt in going on with that policy.

THE SUM of these makes a pattern of cooperation, or at least of parallel pursuit of common purpose, between Britain and the United States. It recognizes that the United States has a vital interest in the survival of Britain against conquest by Germany. It recognizes that help to Britain is help to our defense. It arises out of realization that if Britain prevails, the United States remains safe.

What is now taking place will have consequences beyond the duration of the war. It will extend to what would follow a possible outcome of the war, to what would follow possible conquest of England by Germany.

If England is conquered, it does not at all follow that the British Empire ceases to exist. Canada, Australia and other portions of the empire would remain, and would have an empire entity. There would still be a British Empire. With England in Germany's hands, the seat of empire would move across the Atlantic, presumably to Canada. Probably many of the symbols and forms of empire unity would move to Canada. The British fleet, or so much of it as could be saved from German hands, would come to the Western Hemisphere. Here, under the conditions that would then exist, the fleet would be valued for the help it could give us, while our own fleet is still building; it would be valued for the common defense of ourselves and Canada, to which we are about to commit ourselves. The naval bases which the British fleet would occupy would probably be our own—Canada does not have bases and facilities sufficient to accommodate the British fleet. Those bases Britain is about to cede to us in the West Indies would in time become common bases for our fleet and the British.

It is not merely the material symbols of the British Empire that would come to the Western Hemisphere. There would come also, and primarily, that which the symbols symbolize. There would come the ideal of free government for free men. There would come that body of law and tradition which is the common heritage of Britain, of the commonwealths of Canada, Australia and other British dominions, and of the United States. If England were conquered, these ideas, this system, would seek a home, a capital, in the Western Hemisphere. The physical capital, the seat of the symbols, would probably be Canada. But defense of the ideas would be shared by the United States.

IT WOULD be futile to attempt anything more than an outline of what form the picture would take if England were conquered. But the broad outline is recognizable. One half the world, the whole Eastern Hemisphere, from the outer shores of the islands of Japan, all the way across Asia, all the way across Europe, to the western shores of the British Isles, and including Africa—all that half of the world would be totalitarian. Free government would be confined to the Western Hemisphere, there defended by the United States and what would remain of the British Empire.

What is said here about the significance of events during the past few days does not depend upon knowledge of what is in the minds of individual men. It is the inevitable fruit of the forces set in motion by the war and the course the war has taken. As totalitarian government moves westward, free government falls back toward the Western Hemisphere. The rest follow. The present steps being taken by President Roosevelt, the support of his policy in the main by Mr. Willkie, and the other recent events, are merely the immediate reactions of responsible men to an immediate situation.

Wallace Resignation

Text Of His Letter; President's Reply

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Here are the texts of Secretary Wallace's letter of resignation and President Roosevelt's letter of acceptance:

August 15, 1940.

The President,
The White House.

Dear Mr. President:

I am tendering you herewith my resignation to take effect on September 5, 1940, the day on which I shall probably begin active campaigning. I look forward gladly to the rare opportunity I shall have to discuss with the American people the matters in which you and I are so profoundly interested and which are of such grave importance to the country.

I believe thoroughly in your unique capacities to lead the American people in these troublous times when experience and wisdom are so essential. Therefore, I approach the work of the campaign with eagerness.

Although this represents only a change in our relationship, I can't write this letter without expressing to you my deep gratitude for the extraordinary experience of the past eight years. The opportunity to work on so broad a front under your leadership in times of extraordinary national need has been immensely satisfying.

To have had in the Department of Agriculture the material of fine personnel, excellent traditions and technical preparation, and to be able to use all this equipment, all the services of this able personnel, because of your support, in the development of the really enormous action programs for the benefit of agriculture, has been an opportunity and an experience that could come only once in a millennium.

Now I am looking forward to another period, another opportunity of even greater significance.

Sincerely yours,
H. A. WALLACE, Secretary.

President's Reply

Aboard the President's Train.
August 17, 1940.

Dear Henry:

In different circumstances I should have regret in consenting to your withdrawal as Secretary of Agriculture. But, giving due weight to the consideration that the step you are impelled to take represents rather a change in relations than a severance of close ties, I have no alternative.

Therefore, in accordance with the terms of your letter of August 15, I accept your resignation effective at the close of business on September 5, 1940.

You and I are content to leave determination of the issues in the campaign this year to the calm judgment of the voters. Under our form of government there is no higher arbitrament than the bar of public opinion.

I am delighted that you are to be freed of all official duties so that you can devote your time and talents exclusively to an interpretation of your agricultural program to the American people.

You found agriculture prostrate in March, 1933; the vicious wheel had turned full circle when you came to the rescue. Markets had been ruined; purchasing value was gone; the farmer was penniless, foreclosures and tax sales had done the rest.

The farmers of the country are not likely to forget this. Their minds are seared with bitter memories of official neglect and official incompetence which brought them and the Nation to disaster.

I know, and the farmers of the Nation likewise have, knowledge of the deliberation, true wisdom and statesmanship which have gone into the formulation of your agricultural program.

I know and they know that bankruptcy, ruin, despair and disaster, which had been their previous portion through long years of neglect and incompetence at Washington, gave way under your guiding hand to a greater prosperity, security and, above all else, to a return to self-respect and sane thinking.

Although you have devoted years to the study of our agricultural problems and brought rich experience to their solution, yours has not been a narrow specialization. You have been able to view the problem of the farmer in its relation to other problems—economic, industrial and international.

You have adhered without deviation to the settled processes of democracy. You and I remain unshaken in our faith in those processes and in the efficacy of the policy of the good neighbor in the field of foreign affairs. Your habit of thought has enabled you always to see with singular clarity the needs of the country as a whole.

I think it particularly fortunate that throughout the weeks of the autumn you are to be free and unhampered to go about at will. This will give you an excellent opportunity in public addresses, and through conferences with groups and individuals, to discuss the work you have been doing in behalf of agriculture.

Such a presentation will be of benefit alike to the farmers, and to the rank and file of the citizens. With them rests judgment as to the work you have been doing during the past seven years and more in behalf of agriculture and in behalf of the Nation.

Very sincerely yours,
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

U. S. Fliers Aid British

50 Enlist Weekly

New York, Aug. 19.—An average of 25 American pilots per week are going to Canada to serve as instructors in the Royal Canadian Air Force or to enlist in the British Royal Air Force for active combat duty, it was learned today.

An additional 20 or 25 are being engaged each week to ferry American-built planes from assembly points in the British Isles to military flying fields.

The pilots, each with several hundred hours of flying experience, make arrangements for the trip to Canada through two flight information centers, operated unofficially by the Canadian government, at the Waldorf-Astoria and the Murray Hill Hotel. Those enlisting in the air force receive commissions as pilot officers or flying officer, the equivalent of second or first lieutenant in the United States Army, and those engaged for ferrying duties sign a contract for one year's service at a salary of $150 per week, plus a $500 bonus at the end of the year.

A group of nine American pilots left New York today for Canada, where they will be assigned to the R. C. A. F. for dispatch to England. Between the ages of 32 and 35, all had at least 500 hours of flying experience.

The pilots seeking to serve under the British flag have come from every section of the United States. Before being accepted, they are investigated by representatives of the Flight Information Service, which has branch offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Dallas. Only a small percentage of the hundreds who have applied in recent weeks have been approved.

The information service at the Waldorf-Astoria, which is run by Clayton Knight, American artist and World War ace, assists in the enlistment of aviators in the Royal Air Force. Capt. Boyd, Canadian trans-Atlantic flyer, directs the service at the Murray Hill Hotel, which arranges for pilots to ferry planes in England.

Since the intensification of the German aerial warfare on Britain, the centers have been swamped with applicants, some boys in their teens and some veterans of the last war. Many of those incapable of active flying duty have pleaded to be engaged in any capacity, and one old-time pilot, after being rejected, offered to give his plane to England

Bomber Crashes, Seaman Is Killed

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 19 (AP).—F. K. Baker, 21, seaman from Chillicothe, Mo., was killed today as a dive bomber in which he was flying with Lieut. Grafton B. Campbell, 28, of enearby Coronado, crashed in flames northeeast of here.

Lieut. Campbell, who bailed out at 500 feet, received severe contusions.

Bund Alliance Seen After Klan's Nordland Rally

Andover, N. J., Aug. 19 (AP).—An out-in-the-open flareup among elements of the German-American Bund and welding of a sympathy relationship between the bund and the Ku Klux Klan appeared today to be the fruits of a Klan "Americanization" rally at the bund's Camp Nordland here.

The rally was disrupted yesterday when six men began distributing a pamphlet entitled "An Appeal to Friends of Fritz Kuhn." Kuhn, former national leader of the bund, is serving a prison term for misuse of organization funds.

The six were arrested and later fined $10 each on disorderly conduct charges. Two of the six then pressed assault and battery charges against August Klapprott, camp manager, and two other bund leaders.

The pamphlet incident came midway in the rally for which the New Jersey Klan had rented the camp from the bund. Earlier, Klapprott extended a welcome to "the antiwar, pro-Americans who had the courage to attend this rally."

Benson, Former D. C. Editor, Dies

Yonkers, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—Allan L. Benson, 68, Socialist candidate for President of the United States in 1916, died today of coronary thrombosis. He resigned from the Socialist Party in 1918.

Owsley Would Close All Nazi Consulates

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 19 (AP).—Alvin M. Owsley, of Dallas, Tex., former commander of the American Legion, toight advocated the "closing of every German consulate in the country . . . until the Nazi government stops using them as headquarters for spies and for the dissemination of propagada."

'The Sea Hawk' Poised To Swoop Upon Us Again

Errol Flynn New Star of Sabatini Thriller; A Visiting Film Star Pays a Friendly Call; This, That and the Other About the Theater

BELL

ALTHOUGH NEVER A "BIG" STORY, in the voluminous sense that "Anthony Adverse" and "Gone With the Wind" were fictions of formidable dimensions, Rafael Sabatini's swashbuckling adventure tale of "The Sea Hawk," nevertheless, seems destined always to be made into a big picture.

When First National first filmed this subject, with the late Milton Sills as star, back in the silent era of the motion picture, it was one of the imposing spectacles of its day—a violent, thunderous, pulse-quickening "epic" that lashed capacity audiences into high excitement. In its new manifestation—also engineered by the Warner Brothers, inheritors of First National—"The Sea Hawk" seemingly is a saga of redoubled tumult and fury. It will provide few placid moments for those who attend the Earle, beginning Friday.

It is in only a few minor respects that the action of the original picture has been altered in the new version. Those hapless galley slaves, shackled to their back-breaking oars, find new methods of negotiating their escape and in one or two other vague instances means, but not the ends they seek, have been trivially readjusted without in any sense changing the tight grip this heroic yarn of the pirate main exerts over its spectators.

Errol Flynn and Brenda Marshall, bracketed in the costellar billing, have been surrounded by a lusty band of players. Incongruous as it may sound, Alan Hale succeeds to the role created in the original production by Wallace Beery. The only thing that these two have in common is that each invariably gives a fine performance. But listen to some of the others who are among those present: Claude Rains, Donald Crisp, Flora Robson, Henry Daniell, Una O'Connor, James Stephenson, Gilbert Roland, Montagu Love, J. M. Kerrigan, David Bruce, Fritz Leiber, Clyde Cook, Francis McDonald, Pedro de Cordoba, Ian Keith, Halliwell Hobbes, Robert Warwick and the Capital's old friend, Clifford Brooke, the same "Brookie" who so long was director of Stephen E. Cochran's National Theater Players. A cast like that could make a far less impressive melodrama than "The Sea Hawk" seem great.

When the Hilltop Theater, Ellicott City, Md., presents Francis Swann's new play, "Out of the Frying Pan," a week from tonight, its pre-Broadway tryout will be "scouted" by E. Henry Lewis, of the William Morris Agency, Inc., of New York and Hollywood. Mr. Lewis will fly down from New York to give the piece the dog-eye. Big time agents don't go out on what they deem "Swann songs," or even "Swann dives." Best wishes, and stuff and things.

A few years ago, the picturization of H. G. Wells' "Things to Come," in which Raymond Massey was star, was considered utterly fantastic. It treated of strange methods of warfare, unbelievable invasions, the reconstruction of a troubled world into a strange Utopia, and so on, etcetera, ad lib. In the light of current world developments, "Things to Come" today might not appear quite so preposterously imaginative. So Henry Hiser is reviving it at his Hiser Theater, in Bethesda, Md., on Thursday and Friday of this week, just to find out how you feel about it.

A drab and sticky Monday afternoon was brightened by a visit to the drama desk by Laraine Day, the briefly touring Hollywood star, so pleasantly remembered for her fine portrayal of the role of Maeve in Edward Small's film version of Howard Spring's novel of "My Son, My Son."

As has been reported here on an earlier occasion, Miss Day is making her first inspection of the East and, in a scant 48 hours of hurried observation, has found Washington greatly to her liking. She has been strictly a tourist on this trip, not an actress. In fact, the charming and gracious Miss Day is one of those rare celebrities from the film colony who sheds all of the usual habiliments of the "actress" when away from the studio lots and locations. She is an unaffected, interesting and interested guest in a part of the country she never has visited before and, quite obviously, is having the time of her life. Her stay here, of course, has been all too short—both from her own standpoint and that of all who have been privileged to meet her.

Accompanied by John LeRoy Johnston, of the Walter Wanger productions, Miss Day left Washington late yesterday to continue her Eastern seaboard ramblings. Her next screen appearance will be in the leading feminine role, opposite Joel McCrea, in Mr. Wanger's purported filmization of Vincent Sheean's "Personal History," to be released under the title of "Foreign Correspondent." That was her reward for her splendid work in "My Son, My Son."

The astute Mr. Wanger, incidentally, encountered so much difficulty in keeping "Personal History" abreast of the times in Europe that he finally scrapped the whole thing—including the title—and turned Director Alfred Hitchcock, who made "Rebecca," loose on an entirely new story. To that extent, at least, the blitzkrieg already has reached America!

Chills-and-Fever Note

A Swashbuckler Musters His Naval Strength

A PICTURESQUE SCENE FROM "THE SEA HAWK," the new picturization of the Sabatini novel, which Warner Brothers will bring to the screen at the Earle Theater for the week beginning Friday. Errol Flynn appears in the title role, succeeding to the part created in the old silent days by the late Milton Sills. He is surrounded by what might be described as a "Bette Davis cast"

'The Virginian' Revived by the Roadsiders

By Richard L. Coe

Tempus fidgets, you'll find in the Roadside's revival of Owen Wister's 1903 whiz, "The Virginian," but it doesn't fidget enough to make this one of the Roadside's super-super-ain't-it-a-howl-Mabel classics. Nonetheless, it has sufficient fresh-air derry-do to make a man forget that (censored here at point of origin) Hitler person, worthy barter for anyone's money.

As a "heavy" whose voice is deeper than Chaliapin's, Harold Stepler scores another bull's eye for Roadside's unsurpassable villainy department. His Trampas, swarthy, black-garbed, is a true badman of what is so charmingly referred to as "The Old West." No fine manners and city ways for him; he spits on the floor, is overtly nasty to the ladies, behaves like an un-Hayseed Wallace Beery. Altogether, a worthy piece of acting.

You couldn't call him "bad," though, for his treatment of the ladies, if all his female acquaintances were like the heroine of this opus. As my charming and authoritative theater partner declared, "The Virginian's" lady is such a maddening prig she received what our times would deem proper treatment and just reward for her stubborn snobbery.

Romney Also Scores

For the essential trouble with "The Virginian" is that it's not quite old enough to cause a panic and is so near to your neighborhood Saturday night film bill to be embarrassing. Every once in a while you get worried about poor old Steve, who deserves the death he's going to get. Then along comes that simple heroine whose coyness makes you want to kick her and you forget Kenn Romney's Steve to laugh at Miss Hall's Molly.

You very likely remember "The Virginian," from Mr. Wister's book or from one of the several films adapted from it, the latest of which appeared in 1929 with Gary Cooper in the lead. The story has to do with cattle-rustling in Wyoming.

Richard Kreuzberg has the title role, complete to an accent that out on the Maryland pike passes for Virginian. Kenn Romney plays his sad Steve straight and is darn good at it. Lansing Hall's heroine we've mentioned, while Jean Miller is a breath of the city as Mrs. Ogden. Maccubbin Waters, pompous as Judge Henry, sounds as though he still has "The Frog" in his throat. Natalie Core has tossed off the robes of villainy to be a valiant mother of twins.

Don Jones' settings deserve a hand, especially that fine tree in Act II. Miss Croissant's costumes are impeccable as ever and Mr. Fowler's direction brought a pace that is rare to first nights.

The New Yorker

(Sammy Kaye, the swing and sway bandleader, takes over today for Leonard Lyons who is on vacation.)

KAYE

I HAVE for some time nursed the idea that if I were able to smoke Leonard Lyons out of his den and pack him along with us on one of our road tours, he'd come back with a saga about the last outpost of adventure. For excitement, danger of the home-grown type, adventure that stops short of the jungle variety, and sudden mishap, there's nothing like a road tour. Not even one of Leonard's safari's through the night clubs in darkest 52d Street.

ONCE, TRAVELING through the mountains outside Pittsburgh, our bus stripped its gears on a hill. We started rolling down and might have kept rolling except that sharp curves made it impossible to tell whether we'd meet other cars going up. Our driver quickly turned the wheel and we settled down in a shallow ditch. The heavily-loaded bus resembled nothing more than a hippo on its knees.

THE DRIVER and I hiked over to the nearest village to telephone the Pitsburgh bus office and when we came out of the general store, most of the villagers were gathered. Seeing them gave me an idea. We had to get to Pitsburgh that night for a dance date, so I got up and anounced that I wanted to hire cars at $5 apiece. We got to Pittsburgh via five cars, one truck and two trailers for the instruments.

THAT'S THE SORT of thing bandleaders on tour must always expect, if not look forward to. Touring is by no means the pleasantest sort of existence. It's hazardous, it's strenuous, and it's exhausting.

PERHAPS syndicated columnists might also go out on the road to meet their readers face to face, just as we bandleaders meet our fans. I can tell you, there's no better way to learn just what they like about your music and what they'd like to hear less of. You also get a cross-section of the Nation's musical taste.

Nothing, short of handing out cigars and kissing babies, helps to build up a following so much as a road tour. Radio is an excellent medium for expanding your audience, but it's when you meet the fans in person that you consolidate your following.

OCCASIONALLY we have to make a long jump where no train connections are available without a stopover. This calls for the bus again. Last season we practically lived on the bus for more than 48 hours. That meant we had to eat, sleep, change our clothes, and even shave en route. The boys of course began to get restless. Just outside a town I caught sight of a baseball diamond. I asked the driver to pull up, called the musicians out and organized a softball game with the equipment we carry. We played for a half-hour, then continued onward, feeling much better for the exercise.

Speed is essential during a road tour. When we are booked for a certain night, our contract calls for us to be there at the stipulated hour or forfeit the engagement money.

SEVERAL TIMES, driving through wintry nights, we've been snowed in. Once we skidded on an ice-covered road into a snow-drift and had to hack our way out. But it was so cold outside that we were forced back into the bus where, to keep from freezing to death, we had to start a bonfire in one of the metal seat-beds. I used up my entire supply of batons to get the fire started.

On another occasion, we barely missed being run down by a freight train which suddenly appeared around a bend as we were crossing the tracks. It was so close, the train sliced the rear bumper off the bus. Three hours later we were giving out with swing and sway music as though nothing had happened. I still don't know how we did it.

THERE ARE A MULTITUDE of other problems that take the glamour out of road touring. Instruments have a facility for going astray. Some of the boys, no matter how careful we try to be, may become ill or even injured. Reservations have to be made at hotels. The bandstands have to be set up with special amplifier equipment and we must be okayed by an assortment of local union heads before we can play a single note. The uniform or tuxedoes are always in need of a tailor's attention just when the tailor is not around. We often run into flood areas. Two seasons ago we had to desert the bus for rowboats.

In short, anything may happen—and usually does. But we still go out on the road. I guess, Leonard, we just like it.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Aug. 19.

"Lucky Partners," starring Ronnie Colman and Ginger Rogers, looked to me as though the first half of it was bogged down by censorship. After that, it was hilariously funny. Even though the story was thin and the situation delicate, they might have trusted Ronnie and Ginger to do right by censorable situations, which concerned their going off to spend a platonic honeymoon at Niagara Falls after winning a sweepstakes ticket. Then Ginger was supposed to come back and marry the man of her choice, who was, incidentally, Jack Carson. But But why Ginger goes out of her way to make herself look unattractive is beyond me.

Her black hair is unbecoming enough, but to make matter worse, she does it in a skin tight roll all around her head like a thick sausage. On the other hand, Ronnie never photographed better.

Dan's now married to Sonja Henie, and Arline, if she hasn't already done it, it about to marry Huntington Hartford, who was the husband of the present Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, jr. U. S. Vessel Halted Off Almazan State interests of the United States as well as Mexico," in view of the possibility that the vessel might have carried "suspicious" cargo.

The area is virtually a desert beach, with many coves and inlets where a ship might land arms secretly. It was said authoritatively that to be going to Panama the ship was unusually close to shore, since the regular route would put it about 70 miles at sea.

Destroyer Sent by U. S.

[At San Francisco a United States destroyer was reported to be on the way south to investigate. The destroyer apparently was sent out before the word came that the freighter had been released.

[In Washington the State Department said it had made inquiries of the Mexican government regarding the incident.]

Foreign Minister Eduardo Hay told the United States Embassy the ship was inside Mexican territorial waters and was detained only briefly for an explanation.

Before the detention of the Frasch was confirmed, Commander Manuel Trujillo, chief of the navy general staff, issued a categorical denial of the incident. He said that it would be "unthinkable" for a Mexican warship to halt any vessel of the United States because it would be in violation of international maritime law.

Sources within the navy department disclosed, nevertheless, that since 11 o'clock this morning the naval station at Acapulco, base for most of Mexico's coast guard ships, had been under orders to "keep extreme vigilance" over neighboring waters and to make radio reports to the staff headquarters every hour instead of twice daily, as usually required. The chief of staff denied that any "unusual" orders had been issued.

Soon after news of the search for Gen. Almazan aboard the Frasch reached Mexico City it was reported that two more Mexican army generals, friendly with the oppositionist leader, had been arrested and were being held incommunicado. They were said to be Gen. Jacinto Trevino and Gen. Jose Mijares Palencia, both on furlough since the start of the presidential campaign.

Gen. Domingo Ramirez Garrido and Alfredo Lezama, intimates of Gen. Almazan, were seized Saturday night at Acapulco. They also were being held incommunicado, and the army general staff refused to make known the charges against them.

Hitler Aims to Conquer U. S., Says Australian Woman Here

Mme. Lauri Alwyn, Who Had Instructor's Post in Germany, Says She Was Told Nazi Agents Hold Key Jobs in Public Utilities

Mme. Lauri Alwyn, an Australian woman who went to Germany in recent years to instruct German women in a maternity-health system, is convinced the Nazis cardinal aim is the subjugation of the United States.

England, Mme. Alwyn thinks, is a secondary consideration to Hitler, despite the current developments. While in Germany she was told, by persons she considered competent to know, that Hitler wants mostly the vast resources of this country.

Hitler thinks, she was informed, that the United States is great but, alas, occupied by the wrong people. She was led to believe there that Nazi agents are posted in key jobs in public utilities, even in the small flour mills of the United States. Her sources of information said these agents could take the dynamics out of America with one turn of their hands, and easily because "Americans are soft."

Mme. Alwyn, with her daughter, Eve, and son, Larry, are staying at the Wardman Park Hotel. They came here from Capetown, South Africa, a region infested with Nazi activities, they said. However, they do not think England will lose.

said, in the highest authoritative quarters.

(The negotiations, for the over-age destroyers, it was stated, would be independent of the British navy's request for 50 over-age American destroyers.

(The Canadian navy, officials pointed out, already has enough trained officers and crews to man the desired destroyers as quickly as they can be delivered.)

Whatever the arrangement, apparently, President Roosevelt does not consider that the Senate will be required to pass upon the agreement. This was indicated yesterday when Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said at his press conference that, speaking only personally, he considered that it is entirely within the province of the President as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces.

Undertaken for hemispherical defense, it is already being referred to in diplomatic circles as in essence a defensive alliance.

Welles appeared anxious to reassure the Latin-American countries concerning the scope of the negotiations with Great Britain for the acquisition by the United States of naval and air bases in the Western Hemisphere. He said the United States will keep all the American republics continuously and constantly and fully informed over every detail that is discussed by this Government.

Acts to Effect Pact

Copyright, The New York Times.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 19.—President Roosevelt moved quickly today to make the United States and Canada effective allies as far as defense of the Western Hemisphere is concerned, in accordance with the informal agreement he made yesterday with Prime Minister Mackenzie King at a meeting near Ogdensburg.

In long telephone conversations with Washington, he sought the advice of officials in the State, War and Navy departments as to personnel who will constitute the United Statees half of a permanent joint board of defense.

The President hopes to announce this personnel by Thursday, and expects the board to hold its first meeting early next month. The board will, in the President's words, "commence immediately, studies relating to sea, land and air problems, including personnel and materiel," with specific reference to defense of the northern half of the Western Hemisphere.

Its operations will come within the scope of the Monroe Doctrine, order which the United States is determined to maintain the status quo of North and South America against interference from abroad, but this action creates a vital new precedent, particularly in the fact that it was undertaken between the United States, at peace, and a belligerent power.

No indication was given as to the personnel who will represent the United States on the board, but these members obviously will consist of high-ranking officials, including spokesmen for the general staff of the Army and for the operations division of the Navy.

GermansPause, Check Results Of Bombings

Flights Over England Limited to Scouting, Spotting of Targets

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Germany's air fleets took a semiholiday in the air war against England today, sending over the English Channel only minor forces of scouts to check results of more than a week of mass assaults and, apparently, to spot fresh targets.

What the Germans called "armed reconnaissance" today was a far cry from the raids by hundreds of planes which began August 3, but it came amid indications that Germany is readying her armed might for the blow which the Nazis hope will knock out England and end the war.

There were indications that the huge assault might come this week.

Reprisals Threatened

Just as he had warned during the invasion of the Lowlands and France, Adolf Hitler informed Great Britain, through Swiss diplomatic channels, that the British must treat his parachute troops according to international law or he would visit reprisals upon British aviators in German prison camps.

Another intimation that a great attempt against England is in the wind was this expression by authoritative spokesmen:

"Just give us three days of good weather."

33 Balloons Shot Down

The Reich summarized yesterday's successes as 147 British planes destroyed and 33 barrage balloons shot down. German losses were put at 36.

Today's scattered skirmishes brought down only two British planes, D.N.B., official German news agency, said.

The Hitler warning on parachute troops asserted it would violate international law for civilians to kill these forces, but said they might be captured and held for the army.

Germany said English forces need not wear regular British uniforms to be classed among the regular army troops but they must have some identifying marks, such as arm bands.

British Raid Arms Plants

The high command pronounced British night raids against Germany ineffective.

(However, reports from Switzerland, across Lake Constance from Germany, said the British last night raided armament plants along Lake Constance and scored hits on a big German aluminum plant, causing fires.)

D. N. B. said a British bomb attack on Brussels last night resulted i the death of a number of civilians, including women and children.

Three Brothers, Sister to Share In Hall Estate

Three brothers and a sister will share the $93,485 estate of the late Percy Hall, retired businessman of Arlington, Va.

Mr. Hall died July 24, leaving real estate in Arlington County and personal property in Washington valued at $93,485. Attorney Joseph L. McGroary filed a petition for ancillary letters of administration in the District Court yesterday.

Mr. Hall's will gave his property to his sister, Mrs. Eleanor Duxbury, Stockport, England, and his brothers, Charles Hall, Stockport, England; William H. Hall, Arlington, Mass., and Arthur H. Hall, Arlington, N. J.

British Take Offensive in Aerial War

by demolition bombs of the heaviest sort.

Following one such flash, a huge fire flared up, blazing for so long that observers in England were sure an ammunition dump must have been destroyed.

From the seafront of a harbor town (apparently Dover), observers said the French shore seemed to be lit by repeated sheets of "heat lightning."

Shells Stab Heavens

Antiaircraft shells and tracer bullets stabbed up into the clouded heavens like Roman candles.

So high was the visibility that watchers could see not only the rays of the German searchlights but also the glowing faces of the lights as they revolved, trying to pin the R.A.F. planes to the sky for ground gunners.

For several seconds the beams criss-crossed the sky in a moving pattern before the antiaircraft batteries opened up.

The air ministry enumerated as targets of British Sunday night raiders. Italian aircraft factories at Milan and Turin, German aluminum and chemical works, the French Channel port of Boulogne and German airdromes at Freiburg and Hamsheim, near Mulhouse.

Zeppelin Plant Hit

(An Italian communique acknowledged Royal Air Force bombardment also of Cuneo, but said the British had scored no significant military blow. Observers in Switzerland, across from the German frontier, reported hits on one of Germany's biggest aluminum factories and on German armament plants including the Friedrichshafen Zeppelin works.)

Sporadic German attacks on Royal Air Force airdromes admittedly caused "a number of casualties" yesterday and a high flying bomber caused others, some fatal, in an attack on a southeast coast town last night, the second of the day in that area.

First reports of the German raids today listed death of three civilians and injury of a number of others in East Anglia when a bomb demolished the corner of a smithy. A high-flying plane over northwest England started fires with three incendiary bombs, but they were soon extinguished.

Four Nazi bombers were reported shot down, but up to evening there had been only these isolated forays.

Bombs Drop on Beach

After dark, however, the drone of motors high overhead indicated the presence of enemy planes. They were heard over towns in the northeast, southeast and Wales. A fifth German bomber was shot down after a diving attack in which it dropped four bombs on a south coast beach.

The ministry of home security called its order to make all Britain a defense area merely a "precautionary measure" involving no new infringement on Briton's liberties.

However, it makes them liable at any moment to "any measures which might become urgently necessary through enemy landings by air or sea to be introduced without delay in any part of the country in which they are required."

Churchill to Speak Today

Previously, such regulations had applied only in a 20-mile deep strip of seaboard from the Scottish border to the southern English coast.

An insight to the British diplomatic front was expected in the House of Commons today when Winston Churchill makes his first full public review of British foreign relations since becoming prime minister.

American-British talks regarding acquisition by the United States of defense bases on British soil in the Western Hemisphere and former President Hoover's suggestion that the British blockade be opened for food for German-occupied continental nations will be among his topics, it was believed.

Rep. Keller's Wife Dies in Boston; Rites in Illinois

Mrs. Kent E. Keller, wife of the Illinois Congressman, died yesterday in a Boston sanitorium after recurrence of an old illness.

Representative Keller rushed to her side Saturday, when she was taken to Boston from her Ava (Ill.) home. An invalid for almost 20 years, Mrs. Keller returned to Ava from Washington last March.

She was a native of Carbondale, Ill., and was educated at the Southern Illinois Normal University at Carbondale. A talented pianist, she performed on the concert stage for many years and composed many songs. Her illness interrupted her career as a composer, but last spring, after attempting no compositions for 15 years, she wrote "The March of the New Era," which was performed by the Marine Band in April.

The former Olive Robinson, Mrs. Keller lived in Washington with her husband during most of his ten-year term in the House. They lived at the Dodge Hotel. Funeral services will be Thursday or Friday in Ava, the Congressman's aides said yesterday.

COAST GUARD CUTTER HAMILTON AT NAVY YARD

327-foot cutter Hamilton, tied up at the Navy Yard here at 12:30 p. m. yesterday on a "routine visit."

The long spotless white ship, with three guns forward, came here from Norfolk, Va., to take Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, Coast Guard commandant, on an inspection trip to Baltimore and Curtis Bay.

No one was permitted aboard the vessel. The Hamilton, it was said, has been stationed in this vicinity.

Defense Jobs Await Trainees Now in Vocational Classes

Jobs will be waiting for most of the 550 men now learning trades or improving their skills in vocational classes that started July 22 in five Washington public schools.

This was revealed yesterday by officials who inspected work in progress under sponsorship of the Board of Education and the U. S. Office of Education, as part of the national defense program.

L. J. Cantrell, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of vocational education, conducted Dr. John C. Wright, assistant commissioner of education, and a group of other observers through the shops. They visited Abbot Vocational School, McKinley High School, and Phelps Vocational, where the men are at work. Other classes for white men, beside those at Abbot and McKinley, are conducted at Chamberlain Vocational School and, for colored in addition to Phelps, at Armstrong High School.

The present classes, covering a six-week period, will be followed by night trade extension courses and classes for apprentices. These will be conducted from 5 to 9 p. m. by members of the regular school faculties who are serving now as instructors for the initial course. As soon as a man completes the training he is ready for employment. Last week 20 went into jobs. There is no time set for completing the course. The worker goes from one phase of the process to another until he has mastered the whole.

Only trades essential to the defense program are included. Among them are sheet metal, automotive training, electrical work, aircraft ground mechanics, millwork, welding and die making.

Plans, subject to the approval of the board of education, are now under way for an eight-hour night course from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. to be inaugurated in the fall. This will be started under the $15,000,000 already appropriated for this part of the national defense program and would be continued beyond midwinter under the additional $48,000,000 that has been asked for. Instructors outside of the regular school faculties will be required for the night school. There are now 12 employed in the white schools and 15 in the colored for the special courses.

With Dr. Wright on the inspection trip were L. S. Hawkins, chief of trades and industrial education, U. S. Office of Education, who is in direct charge of the national program; William D. Boutwell, chief of the information service, for the Office of Education, and Maj. N. A. Burnell, of the War Department.

War Styles in Ships—In November construction will start on the largest vessels ever built in U. S. shipyards. They will be liners easily converted into warships. The design on right was originally accepted by the Maritime Commission, but sudden change in the European situation led to the design of a ship (left) which may be changed quickly into an antiaircraft carrier. Note the spacious top deck and how smokestacks are placed far to one side. This latter craft will be 760 feet long, displace 41,000 tons, have a commercial speed of 24 knots and a secret top speed much higher

ACTION which united in one body the three divisions of the Methodist Church has brought about a unity in the denomination which is now being manifest in the reorganization of the women's groups. All of the women's organizations are now being merged in the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church.

The new society will include all women within the church who make any contribution whatever to its work. No stated dues will be required. The government will be entirely democratic, each church planning its program in accordance with its individual need, and the three-fold purpose of the organization to be Christians at home, Christians abroad and Christians in the church."

The women's home and foreign missionary societies and the guilds, whose purpose it was to raise money for church repairs and other needs of that kind, will all be included in the new society. Their activities will now be carried on as departments headed by chairmen under one president and staff of executive officers.

The plan is expected to extend as well as unify the service of the Methodist women within the church. It is also designed to eliminate, both in individual churches and nationally, duplication of effort and any sense of rivalry which might grow up between the different groups. In this city the women of the various Methodist churches will select their officers and adopt by-laws preliminary to a joint meeting of representatives of all the reorganized societies, at which State officers for the District will be chosen.

The charter meeting services for both Calvary Methodist and Foundry Methodist have been set for September 22. Dates of services in the other churches have not yet been announced but all expect to have them in time so activities can begin in the early autumn, under the new plan.

FAREWELL PARTY—The Greensboro College Alumnae Association will entertain tonight with a farewell party honoring Mrs. W. Lloyd Horn and her daughters, Celeste and Lucile, at the home of Miss Ethel Herring, 1750 Sixteenth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Horn and their daughters are moving to Birmingham, Ala., where Mr. Horn will be in business.

Mrs. Horn attended Greensboro College, Greensboro, N. C. Lucile was graduated there in 1939 and Celeste will be graduated next spring.

OUT WEST—A card from Rose Robinson Cohen, of the Soroptimist Club and the League of American Pen Women, says she is having "a rip-snortin' time out in the wide open spaces among the cowboys and Indians"—but I was disappointed. The card didn't have any cowboys' pictures on it. It showed Ardmore Mountain Lake, near Ardmore, Okla., and not even a longhorn steer out wading.

TENT MEETS—Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent, Daughters of the Union Veterans of the Civil War, met last night at 2015 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Plans were made for the birthday party to be given on Monday, September 16, for all members who have had birthdays since March, and Mrs. May Parker will be general chairman of all arrangements. The tent also voted to present a gift for the national president, Mrs. Bertha May Droz. Final plans were made for members to attend the national convention to be held in Springfield, Ill., September 8-12.

Among those who will attend are Mrs. Amelia A. Yoder, delegate; Mrs. Alice Roberts Koch, alternate; Miss Jessie M. Lewis, tent president; Mrs. Anna Hage McElroy, past national press correspondent and member of the national press committee; Mrs. Hester Warner, Miss Nan Thurber and Mrs. Kathryn C. Rahn.

Mrs. Lizzie Bassett, national council member, and Miss Grace Hurd, national treasurer and member of the national registration committee, both of Washington, D. C., will also attend.

State Athletic Board Pays $1,907 to Towns

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—The State paid back to the various localities $1,907.44 from revenue collected by the boxing and wrestling commission during the fiscal year ended July 1, officials said today.

The largest amount, $883.89, went to Norfolk. Richmond received $612.04, and Roanoke, $207.

Couple Drowned In Virginia Creek

Narrows, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—Carl Morrissette, about 23, Armour & Co. salesman, of Bluefield, W. Va., and Miss Jean Perry, about 18, also of Bluefield, were drowned Saturday night in Wolf Creek, 17 miles from Narrows in Bland County. The girl's body was recovered at 10 a. m. Sunday. Search for the body of Morrissette continued today.

The couple were on a swimming party and it is reported here they were caught in a whirlpool in the flood waters of Wolf Creek.

ing funds for starting construction of a "two-ocean" Navy and furnishing modern weapons and equipment for an army of 1,200,000 men.

A total of $45,017,320 was added to the House-approved measure by the Senate committee, mostly for additional armor, bombs and ammunition for naval warplanes and construction at naval bases.

Debate on the conscription bill continued in the Senate throughout the day, winding up in a sharp fight over a proposal to exempt divinity students from draft. A proviso sponsored by Msgr. Michael J. Ready, secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Service, and other churchmen was backed by Democratic Senators Walsh, of Massachusetts; Guffey, of Pennsylvania; Johnson, of Colorado, and had been accepted by Administration leaders.

"Couldn't Do a Crueler Thing"

Then Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, attacked the amendment, contending that no one should be exempt from the military training. He broadened his onslaught on the provision to condemn an amendment proposed by Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, to defer the military service of college students until their graduation or until they are 24 years old. The pending bill applies to men 21 to 30, inclusive.

Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, suggested the bill "wouldn't do any more damage to divinity students than it would to law students."

"Who's going to be in the Army anyway?" Connally demanded. "Are we going to exmpt everyone who can read and write? I don't believe we ought to exempt any particular religious group."

Senator Maloney and Senator Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky, defended the deferment of students, the latter contending Congress "couldn't do a crueler thing than take away a boy's opportunity for an education." Majority Leader Barkley opposed the general deferment of students, declaring he wouldn't vote a proposal "making a distinction between a boy whose father could afford to send him to college and one unable to do so."

Earlier in the day, Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, made a speech supporting the training bill.

of his lungs," Clark said, "Bullitt, 26 years old at the time, found himself a safe 'coffee-cooling' job in the State Department, where he remained during the progress of the war."

He then accused Bullitt of having made secret commitments to French government before collapse of the Republic and of now trying to obtain recognition by the Fascist and Nazi controlled" Petain government to prevent them being made public during the war-guilt trials in France.

Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, termed Ambassador Bullitt "spokesman for communism in the United States Diplomatic Corps" and Clark, of Missouri, said he had been "utterly repudiated" as a diplomat by President Wilson because of his "intimacy" with Lenin and Trotsky.

Senator Clark, of Idaho, declared that Bullitt "in not thinly veiled language" proposes "we should set up a dictatorship here," adding that this "comes mighty close to being false to his country."

In the House, Representative Pace (Democrat), of Georgia, indorsed Bullitt's remarks and two Republicans, Knutson, of Minnesota, and Schafer, of Wisconsin, attacked it.

Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, an Administration supporter, placed the Ambassador's speech in the Congressional Record, declaring it "should challenge the attention of every American."

Decree Asked

In a suit filed in the circuit court at Rockville, Md., Mrs. Ellen G. Ayars, of Silver Spring, asks for a limited divorce from Charles J. Ayars, also of Silver Spring, and to be awarded custody of the couple's only child, John D. Ayars. It is charged that the plaintiff was deserted June 10, 1940.

Ickes 'Astonishes' Willkie in Reply

LaGuardia. The only truthful reference to me in the whole speech is that I rent a small apartment at 1010 Fifth avenue, about a mile away from Mr. Roosevelt's townhouse, just off Park avenue.

Welcomed home earlier today as "a Rush County farmer," Wendell L. Willkie told a crowd in City Memorial Park here that he was ready to make any "personal sacrifice" to keep the United States out of war and "to preserve at all hazards the kind of life we have here in Rush County."

"While bombs are raining down on England today," he said, "I feel an overwhelming sense of humility that I have been called to a position of leadership in one of the most critical periods of world history . . . People who live and think as we do are being destroyed in their way of life."

The Republican Presidential nominee was introduced as "a Rush County farmer" by Ernest B. Thomas, who was president of the school board when Mrs. Willkie was graduated from the local high school in 1908. Twelve members of Mrs. Willkie's class were in the audience.

Willkie, who earlier in the day had taken newspapermen on a tour of his five nearby farms, replied to the introduction:

"I want to correct one error at once. I am a purely conversational farmer. I have never done a stroke of work on a Rush County farm, and I hope I never have to. I merely do the talking."

Before he spoke, he climbed to a railing around the platform, grabbed onto a post and waved to the cheering crowd.

"I came back to the soil of Rush County," he said, "back to the people I know, to get renewed strength to fight for those principles in which I deeply believe and in which you believe."

After referring to the war in Europe, he continued:

"When one in my situation realizes that he is being called upon to play a part in the discussions of matters that have to do with keeping that holocaust from coming to this country, you must realize how deeply I feel.

"I am ready to make whatever personal sacrifice may be required of me, or whatever long days and sleepless nights, to preserve at all hazards the kind of life we have here in Rush County."

U. S. Women Interest Visitor From Brazil

Aims and Interests Far Different From Those at Home, Senhora Grillo Finds After Two Months Here

By Hope Ridings Miller

PROMOTING A "GOOD NEIGHBOR" policy with Brazil won't be any trouble at all—if a few more visitors as attractive as Senhora Heitor Grillo come to town.

She and her husband, here for the past week, will be off to New York today and will sail from there for Rio de Janeiro on August 25. Dr. Grillo directs an agricultural institute in his homeland, so he came here to study the American method of organization. He and his attractive wife have been in this country since early June.

SENHORA GRILLO

A stylishly slender woman whose blue eyes set off on olive complexion, black hair and nicely chiseled features, Senhora Grillo accents her observations with a flashing smile and talks well on any subject you can mention. When I saw her briefly yesterday morning, topics under her guidance shifted smoothly and touched on a span ranging from social customs in Rio de Janeiro—her home city—to her impressions of American women.

Tea-table talking seems to be much more the order of the day in Rio than in Washington. According to Senhora Grillo, Brazilians are quite as accustomed to afternoon tea as are Britishers. Dinners—small, elaborate and late—are a favored form of entertainment.

What about cocktail parties? Well, they're popular with a certain smart younger set in Rio, she said. Oldsters and more conservative youngsters stick to their tea in the afternoon, and to coffee almost any hour of the day or evening, when a social gathering is indicated.

Visualizes Culture as Only Bond Of Understanding Between the Nations

This is Senhora Grillo's first visit to this country, and she has been somewhat surprised to find that our women have far different aims and interests than most Brazilian women. She politely declined to elaborate that point, but she did say that "la cultura"—culture—is the only common bond that can promote an understanding between the two.

It was natural that "la cultura" would find its way into the conversation, for Senhora Grillo is a well known poet and journalist. Her byline is her maiden name, Cecilia Meireles, and she can express her thoughts fluently in three languages—Portuguese, Spanish and French.

Quite frankly she said that people of her country heretofore have looked to France in general for most of their cultural inspiration, and that Brazilian women have faithfully followed Parisian designers. In the future? Well, who knows? Perhaps the United States may set the pace in both regards, she said.

In characteristic feminine fashion, Senhora Grillo got around to talking about her home. She admitted that her enthusiasm for the development of "la cultura" in her country is balanced with a natural interest in her own household—her husband and her three daughters.

In Typical American Fashion Prefers to Keep Her Age Secret

There was one more question. Would Senhora Grillo, who must be somewhere in her early thirties, mind telling her age? She flashed a disarming smile. Yes, she said, she would. Like the typical American woman, she prefers to keep that a secret.

HEARD IN PASSING: Anti-New Dealers are saying over Capital tea cups, "Mrs. Roosevelt is a combination of Edda Mussolini and Elsie Dinsmore." . . . A taxicab driver told a Washington woman yesterday he liked Willkie's speech all right but wished the candidate hadn't mispronounced so many words. "Which words did he mispronounce?" she asked in surprise.

"Well one was 'EYE-ther,'" said the driver. "He called it 'EE-ther.'" . . . The woman in question tried to say she thought "EE-ther" was as nearly correct as 'EYE-ther'—if not more so . . . "No, it's 'EYE-ther,'" insisted the driver. "My college English teacher said so."

HERE'S GOOD NEWS: Mrs. Ford K. Brown, of Annapolis, better known as Leslie Ford, author of a number of popular mystery novels, has come to town and is registered at the Hay-Adams House . . . She will leave Washington this week-end for Columbus, Ohio, where she is scheduled to speak before Theta Sigma Phi, but will return early next week for an extended stay . . . Yes, you guessed it. She's working on another novel.

Miss Hutchins Weds Sept. 16

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Clark Hutchins, of Absecon, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Leeper Hutchins, of Washington, to Paul E. Anderson, of this city, formerly of Vidalia, Ga. The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Anderson, of Vidalia.

The wedding will take place Monday, September 16, at 8 p. m., at Mount Vernon Place Church. A reception at 5011 Thirteenth street in Arlington will follow the ceremony. Miss Gladys Berggren, of Washington, will serve as maid of honor, and Miss Louise Coff, of Mississippi, and Eloise Aultice, of Danville, Va., will be bridesmaids.

The Bradleys Have Another Daughter

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Bradley are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, their second, on Friday, at Doctors Hospital. Mrs. Bradley is the former Miss Mary Murray Hume.

B. T. Moores On Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Tillman Moore, whose wedding took place on Saturday at Greenwich, Conn., are now on a motor trip through New England. Early next month they will arrive in Washington to made their home.

The bride is the former Miss Margot Fansler, daughter of Mrs. Margaret R. Fansler, of Greenwich, and Henry Dwight Fansler, of Preston, Md. Mr. Moore is the son of Charles Sumner Moore, of Atlantic City.

The wedding took place in the garden of Mrs. Fansler's home, with a Friends ceremony, under authorization of the Swarthmore, Pa., meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Malin were overseers for the ritual. A small reception followed.

Miss Minnie Moore, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Van Dusen Kenneday, instructor of economics at Swarthmore College, was best man.

The bride is a graduate of the George School, Newton, Pa., in 1938. She studied at Barnard College for two years and plans to complete her course at George Washington University.

Mr. Moore was graduated from Swarthmore College in 1934. He received his master's degree in economics at Columbia University and is now with the Department of Agriculture.

Dickinsons Home From Bridal Trip

After a wedding trip to the Smoky Mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. George Forrest Dickinson have returned to Fredericksburg, Va., where they will make their home. The bride is the former Miss Anna Paige Green, daughter of John McClure Whittemore Green and the late Mrs. Pauline Brown Green, of Fredericksburg.

The couple were married July 23 in Richmond. Mr. Dickinson is the son of Mrs. William C. Dickinson, of Marmion, King George County, and the late Mr. Dickinson, of Wheatland, Essex County. He is a direct descendant of Col. Fielding Lewis and his wife, Betty Washington, sister of Gen. George Washington.

Envoy, Daughter Visit in Greenwich

William Phillips, United States Ambassador to Italy, and his daughter, Miss Beatrice Phillips, are guests of his sister, Mrs. Raynal C. Bolling, in Greenwich, Conn. Within the next three weeks they will also spend some time with relatives in North Beverly, Mass.

Miss Phillips has been working all summer with the American Friends of France in France under the direction of Miss Anne Morgan.

Helen Geiger Becomes Bride Of Gerald C. Gearty Here

Hessler-Henderson.

MRS. PHILLIP CLARK GEARTY

District Girl Weds Minneapolis Man At Shrine of Blessed Sacrament; Couple Will Make Home in Seattle

In a ceremony yesterday at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament, Miss Helen Mary Geiger, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George J. Geiger, of 3736 Cumberland street, became the bride of Gerald Clark Gearty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Gearty, of Minneapolis.

The Rev. Charles Gorman officiated. Other priests at the altar included Monsignor Thomas G. Smyth, pastor of the church and the Rev. Joseph Dunneen, rector of the Jesuit Novitiate in Wernersville, Pa. Harry Wheaton Howard, organist of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, played the nuptial music for the ceremony as he had at the wedding of the bride's mother and of her aunt, Mrs. J. F. White.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in ivory satin, trimmed in seed pearls, fashioned on princess lines with a shirred bodice, sweeping train, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves, full at the shoulder and tapering to tight points over the hands. Her ivory tulle veil, which extended more than the length of the train, and her face veil were held to her hair by a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a white missal to which were pinned orchids and streamers of lillies of the valley.

Sister of Bride Maid of Honor

Miss Cora A. Geiger, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth McCox Geiger, another sister of the bride; Mrs. Thomas Gearty, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Miss Dorothy R. Sheehan. They wore gowns of flowing chiffon, long lace gloves and tulle veils pinned to their hair with orchids. Each carried a missal to which was pinned a cluster of fuschia orchids. The maid of honor was in turquoise blue and the bridesmaids wore shades of mauve, caprice rose and fuschia chiffon, respectively.

Thomas Gearty, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and the ushers were George J. Geiger, jr., brother of the bride, Charles Koechley, Allan McAlwee and Frederick Mesner.

Wedding Breakfast At the Shoreham

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the Shoreham Hotel for the bridal party and members of the immediate families. The mother of the bride wore blue chiffon and an orchid corsage, and Miss Anne Gearty, sister of the bridegroom, was in a green print with white accessories and wore a corsage of orchids.

When the couple left for their wedding trip, the bride was wearing a white jacket costume with a blue and white polka dot blouse, navy blue hat and accessories and a white orchid corsage. Following a motor trip across the continent they will make their home in Seattle, Wash.

The bride was graduated from Wilson Teachers College and is a member of Tau Phi. Mr. Gearty was graduated from Catholic University and the National University Law School and is a member of the Utopian Club.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Furman White, of Robesonia, Pa., aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Santemma, from Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y.

Mme. de Hertelendy Back in Capital From Hot Springs

Mme. de Hertelendy, who is the daughter of Mrs. Reynolds Hitt, of Washington, has returned to the Capital after a stay at Hot Springs, Va. The wife of a Hungarian diplomat, Mme. de Hertelendy is going to put her children in school here in the fall and will probably make her home in Washington unless the war ends and she can join her husband in Europe.

Despite two steady weeks of rain, the Washington colony at Hot Springs continues to take an active part in the life there. Mrs. Emmons Smith has been visiting the Ballard Moores—and it's pretty generally rumored that Mrs. Smith will marry Stewart McDonald in the fall. He has been commuting back and forth between this city and the Virginia resort all summer.

The many friends of Mrs. P. Lammot Belin will be glad to learn that she is much better after a serious illness, and she and her husband are very popular at Hot Springs. Others there include Mrs. William Castle—Mr. Castle commutes; Mrs. John R. Williams, who will spend several weeks longer at Hot Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins.

Mrs. Thompson Returns From Ottawa

Stayed With Daughter, Wife of Counselor Of U. S. Legation

By Dudley Harmon

Every third person in Ottawa now is either a titled fugitive from the blitzkreig or a child refugee, says Mrs. Huston Thompson, just back from Canada after a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Farr Simmons.

As Counselor of the United States Legation, Mr. Simmons is naturally in the thick of activity, and Mrs. Thompson says she is slightly dizzy from such a large dose of titles. At a recent birthday party given by Princess Juliana, who has an attractive home near Ottawa, for her youngest baby, Princess Irene, Mrs. Simmons and the wife of the Irish High Commissioner were the only non-titled persons there. Mrs. Simmons' two little sons, Jackie and Huston, were among the young guests.

Archduke Otto, who never seems to stay in the same place more than two days, was a recent visitor to Canada and lunched with Mr. Simmons. The Governor General, the Earl of Athlone, and Princess Alice have been joined by their daughter and her infant children. At Princess Juliana's tea party the Earl and his wife had a wonderful time playing ball with all the babies, reports Mrs. Thompson.

Red Cross Work Is Order of Day

Everybody, she says, is doing Red Cross work, including the wives of the American Legation staff. Canadian morale continues excellent. And in many of the homes is a little refugee—one of Mrs. Simmons' friends has turned over an entire island to 18 of them, with two governesses to make them toe the mark.

In her spare time, Mrs. Simmons plays tennis with the Governor General's wife and other friends. Caroline Simmons and Mrs. J. Pierrepont Moffatt, wife of the new American Minister, were at school together and see a lot of each other in Ottawa. A sister of Mrs. Moffat, Mrs. Robert English, is also there, but the far-flung Grew family is about to be even more scattered again, as Mr. English has been ordered to New Zaland. A third sister, Mrs. Cecil Lyons, is in South America with her diplomat husband. The Englishes expect to sail in October for their new post.

Recently Completed Trip by Motor

During Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's stay their daughter took a ten-day motor trip with them to some of the lakes and forests. Mr. Simmons is not counting on a vacation, since following the new law which requires Canadians to have visas to enter this country, the chancery is busier than ever.

The former Caroline Thompson until her marriage four years ago, Mrs. Simmons is remembered in Washington as a prominent worker for the Junior League and one of the most popular members of the young crowd. She used to cover Mrs. Roosevelt's press conferences for the Junior League magazine.

Dorseys to Give Dinner Dance Tonight at Farm

Admiral and Mrs. Benjamin H. Dorsey will entertain at a dinner dance tonight for 50 guests at their home, Richland Farm, Ellicott City, Md.

The affair will be in honor of the Dorseys' two sons, Benjamin, jr., and Worthington Dorsey, who will leave soon to attend Staunton Military Academy.

Mrs. Hanna Takes Apartment in Chile

Mrs. Matthew Hanna, her friends here learn, has settled in an apartment in Santiago de Chile and writes that she loves it.

A former Capital resident, and very popular in society, Mrs. Hanna made her home in New York last year. She is the widow of an American diplomat who spent several tours of duty in South America, so she knows Chile well.

Evelyn Dickenson Married Here to Thomas P. Lynch

Bride Rejects Traditional White for Blue In Ceremony at Sacred Heart Rectory; To Live in N. Y. After White Mountain Trip

Wearing blue faille instead of the traditional white, Miss Evelyn Dickenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. Dickenson, of Washington, was married at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Thomas P. Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Lynch, of Washington. The ceremony took place in the rectory of the Sacred Heart Church, the Rev. Lawrence Wempe officiating in the presence of relatives and close friends.

The bride's frock was street length, and with it she wore dubonnet accessories and a corsage of purple orchids. Miss Mary Horner, of Washington, was maid of honor, attired in brown faille with a cluster of pink roses. Mrs. Dickenson wore navy blue lace and the bridegroom's mother was in periwinkle blue. Both topped off their costumes with corsages of pink roses. John E. Lynch was best man for his brother.

A reception at the Dickenson home followed the wedding. Among the out-of-town guests were the Rev. Hugh Phillips, of Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md.; William E. Brown, of New York, uncle of the bride, and Allan Jones, of New York.

Mrs. Lynch attended George Washington University where she was pledged to Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She is a member of Lambda Chi sorority.

After a wedding trip to the White Mountains the couple will spend several weeks at the Ambassador Hotel in New York as guests of Mr. Brown. They will make their home in that city, where Mr. Lynch is with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Transfer Likely For Keith Officer, Australian Aide

Keith Officer, Counselor of the Australian Legation, is expected to be transferred to another post. Mr. Officer says he knows nothing officially, but it is reported that he is planning to leave Washington in about six weeks.

Mr. Officer came here a little more than three years ago as the first Australian Counselor at the British Embassy. After the arrival of the first Australian Minister, Richard G. Casey, he was transferred to his staff. Mr. Officer has been very popular with Capital social circles

Supper to Fete Betty Fischer And Grant Boss

Party This Evening Follows Rehearsal For Wedding Tomorrow

Miss Betty Fischer and Grant Boss, whose wedding will take place tomorrow afternoon at the Washington Cathedral, will be guests of honor at a buffet supper following their wedding rehearsal this evening. Hostess for the event will be the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Beatrice Dulin Cornwell, and the party will take place at the Fischer home at 2222 Q street.

Last evening James O'Grady feted the couple at a dinner at Olney Inn. Guests included Miss Nancy Hoskinson, who will be maid of honor; Miss Nancy Rheem and Miss Doris Becker, who will be bridesmaids; Godfrey and Rudolph Kauffmann 2d, and George Wheeler, who will be ushers.

Others there were Miss Julie Cahill, Miss Constance Knowles, of Atlanta, Ga., who is the house guest of Miss Becker; Miss Josephine Boyle, Mrs. George Wheeler, Ruth Quinn, the Misses Amonette and Margaret Gordon, Miss Betty Lloyd Hutchinson, Miss Madge Carter, Miss Betty Burton, Sam Biddle, Antonio Montero, Randall Hagner, John Lewis Smith, jr., Harry Hoskinson, jr., Robert Niepold, Dick Hutchinson and Fred Mechlin.

Miss Hoskinson was hostess at a shower yesterday afternoon for the bride-elect.

Film to Show Younger Set

The younger set can hardly wait to see the movie now being made by some of their members here, complete with script, "glamour girls," and producer. Miss Coby Ranneft, young daughter of the Netherlands Legation, who was to have had a debut this year until war intervened, and Miss Gloria McGeehee, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Daniel R. McGeehee, are the stars.

After spending two weeks making outside shots, the young producer, William McClure, who studies at the University of Tennessee in the winter, has moved his cast into a large apartment at the Shoreham for inside shots. The story centers around a girl refugee from Europe.

Also in the cast are Miss Nancy Alden Strong, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Alden G. Strong, who will "come out" this fall, and Miss Jean Cavanaugh. Keith Adamson has been borrowed from the Roadside Players to be the chief male interest. After completion of the film, which is in natural color, it will be shown at a local theater.

Announce Birth

Mr. and Mrs. James Whyte sent telegrams to friends here yesterday to announce the birth of a son, Andrew Adams Whyte, at Doctors Hospital in New York. Mrs. Whyte is the former Miss Evelyn Adams and the couple live in Washington.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Suburban Housewives' Blast at Baffling Newcomer Brings Pleasant, Explanatory Reply From Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I can see them now, "Suburbanite" and her pals, interrupting their bridge game to write you about their horrible predicament. How they must have worked, choosing their words and phrases, in order to impress you, Mary Haworth, with their subtle wit. Thanks for letting them have the other side of the picture, and I hope you will be so kind as to add my say to yours.

I am the newcomer to the suburban community. We moved to Washington from our small (but adequately up-to-date) home town about 18 months ago. For a year we endured life in a city apartment. How I missed my friends at home! Our bridge club, our dance nights, all the camaraderie of a congenial group.

My husband is a grand person and when he could be at home everything was fine. During the day I kept busy. We joined a church and met a few people, but I found it difficult to adapt myself to city life. Then, about six months ago, we moved to this pleasant-looking suburban community. We were attracted to it as a more wholesome place than an apartment in which to rear our child.

I have been shyly delighted to see what a nice lot of neighbors we were going to have; just such a crowd, apparently, as our friends back home. But alas (to use one of "Suburbanite's" winsome expressions), we were kept at our distance. We were bowed to politely at times, treated to many a penetrating side glance and, undoubtedly, made the butt of many a discussion behind Venetian blinds. I made a few tentative advances, asked a little neighborly advice and borrowed a cup of sugar one day. I didn't need the sugar but I was terribly lonely. (I did not stay for two hours, however, as "Suburbanite" reports.)

We've live'd here now for six months, during which time our neighbors have shunned us like the plague. My husband is a homebody and I do not worry him about this business. I feel it is my problem. I am well-bred, fairly good looking, have a college degree, an unobtrusive, although not a retiring, personality, and the usual percentage of human frailities. But my child is not an "infant terrible," and I am glad to say that he is happy here.

There are thousands of women like "Suburbanite." If only they were to realize their latent power to bring a little sunshine into the lonely life of some new neighbor! Believe me, it would be good for the souls of both. BETH.

Housewives Deny They Are Back-Fence Gossips

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the space and attention allotted our letter of August 18, we extend appreciation. The attitude and content of your reply we consider completely unwarranted and needlessly uncomplimentary, however. In rereading our letter, I can find no evidence of an "attitude of self-congratulatory complacency," nor a "childish distress and consequent total loss of poise."

There was nothing in our remarks to indicate that our community was an "Eden" before the advent of our new neighbors, or that our offspring are such angels that we consider it a "dreadful thing" to have them associate with an "infant terrible." Our children, who are of school age, attend the local public school, and regardless of your estimate of our intelligence, we have no desire to, nor expectation of, shielding them from such "realistic social education" as they receive through association with other children.

Having lived for an average of 35 years each, under diversified conditions, we fully realize it is not possible to escape the "fly in the environmental ointment." However, the realization of that fact does not necessarily signify that we should accept such a "pestiferous element" as described with the very complacency of which you accuse us.

To us, this problem actually is an "interesting variation of Life or Human Nature, etc.", and as such we thought you might welcome it as a change from the lovelorn. We would have appreciated constructive criticism and we hoped that from your varied experience you might advance a solution, other than the apparent one which even we had been able to see. It remains an interesting problem, but it never has been and is not now the alpha and omega of our existence, nor a subject which we "talk threadbare over the community back fence." Sincerely,

SUBURBANITE.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Turquoise On Solid Black

For the end of summer you'll need a slim black crepe that can be worn all through the fall. The acetate rayon above is as straight as a pencil but softens into fullness with pouchy pockets that swing from a set-in waistband. Gathers soften the front of the bodice, which has additional interest in the pendant turquoise necklace relieving that high surplice neckline. As a relief from all black, many of the new frocks feature bits of pearl, gold or colored stone ornament as part of the costume

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

The Ritzy Vacationist

The following catechism on "How to Put Up Front on Vacation" is by Mrs. Aurelia Puffer-Swagg, famous authority on "Front."

Q—What should be the swanky vacationist's avowed purpose in taking a holiday?

A—To recover from the strain of war work and the exhausting social pace.

Mrs. Puffer-Swagg

Q—What is the first thing she should remember in choosing a vacation spot?

A—That it MUST be out of town.

Q—Why is this imperative?

A—To save social face.

Q—But what if she cannot afford to leave town?

A—She should barricade her house or apartment for several weeks, pull the blinds and go out only after nightfall and on back streets.

Q—Is it possible for her to take a fashionable vacation on very little money?

A—Yes. Two courses are open. She may return to nature or she may achieve a speaking acquaintance with the Best Places.

Q—How may she "return to nature?"

A—By announcing to her friends that she has gotten too soft and needs to get toughened up in the service of democracy, and by going to some primeval spot to "get hold of herself."

Q—In what does she dwell at this secluded spot?

A—A lean-to shack known as a "cottage" and bearing a fancy name such as "Far From the Madding Crowd."

Q—How may the poor but proud vacationist achieve a speaking acquaintance with the Best Places?

A—By making a flying trip to some very exclusive resort (several, if possible) and staying over night—or spending a few hours in the swankiest hotel.

Q—Is not this procedure very costly?

A—No, because it is more important to spend $25 for one day at THE hotel in a resort than to stay a week at some lodge where only professors, artists and ordinary tourists foregather.

Q—Why is it so important to have a knowledge of the best hotels at leading vacation resorts?

A—So one can discuss them later with upper bracket vacationists.

Q—Why is it better to make flying visits to several resorts?

A—It gives the vacationist more publicity, more post-vacation chatter and it enables her to have a small but stunning wardrobe which she does not have to display twice in the same place.

Q—May the vacationist never settle down for a few weeks at some restful resort?

A—Yes, provided she chooses a resort that has the Best Names as guests.

Q—How may she do this inexpensively?

A—By having her own "cottage"—that is, a cottage leased on the "progressive plan" with a group of other vacationists who are also putting up front. In this way each set of vacationists can refer to it as "my cottage."

Q—Should the vacationist ever return to the same resort?

A—Yes, as long as the Best Names continue to return. However, she should be very careful to drop the resort at the psychological moment.

Q—What is the psychological moment?

A—When the place begins to get "commercial" and "ordinary tourists" begin to come.

Q—What should the vacationist then do?

A—Move as quickly as possible to get in on the ground floor at some not as yet well known resort which is on the upgrade.

Q—Suppose the vacationist wishes to take a cruise and cannot afford it.

A—She should go on a freighter for "atmosphere"—or on a good boat in the off season, when she will meet the Best People bound for winter playgrounds.

Q—May she take a motor tour?

A—Yes, provided she stops at the best hotels in the bigger cities and gets a line-up of the most important people socially in these places.

Q—Why is this necessary?

A—So she may refer to them casually in later conversation.

Q—What is the chief thing for the vacationist to remember in all her plans?

A—The real purpose of her vacation.

Q—What is the real purpose of her vacation?

A—To collect data for impressive conversation the rest of the year.

Tuna Fish

An Aid to Budget

"Tricks to all trades" said the sage, and certainly he was right, for the homemaker needs a trick or two to keep the budget balanced. When main dish ideas fail you, time is short, or your budget is groaning under food bills, reach up on the emergency shelf and bring down a can of luscious white tuna, and save the day.

Few dishes are easier on the pocketbook or offer more in good food value and delightful appearance than a tuna concoction. I am giving you a tricky tuna trick that is bound to trick your overworked budget—and will trick you too, if you don't allow for second helpings when you serve it. Here is an interesting recipe:

Tuna Alpine

Drain one 6-ounce can tuna fish and place, as it comes from the can, unbroken, in a well-buttered dish. Place oil drained from the tuna in a heavy skillet. Add 1 green pepper, sliced into slivers, small bit of bay leaf, 2 peppercorns, 1 clove, and 1 medium sized onion, sliced thinly. Cover and smother until onion and pepper are tender. They should not brown. Add ½ cup dry white wine olended with ½ teaspoon cornstarch, and 2 fresh ripe tomatoes, peeled and cubed. Simmer for 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Pour over the tuna and bake slowly, 300 degrees for 15 to 25 minutes. Serve from the casserole.

A WOMAN'S WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

Ruth Magnusson, '37 Bennington College Alumna, Now 'Majoring' in Radio Factory

BENNINGTON COLLEGE, advocate of the practical in education, would be proud of Ruth Magnusson, '37 graduate, who lives at 3223 Northampton street northwest. She majored in sculpture and is now putting her agile fingers to work soldering radio parts at the factory of the Washington Institute of Technology in College Park. The plant puts out the barometers and radio transmitters which the Weather Bureau sends up in balloons to determine atmospheric conditions.

Ruth Magnusson

The girls work in three shifts, about ten to a shift. Ruth's hours are from 3 p. m. to 11. Among the delicate operations entrusted to them are the grading and washing of tiny strands of human hair used for the springs of barometers. About 800 instruments are turned out each month.

The atmosphere of the plant is friendly and informal and working conditions are excellent, Ruth says. Benches are provided and the rooms equipped with fluorescent lights. The workers are allowed ten-minute rest periods in addition to 45 minutes for lunch. The evening shift's rest period begins when the girls hear the neighborhood Good Humor man's bell.

"ADD SUPERSTITIONS—A yacht-dweller would have no qualms about opening an umbrella indoors, should she ever have occasion to do so. But she wouldn't think of "deep-sixing," or throwing overboard, a pair of shoes. Or of allowing a bird to be shot from the deck of the yacht. And to prevent drowning, she knows she need only tatioo a pig on her left instep.

On her way to dinner one evening a woman was approached by a pan-handling youth who asked her for the price of a meal. Her better judgment told her not to give him cash, so she suggested that he come along with her, explaining that the restaurant where she planned to dine sometimes provided food in exchange for a few chores. He accompanied her, rather unenthusiastically, until they reached the Y. W. C. A. dining room. He took one look at their destination and hastily though of another engagement.

Mary Lou Colbert has always told her friends in Army and Navy circles here that she can't stand small children. Recently she went to Eastport, Md., to visit the Christ Child Society's Camp Kateri and gather some material for an article she's writing on Mary V. Merrick, founder of the society. She was surprised to find herself captivated by the small girl campers. Learning that the institution may have to close two weeks early this summer for lack of funds, she's been canvassing her friends at the Army-Navy Country Club for money. Most of them are so astonished to see her turn crusader that they contribute freely before they know what they're doing. Anyone else who wants to help can reach her at 4408 Twenty-ninth street northwest.

"A sweet old Southern gentlewoman here telephoned a friend recently. "My dear, I've just heard the most marvelous news," she said excitedly. "They're going to let us vote for Willkie and still be Democrats."

Easy Exercise For Hot Day Is—Rolling

By Ida Jean Kain

Sitting at a desk for eight hours a day certainly doesn't do a thing to improve a girl's figure! But unless you have been sitting in an air-conditioned office you don't feel like coming home and exercising! If you are to exercise at all it has to be made easy for you—and rolling is!

You can roll your figure smooth no matter what your hip problem—and it varies. Some hips jut out bustle style, some bow out at the sides, others just spread out. The technique is to bring pressure to bear on the portion that needs trimming.

For the bustle effect, try this:

POSITION: Sit on the floor with the legs straight out in front and lean slightly backward with the hands on the floor at the sides. Be sure that your weight is on the exact spot that juts out.

And Roll, Roll, Roll—

MOVEMENT: From this semi-sitting position roll across the buttocks, using the hands as a brake and a propellor. Push with one hand, roll across the buttocks and catch the weight on the other hand. After you have mastered a smooth roll hold the feet slightly off the floor as you roll to strengthen the tummy muscles. Roll from 100 to 150 times.

To tone down those pincushions of fat that make your hips bow out at the sides, try this straight roll:

POSITION: Lie on the floor on the left side, legs straight down, right hand braced on floor about chest level.

MOVEMENT: Give a vigorous push with the right hand and roll across the hips until you are in the same position on the other side. Continue for 100 counts—that's not too many. The exercise is very easy.

Another Good One

Here's another good exercise for the side of the hips:

POSITION: On the floor on the left side, weight supported on left elbow and forearm, the right hand out on the floor about chest level for leverage. Have the left leg straight down on the floor, the right knee flexed and the foot on the floor just back of the left leg, also for leverage.

MOVEMENT: Hoist your hips off the floor and come down with a bump on the fat pad. Bounce away for 50 counts, then rest and devote your energies to the other side.

Now for a general hip roll.

POSITION: Lie on the back on the floor, hands clasped back of the head, knees flexed and feet held off the floor.

MOVEMENT: Using your upper arms to give yourself a shove, roll from one side to the other, going away over on the hip and thigh line. Repeat for 15 counts.

Blue and Gold Dinner Gown

Hollywood, Calif.—Mrs. Edward G. A huge blue sapphire dinner ring set in platinum was her single jewelry accent.

How to Improve Jams and Jellies

By Associated Press Feature Service

Here are some pointers from a successful maker of spreads that will help you in putting up jams and jellies.

Select underripe, fresh, well-shaped berries or fruits to obtain the best flavor.

Pour a thin layer of melted paraffin over the spread as soon as it is in the jars. This keeps out impurities. When cool, add another layer of paraffin to complete the seal.

Jams and thick butters burn easily, so stir them frequently. An asbestos mat placed under the kettle is often helpful.

Black Taffeta for Summer

Hollywood, Calif. — Genevieve Tobin, out dining with her director-husband, William Keighley, was wearing a dashing black taffeta summer suit with huge leg-o'-mutton sleeves and buttoned with jet. Her hat was a stitched black taffeta pork pie with small black jet bird on the side and black veiling run through the bird's beak and tied about the crown.

Attractive Garnish

—Select round radishes and remove leaves, leaving stems half an inch in length, and cut off a thin slice from the root end. Wash and scrape radishes in several places to remove some of the red color. Cut from top nearly to stem end in thin, parallel slices, then cut thin slices at right angles to slices already cut. Place in cold water and let stand until open to suggest chrysanthemums. Drain and serve on a dish of cracked ice.

Marines Defer Shanghai Action

Dispute With Japan To Be Discussed Here and in Tokyo

By Hallett Abend

Copyright by New York Times

Shanghai, Aug. 19.—The dispute over whether United States Marines will succeed the British forces in control of downtown Shanghai when the latter evacuate was referred today to the Washington and the Tokyo governments for settlement through diplomatic negotiation.

Meanwhile, when the British forces embark, probably Saturday, the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, with the consent of the Settlement's municipal council, will take over the patrolling of the disputed sector.

The Volunteer Corps is made up of representatives of the various nationalities in the settlement and is under the direction of the municipal council there.

Postpone Moving In

Japan has been insisting upon taking over the entire sector vacated by the British and the United States has been resisting this claim.

Under today's agreement the United States Marines will "postpone" moving in, but Japanese forces will take over the western perimeter of the hitherto British zone as allotted at a meeting of the defense commanders last week.

This compromise, while bitterly disappointing to Americans and Europeans with enormous interests in downtown Shanghai, will, nevertheless, remove the question of final arrangements from the local authorities where certain animosities and strains exist, probably to be better settled in the calmer atmosphere of the foreign offices of Washington and Tokyo.

Instructions Sent to Hart

[In Washington Acting Secretary of State Welles announced instructions had been sent to Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet, who has represented the United States in the discussions at Shanghai, that this Government was agreeable to the temporary agreement pending the outcome of further discussions between the American and Japanese governments.

[It was said that the discussions would continue to proceed through Admiral Hart in Shanghai, so far as the United States is concerned, and now through Ambassador Grew in Tokyo.]

Administration's task has been a salvage job, a job that would perhaps have been completed had not the advent of war abroad interrupted the process of rebuilding American prosperity and forced us, in our own protection, to prepare against terrible eventualities.

"This does not mean that we are going to war. It does mean that we must take the steps that represent the only method by which we may keep out of war. Hand-in-hand with our military preparedness must go the work of reinstating and retaining the average American citizen in a position where he may have his legitimate share in the opportunities afforded in the free life of a republic."

G. O. P. Leaders Answer Flynn

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The assertion of Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn that Wendell L. Willkie's challenge to President Roosevelt to debate issues with him was "a cheap publicity stunt" brought an immediate retort today from two Republican leaders.

Samuel F. Pryor, jr., director of the Eastern division of the Republican National Campaign Committee, made this comment during a press conference:

"I will let those who heard Mr. Willkie will be the judge whether it was for political purposes of whether he really meant it."

Oren Root, jr., head of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America, said:

"People I have talked to don't think of it as a cheap political trick but see it in a precisely opposite way. They view the challenge as something really desirable."

and lame ducks, whose hostility toward the New Deal is of many years standing."

Farley Introduces Flynn

Ickes said that under President Roosevelt "we are going forward to complete the mighty tasks which must be achieved if America is to be defended and democracy preserved." He said the Chief Executive has made America the "symbol of light in a darkening world."

He praised Willkie for rising above partisanship in several points of his acceptance speech. He then challenged him to reject support from "the Coughlinites, the Bundists and other Fascists who are rallying to his support."

Ickes thanked Willkie for indorsing some form of selective service, as has the President, but deplored Willkie's assertion that Mr. Roosevelt is "issuing inflammatory statements and indulging in manufactured panics."

He said that Willkie has "no realization of the fact that America faces today, not only a world war, but a worldwide social revolution."

Flynn, who was introduced by his predecessor, James A. Farley, said the depression was the direct result of the old system which provided poverty for the masses and wealth for a few. He added that the United States could not endure the processes which brought about such a condition.

"Since 1932," he continued, "the coast from Jibuti, French Somaliland, and the same distance from Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland across burning deserts.

Italy now has control of African territory extending 1,250 miles from Ethiopia's western frontier to the Gulf of Aden, and the same distance from Italian Eritrea in the north to the Indian Ocean on the south.

British Indignant

[Britons in Cairo, the United Press said, regard Somaliland as "valueless" to the Italians, especially as a base from which to carry out their much-advertised ambition to block the Red Sea at its southern mouth. Italy's Eritrea air bases, they point out, are much nearer Britain's important Aden base than any they could establish in Somaliland, and Berbera is unsuitable for a naval base, even should Italy be able to get any of her warships out of the Mediterranean.

[Officials in London, however, did not conceal their indignation, according to the New York Herald Tribune, which said the feared loss of prestige among the races of the Middle East might have important repercussions on Britain's Empire defense. Prime Minister Churchill is expected to make a statement in Commons tomorrow, the Herald Tribune said.]

Drive for Suez Expected

Britain claimed her bombers inflicted heavy damage on the Italians before they reached Berbera.

British land, sea and air forces continue fighting the Fascist legions on two other African fronts—on the Ethiopian-British Kenya border, where Italian columns have driven some 30 miles into British territory; and the Egyptian-Libyan border, where activity thus far has been confined to air bombings, small raids by both sides and heavy British naval bombardment of Italian bases.

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Italian commander in Libya, is expected to launch an offensive against Egypt soon in an effort to wrest control of the Suez Canal at its Mediterranean entrance.

Reports from Libya said Graziani was busy reorganizing his troop concentrations and supply bases at Bardia after the British naval bombardment Saturday.

An air attack yesterday on the airdrome at Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital, destroyed four hangars and started a fire, the R. A. F. command said.

Somaliland was the fourth front from which the British were shoved clear back to their ships in the last five months. First was in Norway, then Flanders, then France.

This latest reversal, however, was blamed squarely on the collapse of France.

"The original Allied dispositions in Somaliland," the British communique said, "were based upon a scheme of close Franco-British cooperation. Under this scheme the French forces at Jibuti (French Somaliland to the north) were to hold the right flank, the pivot of the whole position.

"With the sudden secession of the French government from participation in further hostilities, a new and grave situation was created. More than half of the available Allied force have been neutralized and it became immediately necessary to decide on the most effective measures for dealing with the emergency."

Finding it more advisable to hold reinforcements where they could be "more important to our immediate war effort" than in Somaliland and cpurning the easy course of "immediate and unresisting evacuation," the British said they chose a third alterantive which "has now been successfully completed . . . iwth conspicuous skill and bravery against greatly superior strength."

This, they said, was to fight to the last despite the certain outcome and inflict "losses on the enemy in men and material which will be difficult for him to replace."

Va. Young Party Will Heare Moore As Keynoter

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—E. Blackburn Moore, of Berryville, member of the House of Delegates from Winchester, Clarke and Frederick counties, will deliver the keynote address of the State convention of Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia here September 6, it was announced today.

Mr. Moore represents Senator Byrd's district and is regarded as one of the leaders of the Byrd organization of the Democratic Party. He is a fruitgrower, farmer and banker.

Approximately 2,500 Young Democrats are expected to attend the sessions here September 5-7.

Wickard Promoted To Wallace's Post

lace thanked the Chief Executive for the "extraordinary experience" of the last eight years and voiced his belief "in your unique capacities to lead the American people in these troubulous times."

The President's reply was a campaign document that laid stress on the comparison between the condition of agriculture in early 1933 and its condition now.

Expressing confidence in "the calm judgment of the voters," the President recalled:

"You found agriculture prostrate in 1933; the vicious wheel had turned full circle when you came to the rescue."

"The farmers of the country are not likely to forget this," the President declared.

Born on a 38-acre Carroll County, Ind., farm which he still operates, Wickard would represent in the Cabinet the home State of Wendell L. Willkie, which is expected to be of pivotal importance in the coming election appeal for the farm vote.

Named Master Farmer

Graduated from Purdue University in 1918, Wickard went back to the soil, bought up some land near the family homestead and there put into practice principles of scientific farming.

Named Master Farmer of Indiana by the Prairie Farmer, a magazine, in 1927, Wickard was elected in 1932 to the Indiana Senate, a position which he resigned in 1934 to join the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Well known in Midwestern corn-hog growing organizations, Wickard moved up from assistant chief of AAA's corn-hog section to chief of the section in February, 1935, and in November, 1936, he became director of the north central division for the conservation program.

He became Undersecretary February 1, 1940.

Drawing on his dirt-farmer background, Wickard was instrumental in setting up the farmer-committees now operating in the Corn Belt. These committees are expected to be helpful in disseminating information about the farm phases of the defense program.

The prospective Cabinet member was married to Louise Eckert, of Logansport, Ind., in 1918. They have two daughters, Betty, 21, who was graduated this year from Purdue on the twenty-fifth anniversary of her father's graduation, and Ann, 18, a graduate of the District's own Central High School. She will enter Purdue this fall.

An avid candid camera fan, Wickard points his lens usually at rural subjects and has his office walls covered with his photographic achievements.

Appleby, a former newspaper publisher, hails from Missouri but later moved to Iowa, where he was a classmate of Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins at Grinell College.

Appleby came to know Wallace while he was writing editorials for the Des Moines, Iowa, Register-Tribune. From 1914 to 1920, he published newspapers in Montana, Iowa, Washington and Minnesota.

Since 1933, Wallace has relied heavily on Appleby for aid in handling the work of the Agriculture Department.

After announcement of his resignation at Hyde Park, Wallace released a farewell statement to Agriculture Department employes, telling them that the department "has a national responsibility to assist the Nation's agriculture to prepare for a variety of serious results growing out of the war."

The retiring Secretary thanked his coworkers for their aid in past years, but counseled them to "be flexible in their outlook" toward the future.

Fears Loss of Exports

Biloxi, Miss., Aug. 19 (AP).—This country's whole agricultural economy will have to be rearranged if Germany wins control of all European purchasing agencies, Claude R. Wickard warned today after President Roosevelt had nominated him as Secretary of Agriculture.

Such Nazi control of European agencies, he said in an interview, would render United States exports "almost nil," but at the same time he added that this country has enough farm reserves "to last us and our friends during at least a year of war."

Denying that he viewed the future pessimistically, Wickard later told the Farm Bureau training school convention here:

"It is entirely possible that we might lose the greater part of our cotton exports if certain eventualities ahead of us are realized. But this is not a cotton problem alone but a corn problem and a problem of all other agricultural products.

"It seems we must adopt some drastic changes in agricultural economy in the South—which will affect the whole country—if we lose the cotton exports market."

Sabath to Call Sumners Bill UpTomorrow

Rules Chairman Hesitates in Absence Of Group's Members Favoring Measure

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

Chairman Sabath of the House Rules Committee promised yesterday to bring the Sumners bill to a vote on the request for a special rule no later than tomorrow. The committee meets again today on other matters.

Somewhat dubious about the outcome of the committee ballot, due to the absence of members said to be favorable to the resolution, Sabath declined to ask for action yesterday although the committee was in session in the morning and afternoon.

Among members friendly to the resolution, but absent from the city, are Representatives Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, who is in his home district, and Fish (Republican), of New York, who is in an officers' training camp in New York State.

Representative Delaney (Democrat), of New York, also reported favorable, was absent yesterday, but was expected to return to the Capitol by tomorrow.

Trade Board Opposes Nichols Bill

A new champion of national representation for the District, Representative Allen (Republica) of Illinois, also a member of the Rules Committee, came out flatly in favor of the resolution.

Allen said he was "surprised" to find that many "substantial" persons in Washington are behind the demand for national representation.

The Washington Board of Trade, meanwhile, voiced its opposition to the Nichols bill proposing to cede the District, except for a small Federal area, back to Maryland at the same time it reiterated its indorsement of the Sumners resolution.

The board, which acted through its executive committee yesterday afternoon, expressed appreciation of the work of Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas; Senators King (Democrat), of Utah, and Capper (Republican), of Kansas, and Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee, in behalf of District suffrage.

Allen Previously Noncommittal

Representative Allen, who had not previously committed himself on the Sumners resolution, said he had withheld his opinion until he had had time to study the legislative proposal.

"After so doing," he said, "I am convinced it should come out on the floor of the House for open discussion. I am sure anyone else who will study the resolution will feel the same way I do about it.

"Citizens of the District who approached me on the subject requested nothing more than that the resolution be brought on the House floor for open discusion.

Capital News In Brief

Curran Will Speak At Antidraft Rally

Joseph Curran, National Maritime Union president, will address an anticonscription rally tonight in the National Press Club auditorium, is was announced yesterday by the Washington Peace Mobilization, sponsor of the meeting.

Other speakers, according to the organization, will include Louis Burnham, national executive secretary of the Youth Council of the National Negro Congress; Senator James E. Murray (Democrat), of Montana, and Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch, of Columbia University.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p. m. Proceedings will be broadcast over Station WOL from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Unmarked Police Cars Patroling Va. Highway

Two "plainclothes" police cars—undistinguishable from ordinary passenger automobiles—have been put on highway patrol duty between Alexandria and Triangle, Va., to curb the mounting traffic toll on that part of U. S. Route 1.

This was announced yesterday by Lieut. Wayne Carr, Virginia State police director of the Alexandria area. Twenty-five such unmarked cars, bearing no identifying marks or license plates, have been ordered by State police for use throughout Virginia.

Air Derby Association Plans Swimming Party

The Washington Air Derby Association, which found it too hot for a treasure hunt recently, will hold a swimming party instead tonight at the Annapolis Roads Beach Club, Annapolis, Md. Members will leave Eastern avenue just south of Rhode Island avenue northeast at 6 p. m.

Tyler Kent Gets 3d London Hearing

Tyler Kent, 29-year-old former Washingtonian, and Anna Wolkoff, daughter of a former Russian admiral, were arraigned in Bow street, London, yesterday for the third secret hearing on charges under the British Official Secrets Act, the Associated Press reported.

Kent, arrested last May, shortly after his dismissal from the United States Embassy in London, is held under four charges and the woman under two, it was disclosed after their first hearing August 1.

The woman's father, Admiral Nicholas Wolkoff, Russian naval attache in London until the Bolshevist revolution, also is being held by the British. Kent and the Wolkoffs, according to Washington sources, were working for a German-Allied peace with Prince Frederick, youngest grandson of Kaiser Wilhelm, and other anti-Communists.

House Passes Two Claims For Damages

District and Federal Governments to Pay In Accident Cases

The House approved payment of claims to two Washington men yesterday, one to be paid by the District and the other by the Federal Government.

A bill to pay Anthony Borsellino, barber, of 214 Good Hope road southeast, $3,500 for the death of his 11-year-old son, Joseph, in June, 1933, now goes to the Senate.

The second measure, which will give Charles P. Madsen, chemical engineer, of 809 North Capitol street, $3,528 for injuries he suffered when struck by a postoffice truck in December, 1939, now goes to the White House. It has been approved by the Senate.

The Borsellino bill constitutes a claim against the District government because the boy was killed by a District National Guard truck at Third street and Maine avenue southwest.

President Roosevelt vetoed an earlier bill on July 3 because it made a claim on the Federal rather than the District government. He indicated he would have no objection against a new measure which made the District responsible.

Madsen, who is 62, was allowed hospital expenses and $2,500 compensation for his injuries. His vision was impaired as a result of the accident, the committee reported.

Mrs. O. John Rogge Gets Reno Decree On Cruelty Ground

Nellie Lewis Rogge, wife of O. John Rogge, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, was granted a divorce in Reno, Nev., yesterday on ground of cruelty. The couple was married in Chicago January 1, 1926.

Rogge earned prominence last year with his investigation of the State machine of the late Huey P. Long in Louisiana. Now in charge of the criminal division of the Justice Department, Rogge formerly held posts with the Treasury Department, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and was general counsel of the Securities Exchange Commission.

The couple had two children, Hermann, 12, and Genevieve, 13. A property agreement was settled out of court on June 29. After her divorce Mrs. Rogge left for San Francisco, according to the Associated Press.

Antidraft Papers Stir Free-for-All

The forceful objection of a crowd of youths to the distribution of anti-conscription leaflets by two young women and a young man last night resulted in a free for all in front of a theater at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Members of the crowd, police reported, took the leaflets from the distributors and threw them into the air. The melee which followed was broken up by police, who took the young man and women to Fifth Precinct Station and warned them that passing out the circulars was violating a District ordinance against littering the streets.

Police said the leaflet distributors represented the Washington Peace Mobilization organization.

Religion'sHope Rests in Youth, Alumnae Told

200 Notre Dame De Namur Members Hear E. M. Curran

The "real hope for a revival of the spirit of religion lies with the on-coming generation," United States District Attorney Edward M. Curran last night told more than 200 members of the International Federation of Notre Dame de Namur Alumnae at a dinner gathering at the Mayflower Hotel.

Last night's banquet was the highlight of the eighth triennial convention of the group which has held sessions at Trinity College celebrating the centennial of the founding of the first house of Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur in this country. The closing meeting of alumnae of Notre Dame de Namur schools will be held today.

"In the genius of our people, in the productivity of our soil and in the vast store of our national resources we possess the elements which are bound to provide a high standard of living for all the citizens of the Nation," Curran declared.

In a world which he described as one which "knows not God's commandments; a world sick and heartbroken from the loss of religion; a world which needs a panacea in the recount of moral values," Curran hailed the young graduates of Notre Dame schools as having "the faith and the elements of intellectual and moral character."

The attack on democracy he characterized as "an attack against international good faith, against religion, against political freedom and against civilization itself."

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University, told the group that "The Catholic woman of culture must be a powerful instrument in bringing back to the world the love of neighbors as part of our love of God."

Miss Marietta Dawson, president of the Washington chapter, addressed the delegates briefly. Other speakers included Miss Catherine Crimmings, president of the Trinity College chapter; Miss Monica Davis, president of the Philadelphia chapter; Miss Ruth Galligan, president of the California chapter; Miss Clementine McDonald, president of the Massachusetts chapter, and Miss Mary A. Quinn, vice president of the international federation. Miss Margaret Creager was toastmistress.

13 Cabbies Held as 'Loiterers' After Sec. Knox Complains

Thirteen taxicab drivers were arrested in front of the War and Navy buildings on Constitution avenue yesterday as park police launched a drive on "loitering cabs," said to be creating a traffic problem in that vicinity. Secretary of the Navy Frank B. Knox has complained of the obstruction caused by cabs.

The cabbies posted $5 collateral and are to appear in Police Court at 11 a. m. today.

Capt. Henry Helms, of the Park Police, told The Post he had received numerous complaints from War and Navy Department officials charging that cruising cabs had been blocking traffic.

"We try to be reasonable with the cab drivers," Capt. Helms said," but the situation in front of these two buildings has been growing increasingly worse. Now we are goinng to assign more men to the job of ending the nuisance."

The cab drivers claim they are being "victimized" and point to an excavation project in the street as the cause of the traffic jam in front of the Navy Building. Park Police, however, say the drivers are using the project as an excuse to "slow down unnecessarily" and even stop to allow other vehicles to pass by while they solicit business.

While the cab drivers claim they are not violating regulations, Park Police report the "cabbies" have been resorting to "smart tricks" and abusing their privileges by getting into situations where they will be forced either to slow down or stop near the curb. Because of the excavation, there is only one lane in the center open to traffic going east in front of the Navy Building.

The "cabbies" will tell their side of the story in court today.

Worker Appeals to Hull Over Claim on Nazi Embassy

George Kusterer, 61, 1455 Harvard street northwest, yesterday appealed to the State Department for aid in settling a damage claim against the German Embassy.

KUSTERER

Attorney Richard A. Harman, who represented Kusterer's plea to Secretary of State Hull, charged that his client was "being deprived of a judicial determination of his rights" by the fact that the Embassy aide who hired him, "hides in or behind Germany or German territory."

Harman said Kusterer was a native German, but became an American citizen more than 30 years ago. Harman declared that Kusterer was employed to work at the Embassy by Frank Korber, an employe of the Embassy, although a naturalized American citizen.

While washing windows on January 6, Harman said, Kuster was injured in a fall which impaired his hearing and cost him $700 for six weeks hospital treatment. Harman said the Employes' Compensation Commission rejected Kusterer's claim against Korber because "its investigation disclosed that Kusterer was in the employ of the German Embassy and the embassy was not amenable to the provisions of the compensation act."

Nevertheless, said Harman, the embassy had refused Kusterer's claim. Plans to sue Korber and obtain a definite court ruling were frustrated, said Harman, because American officers cannot serve papers on the embassy grounds, these being technically German soil.

EngraversHear A.F.L. Counsel Blast Arnold

U. S. Antitrust Chief Seeks to Injure Labor Rights, Says Padway

An American Federation of Labor spokesman yesterday charged that Attorney General Thurman Arnold is seeking "to destroy the basic principles of labor organization" through antitrust prosecutions.

In a blistering personal attack upon the head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, Joseph A. Padway, chief legal counsel of the A. F. of L. declared that Arnold is trying "to undermine privileges granted to labor by other New Deal agencies."

Referring to conferences he had had with Arnold recently, he added: "I was shocked and flabbergasted at his utter ignorance of labor union principles and the rights of labor."

Padway loosed this blast at the New Deal leader in an address before the forty-first annual convention of the International Photo-Engravers' Union of North America at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Labor," Padway said, "does not understand what the antitrust division has in mind" in its prosecutions of labor organizations.

"In the past 40 years," he added, "there have been but 40 antitrust prosecutions brought before the courts, yet under this new regime of Mr. Arnold there have been almost that many brought against labor in the space of a few months."

Discussing the Government's prosecution of the Teamsters Union in the District several months ago, Padway charged that Arnold forced the union into trial in ten days without adequate preparation.

CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO LINES

Physical Tests Cut List for D.C. Air Squadron

The 121st Observation Squadron has completed its recruiting list but the strict physical examination is cutting it down, the District National Guard said yesterday.

It was decided to take additional applicants who may qualify, as re- that he had suffered with hay fever when about 13 years old.

It's that tough.

Only those under 27 years old, single, with perfect vision and in placements for those who passed the educational requirements but failed in the physical examination.

One applicant, it was said, had everything required, but the examining physicians dug up the fact excellent physical condition can pass the pilot training examination. Cadets accepted are sent to an air corps training center for a nine-month course and then are returned to the squadron as second lieutenants.

Applicants must have credits for the completion of two years' work from an accredited university.

The squadron's recruiting office, at 743 Fourteenth street northwest, is being kept open daily.

Traffic Chief Hikes Budget By $54,170

Van Duzer Points To Census Figures In Asking Increase For Bureau in 1942

A budget $54,170 in excess of current appropriations for operation of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic during the fiscal year 1942 was requested of the Commissioners by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday.

Estimating his needs would cost $391,270 for the 1942 period, Van Duzer asked that two engineer aids at $2,000 a year each and 13 other new employes be added to his staff. The department's current appropriation is $337,100.

Van Duzer pointed out that new and complicated traffic control problems are constantly arising which call for immediate attention. He cited Census Bureau figures showing the District's present population as in excess of 663,000 persons and totaling nearly 1,000,000 when adjacent metropolitan areas of Maryland and Virginia are included.

For personnel service — new, temporary and regular—Van Duzer asked for $199,300. The present appropriation is $177,720. In addition to the two engineer aides he asked for one maintenance electrician, three laborers and nine clerks.

For the purchase, installation and maintenance of equipment—signal lights, markers, signs etc.—Van Duzer requested $171,970. This is an increase of $32,500 over the present appropriation.

There are 115 intersections where traffic signal lights are needed, Van Duzer said, asking $25,000 for the purpose. He added that 24 corners justify "immediate installation" of signals and the balance can be added gradually.

There was no request in the budget estimates for additional parking meters, although M. O. Eldridge, acting traffic director, said such a request would probably be made as a supplemental item sometime next year.

Eldridge also said a portion of the money would "undoubtedly" be used for the purchase of new Neon "walk" signals.

There is a total of 1,842 traffic signals now operating in Washington as compared to 932 in 1932, Van Duzer reported.

Sam Snead Wins Canadian Open Playoff

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Out on the Pacific Coast, George Marshall is again providing your light summer reading with fancy claims for his Redskins. He could, of course, makae a recording and save his breath, but Marshall is never as happy as when he is talking for what he hopes will be publication.

POVICH

In less time than it usually takes him to raise the price of Redskin tickets, Marshall this week has promoted his 170-pound halfback, Dick Todd, to dazzling stardom this season.

"Show me," said Marshall to newspapermen on the Coast, "a better back in all-pro football."

Okay, come this way, please. You will notice over there in the uniform of the Cleveland Rams a tall young man from Mississippi. His name is Parker Hall. He throws a football, runs with it and proves himself generally useful. Aside from the fact that he broke Sammy Baugh's record for completed passes last year, Hall didn't distinguish himself; aside from the fact that he was voted the best player in the entire league.

Now we take you to the training camp of the New York Giants—remember them? The stocky-legged fellow without the headgear is Tuffy Leemans. Folks do say he's wonderful on a football field. They've been saying that now for five years. Mr. Tim Mara, who owns him, has made no offer to trade Leemans for your Dick Todd, as far as we are aware.

Ever hear of Ace Parker? Well, until Parker Hall came along last year, the Ace was just about the best player in the league. The fact that he was with the Brooklyn Dodgers couldn't dim his star. His blockers usually end up following him. He runs, he passes and he kicks. He's a complete backfield all done up in one bundle of skill.

Incidentally, Whizzer White just joined up with the Detroit Lions. Remember him? Every club that played against him in 1938 should? All he did that year was to lead the league in ground gained, despite the operating behind the worst club in the league. He kicks and passes, too. A year in the study halls at Yale probably didn't hurt him. He'll be out there giving this year.

These are just a few of the guys who are sort of regarded as better football players than Dick Todd. But we are not by way of minimizing or underestimating Todd. We think he is the best back on the Redskins and one of the best in the league. We simply don't subscribe to the idea that there is none better.

Nor are we going to be hasty about accepting young Bob Seymour as "another Cliff Battles," despite the broad hints by the Redskins' bosses. Rookie Seymour may be a nice football player, of sterling character and kind to his folks, but not until he scores lots of touchdowns in the pro league and generally conducts himself as no less than a wham, does he qualify for the Battles label.

There has been only one Battles in the last decade of pro football and he quit the Redskins because he didn't feel like working any longer for $2,750 a season. Consider his emotions when he was playing alongside Sammy Baugh's $15,000 salary, taking out tacklers for Baugh, making Baugh look good generally, and lugging the ball to touchdowns himself when Baugh's passes couldn't create any.

The worst thing that has happened to Bob Seymour is his pre-season acclaim as "Another Battles." If that came from Marshall, it is tantamount to the kiss of death. The last guy Marshall tabbed as "another Battles" was a halfback named Abbott. That was only two years ago. But he was such an all-fired bust that we can't even recall his first name. He had arms, legs and a 6-foot frame but there his resemblance to Battles ended.

Marshall promised that Abbott would make "Redskin fans forget Battles." But somehow, the memory persisted. It seems that with Battles, the Redskins licked the New York Giants, 49 to 14. The next year, without Battles, the Redskins were nosed out by the Giants, 36 to 0. It was merely a discrepancy of 71 points in the two games.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 19.—The graduation of Nile Kinnick from Iowa is not the only thing Dr. Eddie Anderson will have to worry about this fall. Eddie has been named head coach of the all-star team which meets the Green Bay Packers next week in Soldier Field, Chicago. That's tantamount to wishing a disappointing season on him.

CONSIDINE

The late Noble Kizer, of Purdue, coached the first all-star team. His conglomeration of athletes held the champion Chicago Bears to a scoreless tie. But during the ensuing season his Purdue squad, out of which he was making his money, opened at the seams and lost to Rice, Notre Dame and Indiana.

In 1935 Frank Thomas, fresh from his Rose Bowl triumphs, coached the all-stars and was beaten by the Bears, 5-0. The next season Thomas' Crimson Tide was tied by little Howard and drubbed by Mississippi State. The next year the all-stars' coach was Bernie Bierman, whose outfit tied the Lions, 7-7. But Bierman's Minnesota Gophers suffered a rupture of their long winning streak during the ensuing season.

Gus Dorais was the 1937 all-star coach, as a reward for the way he handled his University of Detroit team the season before. His squad of luminaries licked Green Bay, 6-0, but Detroit promptly lost to Villanova, Manhattan and Duquesne. In 1938 it was Bo McMillin, of Indiana, whose all-star outfit beat the Redskins, 28-16. But during the 1938 season Indiana could win only one game.

Elmer Layden coached the all-stars last year, and saw his squad beaten, 9-0, by the Giants. That was all right, but Elmer's Notre Dame outfit, which was supposed to be his best, was lucky to beat Southern Methodist, Carnegie Tech and Purdue by transparent margins, and lost to Iowa and to Southern California.

Dr. Anderson will be asking if there is a doctor in the house, along about the middle of Iowa's season, unless all signs fail.

Want a fertile baseball farm? Beckley, W. Va., a verdant breeding ground for big leaguers, is without a big league connection. In fact it is without a club. Yet, according to an anguished message from J. Lewis Bumgardner, former president of the lively village's team, when it was a Class C farm for Cincinnati, Beckley produced Frank McCormick, Lee Grissom, Whitey Moore, Lee Gamble, Les Scarcella and Jimmy Outlaw and Cincinnati operated the club for only one year! Bill Werber started at Beckley, but before it was a Cincinnati farm.

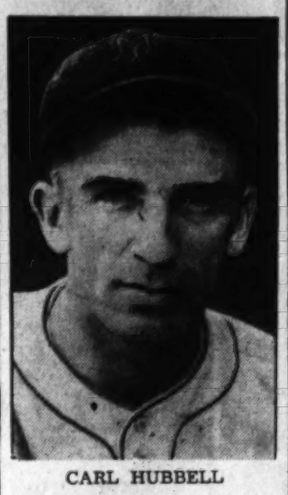
All this was in 1934, when Larry MacPhail was running the Red outfit. In 1937 Beckley became a Class D farm for Detroit, and the Tigers sent the club a raw rookie first baseman named John Gorczyca. "At the end of 1937," Bumgardner writes, "we felt that Gorczyca would never make the grade in the big leagues as a first baseman, but that he might make it as a pitcher. He had no experience as a pitcher and we knew that a right start meant everything. I spent three days at the minor league meeting before I was able to persuade Jack Zeller to send him to Beaumont for spring training, so that he could get his initial pitching instruction from Zeller and Al Vinson, Beaumont manager. What kind of a price tag would Detroit today put on Gorsica, nee Gorczyca?

Other Beckley products: Max Butcher, Lou Chiozza, Kemp Wicker, Fred Sington, Mervin Connors, Fern Bell, Del Young, George Scharein and Jose Gomez. "Isn't it a shame that a ball lot that started and developed talen of this nature, over a short period of years, is now growing up in weeds, and that the talent and enthusiasm which directed the development of these boys is idle?" Bumgardner asks. And we're afraid the answer is an obvious "yes."

Pete Reilly, manager of World Featherweight Champion Petey Scalzo, has advised the N. B. A. that Scalzo is ready to meet Harry Jeffra, another world featherweight champ, on a 50-50 split of the main event's purse. Lieut. Col. Heinie Miller, of the N. B. A., has gotten Sammy Angott's promise to fight Lew Jenkins on the same basis, but can't get Jenkins to agree to accepting the same dough as this other claimant of the lightweight title. Miller is now trying to wring promises from the managers of the two world middleweight champions, Ken Overlin and Tony Zale, for another one of these clear-the-atmosphere fights. Overlin seems willing, but Miller can't lure Zale.

The thing that keeps these conflicting champs apart is the old theory that when a champ fights he should get 37½ per cent of the gate, to the challenger's 12½ per cent. The question then would come up, "Which champ's the champ?" and it would end in a fruitless wrangle. Miller is doing a good job, trying to unscramble the confusion of these three divisions. His plan may succeed, even if it does make sense.

Reds Bow To Wobbly Giants, 9-2



CARL HUBBELL

Derringer Pounded As Hubbell Scores 3d Win of Season Over League Leaders

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 19.—Carl Hubbell and a makeshift Giant line-up that included John McCarthy at first base, Mel Ott at third and John Rucker at centerfield, were too much for the Cincinnati Reds who bowed, 9-2, today.

Hubbell, in marking up his third victory of the season over the league leaders, limited them to seven hits, and was never in trouble, while his starting opponent, Paul Derringer, was blasted for four runs in the first inning and driven to cover in the fifth.

The Giants, who displayed some of their worst form of the season in absorbing a pair of shellackings from the lowly Phils at the Polo Grounds Sunday, came back with a vengeance to pound out 14 hits off Derringer, Elmer Riddle, Milt Shoffner and John Hutchings.

Derringer was charged with the loss, his fourth straight and eleventh of the season and the defeat cut the Reds' lead over the idle Brooklyn Dodgers to four games.

The Giants clinched the game in the first inning when they scored four runs on five hits, three of them successive doubles. Rucker beat out a bunt and Moore sent him home with a double. McCarthy followed with another double that scored Moore and Harry Danning, with a third double to score McCarthy. Ott was out on an easy infield roller with Danning going to third, from where he scored when Tony Cuccinello singled.

In the fifth the winners tallied two more. McCarthy beat out a bunt and went to second on a passed ball and scored on Cuccinello's double. Witek's single scored Tony. The Giants made another pair in the sixth on Moore's single, Demaree's triple and McCarthy's long fly.

The losers scored in the first on Ival Goodman's tenth homer of the year and again in the eighth when Jimmy Wilson who singled, was advanced to third on another single and a walk and scored on Baker's infield out.

McSpaden Misses 2-Foot Putt on 18th

Snead's Par 71 Nets $1,000 Prize; Winner Misses 5-Foot Birdie Putt on 18th

By the Associated Press

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Winchester, Mass., missed a 2-foot putt on the eighteenth green today and let the Canadian Open golf championship return to Sam Snead, of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., who held it in 1938.

The missed putt gave Snead the 18-hole playoff by a one-stroke margin as 1,500 spectators saw the two Americans decide their 72-hole deadlock. Each finished the regulation four rounds with a 281 total Saturday, when McSpaden rallied on the last 36 holes to overtake Snead, who had hacked nine strokes off par on the first two rounds.

Today Snead had a par 71 after a rather shaky start. He was out in 37, one under par, and came back in 34. McSpaden shot 38-34—72. Snead took $1,000 first prize and McSpaden $600 for second.

Both Miss Putts

All the drama of the playoff round was packed into the few minutes spent on the last green. Snead's second shot was only 5 feet away while McSpaden had a 40 footer to match the West Virginian's likely birdie. Jug's long putt stopped 2 feet from the cup. Then Snead stepped up, hit his ball and missed. It looked like another nine holes of playoff until McSpaden's ball also failed to drop.

In the locker room afterward, McSpaden said his short putt was "against the grain of the green," and "just seemed to scoot off to the side after I hit it." That was the way Snead saw it, too, for he said to the man he had dethroned: "You know, that was a pretty tough putt to make even if it was a short one."

McSpaden Takes Lead

McSpaden had a two-stroke margin after the first five holes, picking up one on the fourth and another with a bogie five on the 490-yard fifth. Big Sam evened with a birdie on the long sixth as Jug drove into a creek and needed a six. Snead went a stroke up at the ninth and gained another with a birdie on the 542-yard tenth, but McSpaden won the netx two holes. Birdies by Snead on the fifteenth and McSpaden on the sixteenth left them all square and then halved the semi-final hole.

McSpaden didn't seem especially downcast about his costly miss, for he chuckled when Sam drawled out: "Hey, Jug, get this. There's a fellow that says it was the battle of jittery putters."

Hudson on Mound Today as Browns Open With Nats

Sidney Hudson, now a five-star attraction for Griffith Stadium fans, will greet the Western invasion of the Nats' park today when he takes the mound against the St. Louis Browns.

Young Hudson, winner of three-straight since his six-game winning streak was halted, holds a one-hit victory over the Browns.

The St. Louis club is here for a two-game series, after which every other Western club will move into Griffith Stadium. The Browns' goal is the sixth-place berth now held by the Nats by a margin of 3½ games.

Following the sale of Charley Gelbert to the Red Sox yesterday, the Nats announced that Coach Ossie Bluege had been restored to the active list. The Nats are now operating with 20 players, five under the limit.

Rain Rescues Tigers As Yanks Lead, 3-0

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—A severe rainstorm which held up play for over an hour, finally caused postponement of the game between the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers at the Yankee Stadium today.

The Yanks had scored three runs in their naif of the fourth inning and were ahead, 3-0, when the umpires called the game.

The game will be replayed tomorrow as part of a double-header.

'Lippy' Durocher Sees Pennant Ahead for His Daffy Dodgers

Brooklyn Manager Figures September Schedule Will Help

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 19.—Although his Dodgers are starting a tough Western tour four games behind the league-leading Cincinnati Reds, Leo Durocher still figures Brooklyn has a very good chance to win the National League pennant.

"If we come home only three games behind, we'll win the flag," Leo said shortly before taking off. Luke Hamlin's return to pitching form, Whit Wyatt's consistently good mound work and Joe Medwick's hitting comeback were three reasons he gave for holding this belief. Then he added:

"I think we're a cinch to improve our standing on this trip, so how can we miss? The schedule will be in our favor all through September."

Challedon Gets Top Weight in $25,000 Stake

To Carry 133 Lbs. in Chicago Race Sept. 2; 130 Assigned Kayak

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 19.—William L. Brann's Challedon, the 1939 horse-of-the-year, was assigned top weight of 133 pounds in the $25,000 added Washington Park Handicap to be run September 2 over the mile and one quarter route.

Challedon will be asked to carry 3 pounds more than Charles S. Howard's Kayak II, according to the weight list announced by the Washington Park Handicapper, Charles J. McLennan.

William Woodward's Hypnotist II, a European bred star, was assigned 116, the same figure given A. A. Baroni's Specify.

In all, 44 thoroughbreds were nominated for the race. If ten go to the post the event will gross $34,500, of which $26,800 will go to the winning owner.

Spill Robs Wearly Of Boat Victory

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 19 (AP).—Paul Wearly, of Muncie, Ind., national outboard champion, treated 2,000 spectators to a thrill today at the American Legion outboard races.

After winning both heats in Class B over the choppy waters of the Saginaw River, Wearly shot into the lead in the Class C race only to have his boat overturn and sink.

Coast Guards rescued him and recovered his boat.

Wearly's mishap enabled Bob Meyer, of Chicago, to win both heats in Class C. Charles Thompson, Detroit, won the two Class A heats. Twenty-nine drivers participated in the regatta.

Doctor Baker Wins His 12th Straight

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19 (AP).—Doctor Baker, 4-year-old pacer owned by A. F. Simpson, Grand Forks, N. Dak., won his twelfth consecutive start and thirty-sixth straight heat of the season today in the 2:24 class race, inaugural feature of the Illinois State Fair's Grand Circuit meeting.

The speedy brown son of Volomite, driven by George W. Baldwin, took the winner's share of the $1,400 purse in straight heats, pacing the second mile in 2:04, lowest mark of the day.

The McNamara starting gate is being used here for the first time.

Savold Scores Kayo

Gelbert Sold To Red Sox For $7,500

Veteran Shortstop Bought From Nats To Bolster Infield

On the last three days of June, the veteran Charley Gelbert hammered Red Sox pitching in Fenway Park for eight hits in 15 times at bat. Yesterday the Red Sox bought him. He was sold by the Nats at the $7,500 waiver price.

Casting about for a reserve shortstop for their late-season drive, the Red Sox apparently remembered the batting feats of the 33-year-old Gelbert. Three of his blows during that Washington-Boston series were two-baggers. He was the deciding factor in the Nats' three victories of the four-game series.

Gelbert's purchase by the Red Sox is insurance against injury to Manager Joe Cronin, the only shortstop with the team. Five straight victories—their latest a triumph over the Indians which reduced to six games the margin separating the Red Sox from the top—have renewed Boston's pennant hopes.

Batted .370 Here

Gelbert is regarded as a steadier fielder, even than Cronin. In 22 games with the Nats this season, he boasts a batting average of .370, but he lost the regular shortstop job to the more sprightly Jimmy Pofahl.

Since he came up with the Cardinals in the late twenties, Gelbert has been a much-traveled big leaguer. Boston is the fourth major league club he has joined. Star of the 1931 series, Gelbert was forced to retire from baseball for two years after wounding his left leg severely in a hunting accident. Attempting a comeback, he slipped out of the majors via the Cincinnati Reds.

Drafted By Nats

The Detroit Tigers brought him up from Toledo in 1938, used him as a utility third baseman, and released him to Toledo again. The Nats drafted him in the winter of 1938-39 and used him as a utility infielder.

Because the Detroit club had promised to make him a free agent, Gelbert carried a claim to the office of Baseball Commissioner Landis and was awarded the $7,500 draft price which the Washington club had paid Toledo for his contract.

Star Tackle Lost To Northwestern

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 19 (AP).—Fred Dahlkamp, highly rated 196-pound junior tackle, will be missing when Northwestern's Wildcats take to the gridiron this fall.

Dahlkamp was lost to the Purple eleven for the entire season Saturday night when he suffered a broken hip in the collision of two cars at Evanston. A letter-winner as a sophomore in 1939, Dahlkamp was counted on to win a starting berth at tackle this season.

He is expected to be in the hospital between two and three months. Dahlkamp lives in nearby Hammond, Ind.

Bees Win, 3-0, Drop Pirates Into Sixth

Errickson Outhurls Bowman for Ninth Victory of Season

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 19 (AP).—Dick Errickson pitched Boston to a 3-to-0 victory today over Pittsburgh, winning his ninth game of the season against nine defeats and tumbling the Pirates into sixth place in the National League standings.

Sebastian Sisti scored the deciding run in the third when he doubled and Carvel Rowell singled. Chester Ross' single sent in two more runners after a walk and Deb Garms' error placed them on second and third bases.

Except for this lapse Joe Bowman pitched as well as his opponent, the Pirates being unable to hit in the pinches.

Tabor Hits Home Run With Bases Loaded; Foxx, Williams and Doerr Also Homer

RAIN WASHED OUT two of the three scheduled American League games and the net result of the day's action was Boston picking up a game on Cleveland and a half-game on the Detroit Tigers. The New York Giants, behind Carl Hubbell, beat the Cincinnati Reds in the National League feature and enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to pick up a half game, cutting the Reds' lead to four.

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 19.—The Boston Red Sox gained their most decisive triumph of the season over the League-leading Cleveland Indians today by hammering three pitchers for 14 hits, including four homers, for a 16-7 decision. It was the fifth straight for the Cronin men.

Jim Tabor smashed out a "grand slamer" against Johnny Humphries in the fourth inning after Jimmy Foxx had belted his thirty-third circuit drive of the year. Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr also helped pile up the score by driving balls out of the park.

The sockers teed off against Starter Joe Dobson in the third inning and then hopped on Humphries to pull into a 12-2 lead at the end of the fourth. That margin was a great help to Joe Heving, for the Indians whaled his slowball pitching for 12 hits, including homers by Hal Trosky, Jeff Heath and Roy Weatherly.

Foxx, Williams and Doerr each scored three times, and Foxx led the sockers' attack by getting three hits for four, including the game's only two-bagger. The Indians sent 16 players to bat against Heving as he collected his eighth win but only Weatherly, Trosky and Roy Bell managed to hit safely against him twice.

Dobson gave the Sox six hits and as many runs before he was yanked and Humphries was shelled for seven hits and nine runs. Dorsett took over the Cleveland mound in the eighth inning and gave but one hit, Doerr's homer.

Germany Forfeits Sailing Trophy in California Regatta

By the Associated Press

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 19.—There is only one "sure thing" regarding the 1940 world championship regatta of the International Star Class Racing Association, which begins tomorrow off Point Loma.

That is—the huge titular trophy will be returned to the Western Hemisphere for at least a year's stay after reposing for two years with the Hamburger Flotte, Germany.

The Hamburger Flotte's boat, Walter von Hutschler's Pimm, won the trophy in 1938 at San Diego, and again in 1939 at Kiel, but will not defend the championship this year. There are no other European challengers.

Eighteen entries are here from the East Coast, Cuba, Nassau, the Great Lakes, the Hawaiian Islands and West Coast harbors.

Legion Game Rained Out

Cameo Defeats Heurich, 8-3, and Wins Second-Half Title

3,000 Watch Printz Hurl Six-Hit Game

Victory Gives Cameo Place in Play-Off For Championship In Post League

Otis Printz threw a six-hit game at the Heurich Brewers yesterday to give the Cameo Furniture nine an 8-3 victory and undisputed possession of the second-half title in The Washington Post-Industrial League.

Cameo, leading the Brewers, first-half winners, by a game in the second half standings before yesterday's tilt, thus earned the right to challenge the Heurich team in a best two-out-of-three championship play-off starting today.

More than 3,000 sandlot baseball fans packed the South Ellipse diamond to watch Manager Connie Wyche's nine rout the Brewers for the second time in six days and become at least an even-money choice in the play-off series.

Cameo Grabs Lead

Heavy hitting by Bill Harris and Woody Godfrey, who paced the winners' ten-hit attack, gave Printz an eight-run lead before Heurich hit the scoring column with all their runs in the eighth and last inning.

Leonard Downs was the losing pitcher, giving up seven hits and two walks before he was relieved by Art Lacy in the midst of Cameo's five-run fifth.

Printz fanned seven and allowed six hits, including two doubles, in the eight innings he worked. Darkness prevented a ninth inning.

Godfrey's single was the big blow as Cameo took a 2-0 lead in the third, while Huck Stahl's error accounted for one run.

Singles by Albert, Godfrey and Schwab, a triple by Harris and double by James figured in Cameo's fifth-inning outburst that put the game out of Heurich's reach.

Teams Clash Today

Pepco Barry was the only man in the loser's line-up to hit safely more than once, solving Printz' deliveries for a single and double.

Frank Deavers and Jimmy Schwab will be Cameo's battery in the first of the playoff games today on the West Ellipse, at 4:30 p. m. Ed Colliflower and "Fee" Collier will be Manager Bennie's choice to stop Cameo's winning streak. The second game will be played tomorrow and the third, if necessary, on Thursday.

American Pro-Grid Schedule Announced

New York, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—The American Football Association today announced a 30-game schedule for the 1940 season.

The schedule opens Thursday night, September 12, when the newly admitted Long Island Indians make their home debut in Dexter Park against the Patterson Panthers. Providence opens at Paterson, N. J., Sunday, September 15, the same day Wilmington begins the season at Newark. Jersey City will be the last to go into action, meeting Long Island on the following Thursday.

The six-club minor league circuit will conclude the season on November 24 with Jersey City at Newark and Long Island at Providence and Paterson at Wilmington.

Great Throw Catches Brewer in Close Play at Home

"Pepco" Barry, of Heurich nine, was caught at home plate on a great throw from the outfield by Cameo's Bill Harris in the fourth inning of yesterday's championship game in The Post Industrial League. Cameo won the second-half title in this game and will meet the Brewers today in the first game of the play-off for the league title

Billy Soose, Zale to Meet Tomorrow

Middleweights in 10-Rounder in Chicago; Zale Slight Choice

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Tony Zale and Billy Soose, two star pupils in boxing's 160-pound class, are going to work at Mils Stadium Wednesday night—on each other and the muddled middleweight championship picture.

Zale, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the middleweight champion, won't be risking his title in this scheduled ten-round affair because it's an overweight match. But the former mill worker from Gary, Ind., will be risking loss of much prestige both to Soose and Ken Overlin, recognized as the 160-pound king by the State of New York.

Soose recently beat Overlin in an overweight match at Scranton, Pa., making a great finish to take the decision. On Wednesday night he has the chance to whip a second straight 160-pound titleholder and claim recognition as the No. 1 middleweight in the land even though he'd hold no crown.

Zale, who won his title by knocking out Al Hostak in Seattle last month, likely will be a slight favorite to win and strengthen his claim to ranking as the standout of his division. A terrific body puncher, he has a world of stamina built in two years' work in the Gary steel mills.

New Net Champion

Milwaukee, Aug. 19 (AP).—Marv Wachman, of Milwaukee, won the men's singles title in the State Open Tennis Turnament today with a 6—1, 6—1, 3—6, 6—2 victory over Garner Larned, of Chicago. Larned had previously captured the junior crown.

Trapshots Threaten Opening Day Mutiny

New Light Trapshell Load Is Object Of Petition; Six National Champions Crowned During Early Shooting in Ohio

By the Associated Press

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 19.—Six national championships went into the record books today at the forty-first Grand American Trapshoot, but the opening day's 100,000-shell barrage caused less reverberation than a threatened mutiny by some of the country's top-flight marksmen.

Petitions were circulated up and down the long trap line demanding the Amateur Trapshooting Association directors outlaw the present "light" trapshell load and return to the former 1¼ ounces of pellets.

The petitions found ready signers, especially among the "hot shots," who felt that the lighter load was handicapping their shooting. The new load, effective this year by A. T. A. decree, is 1⅛ ounces, eliminating about 40 pellets from each shell.

Leading figure in the fight was Frank M. Troeh, 20-time Oregon State champion from Portland.

Sponsors of the petition said they would present their protest Wednesday night before the A. T. A. directors.

Sam Sharman, of Salt Lake City, Utah, winner of his State title at least a dozen times, and rated the most traveled trapshooter in the game, captured the Champion of Champions title in a scrap with kings of each of the States.

Sharman, former president of the A. T. A., cracked 99 of 100 to tie Charles Gunning, of Denver, Colo., annd J. McFadden, of Pykesville, Md., and then beat them with a perfect run of 25 in a shootoff. Gunning finished second with 23 of 25, while McFadden broke only 20 in the added event. Vic Reinders, of Waukesha, Wis., and Ned Lilly, of Stanton, Mich., tied for fourth place with 98 of 100.

Jannazzo Hopes N.Y.Ring Edict Gets Him Armstrong Go

The New York State Boxing Commission is expected to force Henry Armstrong's hand very shortly, and bring about a welterweight championship match between Izzy Jannazzo, of New York, and Holman Williams, titleholder, according to reports. Jannazzo meets Joe Louis' fighter Monday at Griffith Stadium.

It was announced yesterday that Bill Brown, one of the belligerent members of the New ork commission, would ask Mike Jacobs to match Jannazzo against Armstrong just as soon as the champion is ready to resume trainig.

Back from his talent-scouting expedition yesterday, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced he had booked Tony (the Killer Kiene,Dixie bantamweight champion, for a special attraction on the Jannazzo-Williams card. Kiene, hailing from Savannah, Ga., has won 63 professional fights and has 43 kayoes to his credit. He has lost but one decision.

Menendez said the match will mark Kiene's first Eastern fight. Ring Magazine rates him as the eighth best bantamweight in the world. A top-notch opponent will be secured for him.

Billy Banks, local colored ace, will fight on the Williams-Jannazzo card, with an opponent to be named. Banks drew with Johnny Buff last Monday.

Vince Farrar In Hospital; 'Skins Leave

Rookie Halfback Will Probably Be Cut From Squad This Week

By Al Hailey

A Staff Correspondent

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 19.—The Redskins left Rookie Halfback Vince Farrar in Spokane's Sacred Heart Hospital tonight as they entrained for Seattle and the first of two intrasquad exhibition games which Coach Ray Flaherty will use as a guage in cutting his roster down to 33 players.

Farrar, who received a split nose in Saturday's scrimmage as he tackled Ray Hare, rookie half from Gonzaga University, developed muscle spasms in his back this morning and will be in the hospital a week.

The torn muscles, received in the same Saturday scrimmage, prevent him from standing upright. The Redskins obtained him in a straight cash deal from the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Farrar's injury makes him a certainty to fall by the wayside when Flaherty begins cutting down the squad of 45. The former blocking back at North Carolina State had shown little promise in practice.

As the Redskins packed up for the game in Seattle, which will be for the benefit of war refugee children, Frank Filchock, the lone houdout, was back in the fold.

Mauriello Defeats Molnar in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Tami Mauriello, 151, of New York, pounded out a clean-cut decision over Gene Molnar, 152, of Johnstown, Pa., in the main 8-round fight before 4,000 fans at the Coliseum tonight. Mauriello, unbeaten in 20 professional starts, won every round although he could not floor his opponent.

In preliminary 6-rounders, Johnny Flores, 153¾, Houston, Tex., outpointed Stanley Berl, 156¼, Maspeth, N. Y.; Aaron Zeltner, 125¾, New York, outpointed Ricardo Clemente, 123¾, Philippine Islands, and Carlos Cuebas, 119, Puerto Rico, won a decision over Joey Puig, 118, Tampa, Fla.

Col. Bradley Puts Bimelech In Retirement

Preakness Winner Never to Race Again; Broke Bone in Foot

By the United Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Bimelech struck his silks forever today.

Col. Edward Riley Bradley announced that X-ray photographs disclosed a broken bone in the colt's foot and that he would be retired to stud in Kentucky at once.

The aged owner said the veterinarian who inspected the horse and the picture said the "bar which connects the frog to the side wall" had been snapped. He explained that it would take at least six months for the bar to grow back and at least another four months for it to "muscle" to a degree where Bimelech could stand hard training.

At Idle Hour Farm

The long period of convalescence meant that the son of Black Toney could not return to the tracks before 1942 if at all, so Bradley said he would be retired to the stud block at Idle Hour Farm.

"Bimleech will be shipped to Kentucky immediately," Bradley said. "He will go to stud next spring and will cover a book of 15 mares. In all respects except the bar he is sound as a proverbial bell and should prove a great sire just as he was a great race horse."

The colt, bred by the colonel and hailed as the greatest horse he ever had owned, injured himself during a workout Saturday. At first the hurt was diagnosed as a bruised heel. The Idle Hour entourage said the colt's poor showing in his last race, the Arlington Classic in which he ran third, might be attributed to the injury.

16th In Winnings

Bimelech retires as the sixteenth richest money winning horse produced in America. One of the great 2-year-olds in history, 2 won six races without defeat last season and earned $135,090.

Shortest winter-book favorite in Kentucky Derby records, he won his first two starts of 1940—the Blue Grass Stakes and the Derby trial—with ease. In the Derby, however, he ran second to Gallahadion. He won the Preakness but was beaten in his next start, the Withers Mile, by Corydon.

He came back again to win the Belmont Stake but ran the worst race of his career at Arlington Park in the Classic when he finished third behind Sirocco. In 13 starts he won ten races, was second twice, third once and never out of the money. His earnings for the two years total $235,095.

Lynchburg Nine Nears Va. Pennant

Harrisonburg	52	50	.510
Salem	46	53	.465
Staunton	42	58	.420

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 19.—Lynchburg climbed nearer the Virginia League pennant during the past week, as Harrisonburg, in second place, dropped four straight games to Salem.

Lynchburg starts the new week 9½ games ahead of the second place Harrisonburg club, which now must fight it out with Salem to hold second place.

The Turks after dropping four in a row to Salem turned around yesterday to vanquish Lynchburg, 4 to 2. This was the thirteenth time in the last 14 games that Harrisonburg has conquered the league-leaders. This showing against the 1939 champions has availed nothing for every advantage gained against the Senators is lost to Salem.

During the abbreviated week, Salem turned in four victories and one loss while Lynchburg was winning three and losing one. Harrisonburg took it on the nose to the count of four reverses against one win. Staunton had the same losing record.

Bruce Coltart and T. Penrose Win Lancaster Invitation Tournament; Walper and Peacock Top Local Duos

Special Dispatch to The Post

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 19.—Washington pro-amateur teams were among the "also-rans" in Arthur Thorn's annual Invitation Pro-Amateur Tournament here today at Lancaster Country Club as Bruce Coltart, the long-hitting red-head from Abescon, N. J., and his amateur partner, T. Penrose, won the event with a best ball 66.

The field of 76 teams included Henry Picard, the National P. G. A. champion, and Big Ed Dudley, the last Ryder Cup team captain from Philadelphia Country Club. However, the big boys had their troubles as Picard, who will begin defense of his P. G. A. crown on Monday, required 80 strokes and Dudley was 75. Sam Byrd, Dudley's assistant, was one under par with a 71.

Rain, Wind Hurt Play

An all-day rain and a brisk wind made scoring difficult and most of the District pros reported no card in the pro sweepstakes and only three duos scored par or better in the pro-amateur play. Leo Walper, the driving range pro, and Roger Peacock, his amateur partner from Indian Spring, tied for last prize with a best-ball 70. Their prize, however, was little more than caddy fees.

Lew Worsham, Burning Tree, and Ralph Bogart, the District Amateur champion from Congressional, posted a best-ball 71 while the Kenwood Club team of George Diffenbaugh and George Vass matched par figures with a 72.

Other D. C. Scores

Other District scores were Eddie Stevens and Bobby Brownell, Manor, 73; Buck Worsham, Chevy Chase, and E. M. Hossechem, Lancaster, 73; Al Tredor and H. L. Lacey, Manor, 75; Bob Barnett and Louis Mackall, Chevy Chase, 75; Mel Shorey and Dick Melvin, Indian Spring, 73; Al Houghton and Volney Burnett, Beaver Dam, 75; Cliff Spencer, East Potomac, and Mike Rooney, York, Pa., no card; Tommy Doerer, jr., and Bobby Bowers, East Potomac, 70.

Walper's 75 was the best score among the District professionals in the sweepstakes.

Baltimore teams fared better than the Washington representatives as Leo Fraser and Spencer Overton, Rolling Road, tied for second with a best ball 67. The other second place teams were Terl Johnston and Phil Carson, Norristown, Pa., and Charles Shepherd and Duff Bullough, Huntington Valley C. C., Philadelphia. The Baltimore duo of Joe Kirkwood, jr., and Nathan Kaufman tied for third best score with a 68.

Charles Shepherd posted the only sub-70 score of the day, a 69, to win the professional sweepstakes purse.

Brother-and-Sister W. Maryland Doubles

Oakland, Md., Aug. 19 (AP).—Adrian Hartman and his sister, Joy, of Pittsburgh, won the mixed doubles title in the Western Maryland Tennis Tournament today when Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Andraide, of Montauk Beach, Long Island, defaulted in the final match.

Each team had won one set when play was postponed late yesterday because of darkness. The final set was scheduled for this morning, but the court was wet and Mr. and Mrs. Andraide left for the Cincinnati tourney, conceding the match.

Staunton Bows

Staunton, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—Playing before 1,600 people, the largest crowd ever to witness a ball game in the local park, the Staunton Presidents celebrated Merchants' night by losing, 1 to 0, to the Salem friends. It was one of the best games played here this year.

150 Plebes In Navy's First Football Drill

Head Coach Wilson Puts Fourth-Class Squad Through Paces

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Aug. 19.—The football season had its preview at the Naval Academy today when more than 150 members of the new plebe, or fourth class, reported for practice to Head Coach John N. Wilson.

Wilson, who is a Marylander and a product of St. Johns College, Annapolis, is an all-around athlete, has been connected with Naval Academy sports for over a score of years, and is head coach of the varsity basketball team. Assisting him through the season will be several former naval stars. In today's initial workout he had the assistance of the full complement of varsity coaches, headed by Maj. Emery E. (Swede) Larson, Marine Corps, chief mentor; Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, formerly of Notre Dame, line coach, and Keith Molesworth, backfield mentor. This big group will work with him until September 7 when the squad of 80 varsity candidates will report for practice.

In the heat of an August day the plebes cantered onto Farragut Field in shorts, with jerseys of light material. The opening practice was confined chiefly to passing and general handling of the ball, but the program will be carried on in earnest as weather conditions permit.

Tru-Blu Wins Softball Feature; Bankers Beaten

Tru-Blu won the feature game as the District Softball championship first round games were resumed last night in Ballston stadium. The Beermen defeated Civil Service, 3-0.

In the second half of the double-header I. B. M. was too much for Washington Loan and Trust, winning 19 to 0.

Joe Martz pitched five hitless innings for Civil Service against the Tru Blu ten but Phil Cassidy's triple broke the tie in the sixth inning.

Glorious Time Wins Feature at Saratoga on Sloppy Track

Pays $74.30 For Victory; Colosseum 2d

Favored Now What Is Badly Beaten; First Victory in 8 Starts for Winner

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 19. Glorious Time, from the stable of Marion M. Morin, afforded a glorious time for the comparative few with courage enough to back her in the featured Escutcheon Purse, for fillies and mares, here this showery and cloudy afternoon. Racing over a sloppy track between raindrops, the 3-year-old chestnut clicked by two lenghts and paid $74.30 for $2. It was the filly's initial success in eight starts this year.

Charlton Clay's Colosseum, another lightly backed miss, closed with a rush to earn the place by three-quarters of a length. G. D. Widener's Rosetown, an entry with Thorn Apple, was an easy third.

Alfred Vanderbilt's Now What drew most of the play but never was a vital factor in the running. The attendance was held down to 7,124, with the mutuels play accordingly lighter than usual.

A good bottom remained on the track, as shown by the 1:12 running time for the 6 furlongs.

Thorn Apple did her part for the Widener entry by either making or forcing the pace into the stretch. Small World and Teacher also vied for early command, but the trio backed up when the important running began. Glorious Time, rallying from fifth place and saving ground at the last turn, drove to the front and staved off the belated bid of Colosseum. Rosetown gradually improved her position and looked a threat after straightening for home, but she faltered in the final drive.

Running back to his recent winning performance, H. P. Headley's Third Covey found it an easy assignment to defeat a half dozen rivals in the sixth, a Class "D" Handicap at one mile. The supremus colt and Tony Steel staged a pretty head and head duel to the stretch, where Third Covey imposed his will upon his older opponent and pulled away for a three lengths victory. He returned $6.90. Tony Steel was second by two lengths, while Millbriar headed the well liked General Mowlee for the show.

Bill Bennings

At The Post

Selections at Saratoga

Dear Al:—Well it won't be long now. It can't be long. Tomorrow afternoon the horses will be within walking distance at Marlboro. Yes, we're going back to the tobacco country for a ten-day stand that promises plenty of action. Brother Farrell and the boys in charge have done the best they could with the little track but most important, they will have the "big three" of racing. I mean the tote, the electric starting gate and the electric finish camera. So I guess we can squat up there on water tank hill and see some real racing. Horses are the least of Marlboro's worries. They came in from Cumberland in droves. Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan, as usual, will have more bangtails than he knows what to do with when he calls for entries this morning. Trainer George A. Cook, a Washingtonian by the way, got in with his string including the Bennings Stables' Clymene. She had some tough luck and was second at Cumberland last Saturday. However, we expect to pick up a purse at Marlboro. I talked to M. B. (Pop) Goss, of Winchester, Va., yesterday. He has his brilliant two-horse stable on the grounds, consisting of Dohoev and Judges Bid. Goss, who does his own training, had a remarkable record at Cumberland. He sent Dohoev to the post three times and the horse won on each occasion. He saddled Judges Bid in three steeplechases and he won one and finished second in two others. Goss' conditioning of Judges Bid has been sensational. The big horse, a maiden on the flat, was whipped into a jumper and may go on to great things over the brush. Jockey Willie Kelly got in and promises to carry on the great work he did at Cumberland. He won the gold watch emblematic of the jockey championship. Took the honors on the closing day. Jockey A. F. Martinez is due to report. Although he has been fine in the saddle, Martinez has been in bad with Lady Luck of late. He knows little English and, rather than trust his money in a bank, he kept it in his room. A thief took $700 one night at Cumberland. In addition, Martinez drove a car and had some trouble which has cost him several hundred. He still smiles, however. At Cumberland, he was called on for a speech over the public address system and whipped out a long tale in Spanish. See you on the rail tomorrow. BILL.

First race—The duPont-Mellon Larchfield and Never Surprised appears as good as anything in an open jumping affair. Either of these well bred horses could take down the major portion of the purse. Equilibrium is fit and should be in the pay circles. Jack Horner for the show end.

Second race—Sanwick has a recent good effort as a recommendation in this field. Has a fair entry mate in Flower Parade. Not Yet has shown speed on occasions and is dangerous. Haste Back for the minor award.

Third race—Jaw Breaker probably is a shade the best of this field. Promises to get the right ride and I'm going to string along. Egress and Kaptime to take care of the place and show awards.

Fourth race—Admiralette gets the call in this field of maiden 2-year-old fillies. She has the speed and the class, and looms as the best bet of the afternoon. Miss Spitfire and Nile Queen are good, and should be in the thick of contention.

Fifth race—Toddle On appears well placed in this sprint. Works have been encouraging and I see no reason for mistakes. Red Dock has speed and will be right there despite the heavy assignment. Snow may be in the pay circle.

Sixth race—Aethelwold may take the measure of these at the weights. Likes the 7-furlong route and needs only the right handling. Up the Creek and Bosley are on edge and should be in the thick of the stretch battle.

Seventh race—Cros Question likes the distance and appears ready to turn back opposition of this kind. May take the top and never look back. Navy is a fair sort and may cause the top one some trouble. Nudge to take care of the others.

Eighth race—Capt. James seems to have the day's finale at his mercy. He has led better than these to the wire. Microphobia and Impressionist are at home at the route and will be ready to battle it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Best bet—Admiralette.

Recreation Net Entries to Close

The Open Tennis Tournament for Women, both singles and doubles, to be conducted by the D. C. Recreation Department, will begin on Saturday, August 24, the same day the men's tournament gets underway. Play will start at 2 o'clock on the Sixteenth street reservoir courts.

Maude Parker, director of the women's tournament, has announced the following committee to assist on arrangements, pairings and seeding of players: Mrs. Willie O'Steen Herbert, Eleanor Voith, Charlotte Decker, Catherine Wassman. There will be two Junior members also, Betty Jacob and Anne Cullen.

Entries should be sent or phoned to the Recreation Office, 1740 Massachusetts avenue northwest; Michigan 1155, or phone National 6000 and ask for Playground Office. Entries should be in before 5 p. m. on Friday, August 23.

ON FISHING

Weather Playing Hob With Off-Shore Fishing Activities

Winter, when it should have been spring, then a torrid spell that seemed to be as hard on the fishing as it was on the fishermen, and now, the longest spell of northeast weather we can remember. It is playing hob with the offshore fishing—make no mistake about that.

ACKERMAN

At Ocean City the boats are getting out on the average of about four days a week, and having trouble finding the marlin schools when they do get out.

Going back a week, the Lev-Lou come in last Tuesday with a single fish. The following day the count was two. One of them, an 80 pounder was caught by Capt. Ches Gray, which makes it look as though there was something besides the small school marlin out there. On this day Dr. George Ellis, of Washington, brought in an 82 pound tuna.

On Thursday the count was again one marlin, although most of the 20 boats out had from one to a half-dozen tuna. The single fish was on the Lev-Lou also. Friday and Saturday the boats were in at the docks, but out again on Sunday.

Capt. Vic Lance was the lucky one for the single marlin on this day. It weighed 61 pounds. Capt. Leo Droughton fishing A. M. Ferguson on his Sampan, hung on to a big mako that gave considerable trouble before it was boated. It weighed 152 pounds.

There's plenty of dolphin there, and acres of the small bait fish, which is what it takes to bring the big fish in. With a little break in the weather now, the going should be exceptional. We believe the real fishing will come during the next 30 days, although Capt. Walter Clay, of Miami and Bimini, evidently thinks differently, for he and his cruiser Horse Conch are on their way South again.

In the upper bay any angler without bloodworms for bait has been out of luck, for that is what the big Norfolk spot are biting on, and the small trout consorting with them are doing likewise. Soft crabs and peelers are just as unproductive as shrimp would be, yet, we still continue to take them along—just in case they do change their mind.

Senator A. O. Stanley, his son, Ben Ault and Milton Gordon fished the Tall Timbers area on Sunday, and had all sorts of luck, but not with the soft crabs-floatlining for stripers on the stone piles. After fishing for spot throughout the day around Ragged Point, and picking up more than a dozen small trout at the same time, they went back to Tall Timbers in the evening, where, by way of trolled feathers, they acounted for 13 stripers weighing from 2 to 8 pounds.

The best fishing we know of anywhere right at this time, and an idea of what is in store for anglers in another week or two when these fish get schooled right.

Swain's Stretch Rush Wins in Futurity Trial

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Swain, Cleveland Putnam's winner of the Arlington Park Futurity, beat three other eligibles for Saturday's $43,000 Washington Park Futurity in the Sheldrake Purse at the Homewood track today.

Trailing most of the way, Swain uncorked a drive on the rail in the stretch and won by two lengths. Valdina Farm's Valdina Myth and Woolford Farm's Vilvestra, both fillies, ran a dead heat for the place. Valdina Groom, another Futurity eligible, and DeKalb, a noneligible, completed the field.

Swain, ridden by Jockey Bill Thompson, returned $4.80, and ran the 6 muddy furlongs in 1:14 2-5.

13 Letter Men Return; Debelle to Replace Walsh at Center

By the Associated Press

Emmitsburg, Md., Aug. 19.—Twenty-five candidates are expected to report to Head Coach Jim Draper September 4 for the first practice session of the 1940 football season at Mount St. Mary's College.

At least 13 lettermen from last year's squad are expected to return. They are Rogan, Debottis and Dougherty, ends; Donahue, O'Connor, Foy and Butakis, tackles; Lamas, Joe Lawless and Topper, guards, and Hall, Asip and Klotz, backs.

Debelle, regular guard last year, will be switched to center, to fill the place vacated by Jack Walsh, All-Maryland center, lost by graduation.

Draper also must find replacements for Joe Sheehan, guard; Bob Stevens, All-Maryland back, and Jack Burrick, blocking back, all of whom were graduated, and Jim Moyland, punter, who is not expected to return to the Mount.

Leo Klotz probably will do the punting if Moyland does not return. Pete Grandell and Joe Boyle, both fast backs, are available to replace Stevens. Ed Donahue, tackle, is captain of the team.

Seeded Stars Lead Parade in Public Parks Tennis Meet

Three Breeze Past First Round Foes

William Anderson, No. 1 Player, Wins In Straight Sets In Cincinnati Play

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 19.—Three seeded favorites breezed through the first round of the national public parks tennis tournament today, leaving the fireworks to lesser known stars.

Willis Anderson, of Los Angeles, No. 1 seeded, trimmed John Hewitt, of Georgetown, Ohio, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-0, 6-1. Jerry Crowthers, also of Los Angeles, and seeded No. 2, ousted the East Cleveland champion, Morrin Milcoff, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

The third favorite, hard-hitting Bill Maul, of Detroit, seeded sixth, staged a whirlwind attack to down Ed Von Sien, of Minneapolis, No. 1 player of the University of Minnesota, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1. While favored to win, Maul's crushing victory provided the most spectacular match of the day.

Harry Zink, of Steubenville, Ohio, went five hard-fought sets before his blazing forehand ousted Herbert Peck, Niagara Falls, N. Y. Scores were 6—1, 1—6, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3.

In another five-set match, Johnny Frank of New Orleans, eliminated Michael Swetina, of Detroit, 6—2, 6—3, 3—6, 2—6, 6—4.

Ned Stafford of Niagara Falls, overcame the persistent lobbing of the veteran Clevelander, Courtney Bock, to win after losing the first two sets. Scores were 3—6, 4—6, 6—1, 6—3, 6—3.

Eugene Quinn, of Chicago, defeated Bryon Taylor, of Nashville, 6—2, 6—1, 6—0.

M. J. McLaney, of New Orleans, defeated Earle Frey, of Lancaster, Pa., 6—2, 7—5, 6—2.

Ward Parker, of St. Louis, defeated Robert Fite, of Georgetown, Ohio, 6—1, 6—2, 6—2.

Hobart Wrobbdel, of Detroit, defeated Fred Olson, of St. Paul, 6—4, 6—4, 5—7, 7—5.

Guy Blair, of Tulsa, Okla., defeated George Rushton, of Niagara Falls, by default.

Allen Carvell, of St. Louis, defeated John Sillia, of East Cleveland, 6—1, 6—0, 6—2.

Walter Smigel, of East Cleveland, defeated Ray Suchy, of Milwaukee, 6—4, 6—4, 7—5.

Ed. Kilguss, of Philadelphia, defeated Joseph Kristueek, of Pittsburgh, 7—5, 8—6, 6—0.

62 Yearlings Bring $86,200 At Saratoga

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The next-to-last yearling sale of the Saratoga season failed to produce any high bidding tonight as the offerings of Walter Salmon's Mereworth Stud, E. K. Thomas, E. D. Axton and Morton L. Schwartz went under the hammer.

Elmer Trueman, of Baltimore, paid the top price of the night, $5,600, for a bay colt by Bold Venture out of Pepsin, one of two consigned by Schwartz. The entire lot of 62 head sold for $86,200, an average of $1,381.

Mrs. Ethel Mars, of Chicago, leading buyer of yearlings here for the past six years, made her usual purchases, leading out two yearlings for a total of $7,700. She got a black colt by Ariel-Posted for $5,500 and a chestnut colt by Display-Chalet for $2,200. Both came from the Salmon consignment.

J. H. Loughheim, of Philadelphia, bought four baby racers for $7,900 while H. C. Phipps, of New York, paid $4,000 for a chestnut colt by Balladier-Twig from the Axton consignment.

Cincinnati Officials Are Not Worried

20-Game Home Stand Expected to Help Faltering Leaders

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 19.—For the first time this year there was no one at the big Union Depot today to welcome the Cincinnati Reds back from the outlands, but if you think the National League champions are in the dumps, buy another ticket.

It may be whistling in the graveyard moonlight, but there's nobody around the Reds' front office or on the field who gives a good blankety-blank how many games the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers win, or who doubts that the National League champions will repeat.

"The Reds have been over the bumps," said one of the faithful among the officials, "but they're looking better. Up to a week ago we had lost 12 out of 21, but we won 3 of the last 7 games.

"Besides, we've been playing .700 ball at home all season and don't think that home cooking for the next 20 games isn't going to help that hitting slump. The outfield already is hitting better, and if we can play .700 for this home stand, we're in and no foolin'."

Nobody seems to be the least worried over recent losses by Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters behind some spongy batting.

"We don't care how many they lose as long as they keep on pitching the way they are," said the commentator. "We'll start getting them some hits and runs which is all a couple of guys like that need."

The long home stand brings every club in the circuit here. This fact ought to be the final test of the foregoing opinions.

For those who believe that history repeats, the opinions are bolstered by certain comparisons with this time last year, when the Reds also blew a big lead but came home in front.

A year ago yesterday the Reds lost a double-header to St. Louis here, and yesterday they did it out there. A year ago today the Reds had a three-and-a-half-game lead over the Cardinals on 69 won and 41 lost, and today they had a four-game lead over Brooklyn with 69 and 41.

This may or may not be significant.

Amateur Diamond Managers to Meet

A special meeting of the managers of all teams who have a chance to play in the National Amateur Baseball Federation City Championship series has been called for 7:30 tonight at 1004 Vermont avenue northwest.

Bill Fiester will preside at this meeting and all plans and details for the city series will be mapped out so that play can start just as soon as the U. S. Government and the Industrial League winners are decided. St. Elizabeth's has already won the Militia League banner and will represent that league in the championship play off.

These three leagues will settle the local National Amateur Baseball Federation championship by the double knockout system, and the team winning will leave for Birmingham, Ala., on September 5 as Washington's representative in the national tournament.

One stroke behind were Matt Gardner, of Darien, Conn., 1939 tournament winner, and Bill Worthington, of Sweetbriar, Va.

Tunas Evade Anglers in U. S. Tournament

Only Two Caught, One Below Minimum; To Enlarge Area

By the Associated Press

Delmar, N. J., Aug. 19.—The Sheepshead Bay Tuna Club, of Brooklyn, N. Y., took the lead today in the third annual United States Atlantic Tuna Tournament as anglers reported a dearth of fish.

Only two tuna were caught. Only one counted in the scoring as the other was 20 pounds below the 75-pound minimum.

Capt. Tex Rickard, on the cruiser Two Pals, was the fortunate angler. His 79¼-pound bluefin earned three points for the Brooklyn club. He was credited with having weighed in the largest tuna, having the largest aggregate weight, and docking with the "most" fish over 75 pounds.

Fred Evers, of the Belmar Fishing Club, killed the other tuna as the tail-end of a storm tossed the 38 boats carrying anglers from 10 clubs in New Jersey and New York.

A heavy ground swell greeted the contestants when they arrived at the Mud Hole, spot in the ocean where the competition started. This afternoon they were further handicapped by rain squalls.

As a result of the slim haul, tournament judges decided tonight to enlarge the fishing area for the remaining two days of the tournament.

Lynchburg Tied, 3 to 3

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—Lynchburg's night baseball ordinance left Harrisonburg and Lynchburg in a 3-3 tie after 12 innings tonight. The ordinance prevents the start of an inning after 10:30 o'clock.

Virginia Net Entry Lists Close Today

Closed Championship Starts Tomorrow at Oakwood Club

By the Associated Press

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 19.—Drawings for the sixth annual Virginia closed tennis championships will be held tomorrow night and play will get under way at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning on the courts of Oakwood Country Club.

Annie Sloan, Oakwood tennis professional, said tonight that over 25 entries have been received for the men's singles and about 15 for the women's singles. There also will be men's doubles and mixed doubles.

Heading the entries is G. Alphonso Smith, Alexandria veteran, who has twice held the State title. Landon Buchanan, of Charlottesville, runner-up to last year's champion, and Dick Tindall, of Arlington, will draw the No. 2 spot. Bobby Leitch, Richmond City champion and winner of the southside Virginia championship, will be seeded third, and Charley Turner, Roanoke veteran, is the fourth ranked man. Buchanan recently won the Mountain Empire tournament, held in Roanoke.

Tindall, a cadet at the United States Military Academy, will not defend his crown. He is unable to leave his classes at West Point.

Leitch will pair with Al Dickinson with whom he won the Richmond Doubles Championship.

Football Teams Need 'Squint-Eyed' Passers

Chapel Hill, N. C., Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Ray Wolf, University of North Carolina football coach, told the university's nineteenth annual coaching school today that "one of the Nation's greatest football needs is for squint-eyed boys who can pass." Squint-eyed boys wouldn't give away the play by movements of their wide-open eyes, he said.

D. C. Leaders Of Trade Units At Evanston

Capital Executives Give Courses at Annual Institute

Washingtonians are figuring prominently in the National Institute for Commercial and Trade Organization Executives which is under way this week at the Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. The institute, which is held annually, attracts several hundred executives of local chambers of commerce and trade associations.

The courses relate not only to problems of business organizations but also to some of the major economic issues confronting American business.

Turner Catledge, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, will speak on the Washington situation. Ralph Bradford, secretary, and Ben B. Lawshe, manager of the commercial organization division, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, are among the lecturers on subjects of interest to commercial organizations.

Washington executives who will give some of the courses on trade association work include Robert C. Hibben, executive secretary of International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers; V. P. Ahearn, executive secretary of National Sand and Gravel Association; A. M. Ferry, secretary of Wire Cloth Manufacturers Association; George A. Lilly, managing director of American Dental Trade Association; Henry P. Fowler, manager of the department of manufactured and Philip P. Gott, manager of the trade association division, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Scholarships Given

Russell M. Searle, secretary of Advertising Specialty National Association, and Jean A. Hollander, of the Can Manufacturers Institute, received scholarships from the Washington Trade Association executives. W. R. Burt, of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, won the John N. Van der Vries Award.

Among other Washington executives who have enrolled for courses are Sylvia L. Pacelle, executive secretary of American Trade Association Executives; Norma A. McKellops, assistant secretary of National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries; Lawrence S. Smith, executive secretary of Junior Board of Commerce; Edward F. Gillen, Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Jeannette Dulin and R. H. Mercer, American Dental Trade Association; Richard P. White, executive secretary of American Association of Nurseymen, C. E. Arney, jr., National Association of Broadcasters, and Robert Wilson, National Restaurant Association.

The institute, which opened Sunday, will close Saturday.

Bank Assets at Peak

Preston Delano, Comptroller of the Currency, announced yesterday that the 5,170 national banks in the United States had reached an all-time high total of $36,885,080,000 assets.

This total was revealed after compilation of condition reports made by the banks as of June 29, and was $1,148,423,000 larger than on March 26 and 3,704,502,000 more than a year ago.

Deposits of the banks also reached a new high of $33,074,407,000, a gain of $1,078,139,000 over March 26 and $3,604,988,000 over June 30, 1939.

Loans and discounts were $9,179,227,000, an increase of $118,935,000 since March and an increase of $805,524,000 in the last year.

Compared with March, the banks' investments in Government obligations increased $139,960,000, but their investments in State, local and private obligations declined $22,125,000.

Purely Personal

Theodore W. Cook, general agent of National Life Insurance Co., of Vermont, is on a two-week vacation with his wife and daughter. Following their vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Cook will attend the National's educational conference in Chicago September 2-5, and will return September 6.

Mr. Cook's agency had 100 per cent increase in paid business for the first six months of 1940 over the corresponding period last year, and the agency reports a sizable increase of volume of insurance in force.

Sugar Futures

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The world sugar futures contracts shied away from new low prices today and closed unchanged to 1½ points higher. Both trade and speculative interest was spurred by formation of definite plans in Cuba to defer shipment of sugar the certificates of which specified movement prior to next December 31. Sales totaled 13,250 tons: September, *.65; December, *.72. September liquidation dominated trade in domestic futures, which ended 2 points lower to 1 higher on turnover of 7,550 tons. Offerings of raw sugar were scaled up from 2.68 cents a pound, but no business materialized. In the refined market show white brand (off-shore sugar) was offered for immediate shipment at 4.12½, a 5-point cut. Other refiners quoted 4.20-4.35.

Auto Output Nearly Doubles In Week; Ford Assembly Starts

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 19.—From January 1 to date, the Nation's automobile assembly plants have turned out 2,787,350 vehicles, Ward's Automotive Reports says in its current weekly survey of the industry. The total compares with 2,336,679 for the comparable period of last year.

Production for the week ended August 17, the trade paper says, was 20,475 units, compared with 11,535 in the preceding week, the gain representing the first of a series of advances that will continue until late September. Continuing, it says:

"Initial production for 1941 went through the lines last week at Ford, where some few passenger-car jobs were turned out, at Olds and at Dodge—the latter in the "pilot" car stage. Studebaker turned from preliminary assemblies to mass output.

"It is not expected that the present pilot car output at Ford will be augmented by production of any consequence for two weeks or more. But Dodge volume may be expected to turn up sooner, and Cadillac may have some 1941's off the line next week."

Ward's credited Ford with a total output last week of 3,100 units, and by way of explanation said:

"Impetus of Canadian truck ordering brought the volume into improved ground; . . . of the few passenger cars (included in the aggregate output), several were test units of 1941 models, and it was understood that about 100 comprised experimental six-cylinder models which may be introduced later in the forthcoming model year."

Discussing exports of automotive products, the survey says a decline of about normal proportions took place during June, as compared with the preceding month, adding that the figures "continue to be well below their 1939 counterparts."

Rail's Income In Period More Than Doubles

Louisville & Nashville Nets $3,572,580, or $3.05 a Share

Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. reported for six months ended June 30 net income of $3,572,580, equal to $3.05 a share on the capital stock, compared with $1,372,351, or $1.17 a share in the first half of 1939.

Kansas City Southern

Kansas City Southern Railway Co. reported for the first six months net income of $499,084, equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to 15 cents a common share, against $177,975, or 85 cents a share on the preferred stock in the comparable period a year ago.

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co. reported for the six months ended June 30 profit of $1,278,230, equal to 45 cents a share on common stock. This compared with $2,427,093, or 88 cents a share, for the first half last year.

E. H. Little, president, explained the statement for the 1940 first half did not reflect operations of certain foreign subsidiaries.

Jewel Tea Co.

Jewel Tea Co. reported for the 28 weeks ended July 13 net earnings of $733,760, equal to $1.31 a share on capital stock. In the same weeks of 1939 earnings were $719,835, or $1.29 a share.

Union Tank Car Co.

The Union Tank Car Co., Chicago, reported net income for the six months ended June 30 of $1,074,967, compared with $976,436 the corresponding 1939 period. This was equivalent to 89 cents a share, as compared with 81 cents a year ago.

Exchange Market

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The free pound sterling rose 1 cent to $4.01½ today, only a shade under the official price set by London financial authorities. Money dealers said the "free" unit would probably disappear from the market, place soon because there is no way to create additional "free" pound supplies.

New pressure developed against the Hongkong and Shanghai dollars after a period of stability. The Hongkong money dropped .15 of a cent and the Shanghai .07 of a cent.

The Canadian dollar remained unchanged at 89⅜ U. S. cents.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Candian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying, 10 per cent premium; selling, 11 per cent premium. Equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of: Buying, 9.91 per cent; selling, 9.09 per cent. Canadian dollar in New York open market, 13⅜ per cent discount, or 86.62½ U. S. cents.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Aug. 19 (AP). (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—There was some demand for original bags, fine territory wools, in the Boston market today. Bids were mostly around 80-83 cents for original bag wools running bulk average to good French combing length, but many dealers were holding their wools above this level. A number of inquiries were being received for medium grads of both fleece and territory wools.

Foreign Markets

London, Aug. 19 (AP).—The financial district received a new stimulus today in reports of Sunday's R. A. F. operations and security prices were firmly maintained. Coppers, followed by gold shares, were most in demand. Heavy industrials and tobacco stocks attracted favorable attention, but changes were small. Domestic rails wobbled after a steady start. Oils and rubbers stayed in the background.

Liverpool, Aug. 19 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 3 points lower to 4 points higher today. Hedging sales against East Indian and other outside growths acted as a depressant.

Grains Lower, Other Staples Are Irregular

War Uncertainties Continue to Drag On Commodities

By the Associated Press

Rallying tendencies cropped out in selected industrial raw materials and food stuffs in futures markets, but war ucertainties continued to drag on others.

Wheat at Chicago fell more than a cent before rallying, but final quotations were still down ¾ to¾ of a cent a bushel. Corn was unchanged to ⅛ down. Hedging in connection with the season's largest receipts at spring wheat terminals was an added weight on prices.

Rubber dropped an outside of nearly 1-20 cent a pound at New York. The price range set by the Government to acquire reserve stocks of raw rubber was viewed as linked to the futures price.

Hides also fell back, along with silk and wool tops.

Cotton inched up 5 to 25 cents a bale. Small orders easily influenced the market. World sugar improved after recently selling at record lows, and Santos coffee, also hammered lower lately, improved.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, slid to a new low for the year at 69. This compared with 69.04 Saturday.

Big Board Cuts Loss in Period

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange and allied organizations, for the six months ended June 30, today reported an operating loss of $9,802 before depreciation, compared with an operating loss of $336,360 in the like 1932 period.

Operating income was $2,766,765, compared with $2,601,372 a year ago, and operating expense $2,776,567, against $2,937,732.

Business Failures Increase in Week

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Business failures in the United States last week reversed the downward trend of the previous week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The number was 279 compared with 252 for the week ended August 8, and with 253 for the comparable week of 1939.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP).—Wheat prices dipped 1⅜ cents at one time today to within about a cent of the year's lowest level, but then rallied.

Closing figures were only ⅝ to ⅞ lower than Saturday, with September at 68⅜@68⅞ and December 70⅛@70⅝.

Hedging sales in connection with the largest receipts of the season at spring wheat terminals, liquidation of September contracts, which become deliverable in two weeks, and trade nervousness over the war accounted for the selling. Buying attributed mostly to mills helped the rally.

Corn closed unchanged to ⅜ down, September 60¼. December 54⅛@54⅜; oats unchanged to ⅛ off; rye, ¼@⅝ down, and lard 8 lower to 2 higher.

Traders who considered that Chicago wheat prices were about 12 cents under the Government loan rate while Minneapolis prices were 20 cents lower than the value of wheat stored as collateral there, were not inclined to press the market. Minneapolis and Duluth, the principal spring wheat terminals, received 2,499 cars, compared with 1,159 a week ago and 1,650 a year ago, but not much of this grain was put up for sale.

Government statistics indicated that at mid-August 60,000,000 bushels of new wheat were under loan. 22,000,000 bushels more than on Augus t6. As of August 26 last year the total was only 57,000,000 bushels. Traders pointed out, however, that loan figures lag behind actual lending operation.

Truckers in down-State Illinois were reported paying 29 cents for No. 2 white oats, about equal to the Chicago price. Rye declined as much as 1½-1¾ cents at one stage to new lows for the season due to stop-loss selling.

Lard followed the action of grains.

N. Y. Produce Mart To Start Trading In Soy Bean Oil

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The New York Produce Exchange will start trading September 3 in prime crude soy bean oil for future delivery, James J. O'Donohoe, president, announced today.

The contract will be for 60,000 pounds of prime oil of specified grade produced from domestic soy beans.

Warehouses from which oil must be tendered for delivery have been licensed at Decatur and Chicago, Ill.; Louisville, Ky., and Elmhurst, N. Y.

At the inception of the market, trading months will be October and the seven succeeding months.

Commodity circles said the new market would be the first national exchange for soy bean oil.

Orders Pour In For New Box Cars

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 19 (AP).—A $250,000 order for 100 box cars for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad was reported today by Pullman-Standard Manufacturing Co.'s plant at Bessemer.

Pullman-Standard is now at work on a $2,500,000 order from Illinois Central for 1,000 box cars.

Frederic O. Reemer, Pullman-Standard vice president, said the plant would begin work in about ten days on an order for 200 hopper cars for the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad.

Manufacture also will begin shortly on 25 cement cars for the L. & N. Railroad and 75 similar carriers for Southern Railway.

Other cement car orders yet to be filled include 50 for seaboard airline; 25 for N. C. & St. L., 15 for Central of Georgia and two for the Virginia railroad.

Georgia Leaf Prices Show Lower Trend

Atlanta, Aug. 19 (AP).—Farmers sold 32,297,638 pounds of tobacco in Georgia markets last week for $5,722,700.09—an average of 17.72 cents per pound.

This compared with an average of 18.78 for the first two sales days of the season the week before last.

Bank Loans Rise 15 Million During Week

Boston, Cleveland Districts Show Biggest Advance

By the Associated Press

A $15,000,000 increase in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of banks in 101 leading cities was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board for the week ended August 14.

The gain, the second in as many weeks, brought the total in these cities to $4,461,000,000, which was $349,000,000 more than a year ago.

Biggest increases last week were $6,000,000 in each of the Boston and Cleveland Federal Reserve districts.

Mexico Delays Its Valuation of Seized Oil Assets

Mexico City, Aug. 19 (AP).—The federal attorney general's office today decided that several classifications of property formerly owned by the expropriated oil companies have "no fiscal value."

As a result, it was reported, the announcement of the government's valuation of the holdings of the 17 British, American and Dutch concerns which President Cardenas seized two years ago will be delayed indefinitely pending a revision of the experts' findings.

Government appraisers, after several months work, had been reported ready to submit their figures this week.

Company-constructed homes of workers, bath houses, pump houses, and warehouses, were excluded by the attorney general's opinion from inclusion in the final appraisal. His reasoning was not made public.

Slight Rise Seen In Steel Output

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Steel mills will boost output schedules to 89.7 per cent of capacity this week from 89.5 per cent last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago production was at 88.2 per cent of capacity and a year ago 62.2 per cent.

The Nation's mills have been working around 90 per cent for the past six weeks, which climaxed a pull ahead from about 60 per cent in late April.

G. M.'s Diesel Plant Plans 2 New Wings

Cleveland, Aug. 19 (AP).—Increased orders from the U. S. Navy has made necessary addition of two new wings, at a cost of several hundred thousands of dollars, to General Motors Corporation's Cleveland Diesel Plant, General Manager George W. Codrington announced today.

The diesel division has been awarded contracts recently for about $20,000,000 worth of propelling equipment for new summaries, and turned out about $4,000,000 worth of Government business last year.

Assistant to Martin Named by Exchange

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange today announced appointment of Wayne Van Orman as special assistant to President William McChesney Martin, jr., to handle organization work in connection with the exchange's new nationwide public relations campaign.

Van Orman, 34-year-old New Yorker and member of the State bar, for 12 years has been in the employ of Decoppet & Doremus, a stock exchange member firm.

B. & O. Handlings Gain

Baltimore, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad today reported 53,361 cars of freight handled during the week ended August 17, an increase of 6,229 over the corresponding week last year. The total handled for the week ended August 10 was 51,888.

The Market

Stock Prices Stalemated in Dullest Day Since 1916; Only 129,650 Shares Traded

New York, Aug. 19.—Records of years' standing were broken today as Wall Street waited for some development in the European war or in domestic politics that would shake the market out of its rut. The acceptance speech of Wendell Willkie was favorably received but the fight for the Presidency is still too even a contest to tempt traders to take a definite stand on either side of the market.

The acceptance speech in itself did not change the outlook. Much the same uncertainty over the ultimate outcome applies to the war abroad, and until there is a break in one direction or the other, no trader wishes to back his guesses and hopes with a large amount of dollars.

The figures on today's trading were discouraging and the street is full of a generation of employes, business men and investors who never saw a day to equal it. Only 129,650 shares changed hands on the big board, the dullest full day's trading since August 7, 1916, or before America entered the World War. The curb exchange has never had such a dull day. This exchange started trading indoors in 1921. The volume in the bond market was likewise a low record for recent years.

Obviously under such conditions the price fluctuations were meaningless. The Herald Tribune's composite average edged up 0.02 point. Oils were soft and motors no more than firm. There was fair support for the aviations, food and store stocks. Only 492 individual issues appeared on the tape and the widest net change in the list of the 15 most active stocks was a quarter point.

Gains of more than a point were made by du Pont, Union Carbide and Westinghouse but these were exceptions, virtually all of the other well known stocks being held within narrow fractional ranges.

The market derived some encouragement from the continued firmness of prices on the London exchange, where there has been no sign of panic despite the daily raids by the German air force. London dispatches ascribed buying in that list to the increased R.A.F. raids on the continent over the week-end and to the high morale maintained in England after a week of bombing.

Business news was favorable but along with domestic politics it contributed nothing that could encourage market operations. The belief among brokers is that the war is the dominating influence and will remain so for the immediate future. There was a slight rise in steel operations to 89.7 per cent of capacity and reports from automobile centers indicate that the motor manufacturers are getting into the production of the new 1941 models. The Federal Reserve reported construction in July at a new ten-year peak and industrial production for July and the first half of August holding the gains made in the two previous months.

Mixed price changes characterized leading commodity markets. Wheat went to new lows in early dealings on moderate hedging sales connected with large receipts at spring wheat terminals. There was a late rally which left futures off ¾ to ⅞ cents a bushel at the close. Cotton closed up 1 to 5 points as trade price-fixing offset small hedging sales.

Listed bond trading was on an exceedingly small scale today, but the turnover of just under $2,000,000 was at least slighly in excess of some of the recent full sessions, and no records were chalked up in this department of finance. Price changes were modest, save in a few foreign dollar issues. United States Treasury securities reflected a little inquiry, especially in the later maturities, which recorded gains of 5/32 to 7/32 point. Best-grade corporate bonds were virtually motionless.

Norwegian bonds were favorites in the foreign section, owing to the patient endeavor of that country to meet its full debt service. Advances of 1 to 4 points were recorded in the Norwegian issues for small trades, and Danish obligations were also in demand. French and Belgian bonds were not traded.

The German and Italian groups were uncertain, as further developments in the war were awaited, but Canadian and industrial bonds were marked higher. Argentines did well in the Latin-American group, which otherwise was dull.

A BILL of RIGHTS for our CUSTOMERS

BECAUSE important sums of money are involved, the investment and brokerage business operates under specific rules and regulations. Definite methods of procedure have been established. Some were government sponsored. Many were instituted by the brokerage business itself. Others are the work of individual houses. All of these regulations establish definite rights for customers.

It is the fundamental policy of Merrill Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt to emphasize and enforce our customers' rights. We clearly define these rights and disseminate knowledge about them as widely as possible.

We would like to tell you more about these rights in specific terms and have prepared an informative booklet entitled "A Declaration of Policy", which we will mail to you promptly upon request. No obligation of any sort is involved.

We have offices in 38 cities, memberships in 27 exchanges, 12,000 miles of leased wires. These facilities represent the mechanics by which we deliver efficient service.

Japanese Air Raiders Fire Chungking

Hundreds of Casualties, 25,000 Homeless as Mile-Long Area Burns

By the Associated Press

Chungking (Tuesday), Aug. 20.—Firemen succeeded early today in controlling flames which swept through a vast section in the center of this provisional Chinese capital after a Japanese bombing raid, estimated to have caused several hundred casualties.

Authorities said the conflagration had desetroyed at least 2,000 buildings and left 25,000 homeless. An area a mile and a quarter long and a quarter-mile wide was burned.

The American Methodist Church and a 100-bed French Catholic Hospital were among the buildings destroyed, either by bombs or the subsequent fire.

The bombs were dropped every few minutes for two hours on central Chungking and the hitherto undamaged western residential section in the fifth air raid in three days, and the hardest attack since the bombings started early in June.

Several thousand policemen, air-men and volunteers battled late into the night to prevent the flames from spreading beyond the bomb-splattered area before new raids loosed still wider destruction throughout the Chinese provisional capital.

The American Methodist Hospital escaped damage and its staff treated 50 persons injured by the bombings and awaited any survivors who might be brought out of the flaming buildings.

Authorities said four hours after the fires began that none but a few firemen who entered the blazing area had lived to fight their way out through the intense heat and smoke.

One heavy bomb exploded close to the Associated Press office.

The American Methodists said the fires were checked before spreading to their hospital, but the Methodist Church was "burned to ashes."

The Rev. O. F. Stockwell, missionary from Oklahoma, said the loss amounted to several thousand dollars.

U. S. Envoy Tours City

The fate of the Anglo-American China Inland Mission residences was not immediately learned. Their buildings are within the fire area.

Officials said the Japanese incendiary bombs used in the attack were the quickest acting and most destructive yet dropped on the city.

Flood Imperils More Towns In N. Carolina

Death Toll Rises As Crest Moves Down Roanoke River

By the United Press

Weldon, N. C., Aug. 19.—The death toll of one of the worst floods in the State's history rose slowly tonight while the record crest of the Roanoke River moved steadily toward Williamstown and other towns toward the sea.

Seven were reported drowned in this area, and three others were missing. Isolated families were reported drowned but there still was no confirmation. New deaths in the western section, now rebuilding after its floods, brought the State toll to 32.

Feeding, clothing and housing the thousands of refugees became the major problem and the State sent representatives of all its relief and rehabilitation agencies to the scene.

Between 7,000 and 10,000 were thrown out of work when water and fire destroyed manufacturing plants and rich farmlands.

Roads, Bridges Hit

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley said today mounting stacks of damage reports left no doubt that the past week's flood would cost the State heavily in bridge and highway repairs.

Scores of small bridges, approaches and fills were swept away in the flood waters that inundated low-lying areas from southwest Virginia to Tidewater.

Highway workers continued their overtime task of attempting to open main routes, some of which have been blocked for four or five days.

Petersburg, stricken by an unprecedented Appomattox River flood, continued to battle high waters that have swirled from 6 to 7 feet deep in front of the station and over railroad yards for two days.

Richmond and Emporia, other points caught in late crests, were able to begin mopping up as the water receded.

Shell Fishermen To Protest Rule

By the Associated Press

Protests of Virginia shell fishermen against what they claim is unnecessarily strict interpretation of public health service regulations of natural water storage of shellfish will be laid before public health officials at a conference here today.

Those at the conference, arranged by Representative Bland (Democrat), of Virginia, will seek to obtain modification of the interpretations placed on the use of "floats" for the storage of shellfish, or a suspension of the regulations pending further study of the areas affected.

The Public Health Service will be represented by Assistant Surgeon General Joseph W. Mountin and members of the staff concerned with field work in connection with shellfish sanitation.

Fair Draws 7,500

Luray, Va., Aug. 19.—More than 7,500 persons are estimated to have attended the Page County Fair Saturday afternoon and night, the first day since the opening that the fair had favorable weather.

Turks Reported Promising Aid to Greece

Pledge Assertedly To Take Effect If Italy Threatens

Athens, Greece, Aug. 29.—Turkey was reported in informed quarters to have promised Greece today to come to her aid in the event this country is threatened by Italy.

This report was made after the Turkish minister to Greece called on Premier General John Metaxas.

However, officials remained silent on the significance of the minister's visit.

(A bitter press campaign against pro-British Greece has been under way in Italy since an Albanian patriot, Daut Hoggia, was decapitated near the Albanian-Greek border over a week ago.

(Authoritative Italians have insisted Greece has territorial designs on Italian-ruled Albania and some circles have said Premier Mussolini would demand slices of Greece and Yugoslavia for Albania in a "general settlement.")

Nazi Mediation Reported

Athens, Greece, Aug. 19.—Despite continued relaxation today in the tension between this country and Italy, everyone believes that Rome will make stiff demands on Greece sooner or later. It is understood that the Greek minister at Berlin has been informed that for the present the Italo-Greek affair could be considered closed thanks to German mediation.

While apparently nothing sensational is imminent, the Italian legation here says the problems remaining between Greece and Italy must "eventually" be solved.

Diplomats believe Greece will not only be asked to make certain territorial concessions but also to renounce the British guaranty and grant economic privileges to the Axis powers. There is some talk of the Axis considering requests for certain changes in the constitution of the present government.

Italy is particularly most anxious to prevent Greek merchant vessels from working for the British. A great part of this country's commercial fleet has regular headquarters in England. British convoys, from time to time, load up at Greek ports, particularly Salonika.

Today's Radio Highlights

1 p. m., WMAL—Miss Bainbridge Hayden, well-known about town as the daughter of Admiral Hayden, has just returned to this country after broadcasting to America for the French government. On the last ship to leave France after the capitulation, Miss Hayden is being piped the Streamlined Journal from Washington so the networks may hear some of her experiences.

6:15, WJSV—Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, of the Civil Service Commission, talks on "Women and the National Defense."

6:30, WMAL—Senator Burke of Nebraska, co-author of the Burke-Wadsworth Conscription Bill, explains his plan further to the country at large.

7:30, WMAL—Walter Wanger is one of Hollywood's most unique and independent producers. Recalled for "Blockade," "Algiers," and "Stagecoach," he joins the regulars on Information Please.

8, WMAL—Helen Jepson spent years and great ambition to become a leading singer, shares Musical Americana with Buddy Clark.

8:30, WOL—Such a feast for the lover of the old time songs: "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" and "Old Folks at Home" are on Morey Amsterdam's Laugh 'n' Swing club.

9:15, WJSV—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, replies to an address made by Admiral William H. Standley, former Chief of Naval Operations, when he proposed that the United States turn over reconditioned destroyers to England.

9:30, WOL—The other side of the picture again: An Anti-Conscription Rally.

Listen! with Glynn

A ton of silver dollars seems to be a lot of silver dollars—65,000 of them in fact. And that's the number which has been paid out to the public within the past four years as the result of an idea just tossed off one day by John Heiney, WJSV's sales promotion director.

That idea was the "Professor Quiz" show which you hear over C. B. S. every Tuesday night at 8:30 and it's to celebrate its fourth birthday in October. In preparation for that, Lee Little, production man for WJSV when the program started, and its overseer during its long network history, has dug up a fine little group of statistics about it in addition to that nicely rounded figure of $65,000 which has been paid to contestants and senders-in of questions.

For instance, the stamps used on the letters sent in have cost $50,000. There have been 1,700,000 such epistles. The secretarial staff has sorted approximately 12 million—count them—questions.

Since ten contestants take part every week, five on the early program, and five on the repeat show for the West, that makes 2,000 persons who have taken part in the battle of wits.

All in all, the WJSV influence is still strong in it. Bob Trout, who serves as its master of ceremonies, is a former WJSV announcer.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Monkey Business Under New Management — BY MILTON CANIFF

A DELIGHTFUL SURPRISE! WHEN HU SHEE CHANGED PLACES WITH ME IN THE PRISON, SHE DID NOT MENTION THE NAMES OF THE WAITING AMERICANS!
SO THAT KID ENTERED THE JUG SO YOU COULD ESCAPE! THAT'S THE PART OF HER SCHEME SHE DIDN'T TELL YOU, RAVEN!
THIS, THEN, IS THE MONIED ONE WHO AIDED MY YOUNG FRIEND! THE DRAGON LADY IS GRATEFUL, MISS!
THAT'S ALL VERY WELL... BUT I DIDN'T BARGAIN TO HAVE THAT SWEET CHILD LEFT TO ROT IN A PRISON CELL!
HU SHEE KNEW THAT... SO SHE DID NOT REVEAL HER COMPLETE PLANS! YOU MUST REMEMBER THAT CHINA NEEDS THE DRAGON LADY MORE THAN HU SHEE! IT IS NO MORE OF A SACRIFICE THAN ANY SOLDIER IS ASKED TO MAKE!
PERHAPS... BUT I AM FOND OF THAT GIRL! I WON'T LEAVE WITHOUT HER!
VERY NOBLY SAID, GENEROUS ONE... BUT THE DRAGON LADY IS IN COMMAND NOW! WE WILL PROCEED AS I DIRECT!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

BUT, LUKE! IF I CAN EXPLAIN THAT PURPLE SHIRTS MEMBERSHIP CARD!
YOU'LL HAVE TO DO SOME TALL TALKING JOHN! THIS LOOKS TO ME LIKE CURTAINS FOR YOU!
WHEN MY SECRETARY WAS DOING HER BORING-FROM-WITHIN, SHE GOT ME TO SIGN AN AUTOGRAPH, FOR A KID BROTHER--AT THE BOTTOM OF A BLANK CARD!
GREAT GUNS!
THEN, ALL THE OPPOSITION HAD TO DO WAS PRINT THE WORDING OVER YOUR SIGNATURE!
OF COURSE! NOW, IF YOU'LL PUBLISH THE FACTS--!
JOHN, DON'T YOU REALIZE THAT AN ANGRY PUBLIC WOULD LAUGH AT SUCH A FLIMSY STORY? WE'VE GOT TO THINK UP SOMETHING STRONGER THAN A DENIAL--AND DO IT FAST!
DALE

DONALD DUCK — The Sheep Count Donald Out — BY WALT DISNEY

MICKEY FINN — All Set! — BY LANK LEONARD

I SHOULD THINK YOU'D BE GLAD TO HAVE A SMART MAN LIKE FRANK KOMMENTS WRITE YOUR SPEECH, PHILIP--HE'S A POLITICAL EXPERT!
AND HE KNOWS ALL THE CROOKED THINGS THAT MUFF HAS PUT OVER ON THE TAXPAYERS!
WELL--I'LL GO DOWN AND SEE WHAT HE'S WRITTEN--BUT IT'LL BE A WASTE OF TIME--I'M WRITING MY OWN!
HE'S THIS TRUE THAT MUFF BOUGHT UP ALL THIS LAND BECAUSE HE KNEW THE CITY WANTED IT FOR A PARK--AND THEN SOAKED THE CITY $100,000 FOR IT?
ABSOLUTELY MR. FINN--I CAN BACK EVERY STATEMENT WITH POSITIVE PROOF!
AND NOBODY WILL KNOW YOU WROTE IT FOR ME?
NOBODY!
HAVE YOU GOT YOUR SPEECH ALL READY FOR TONIGHT, PHIL?
THAT I HAVE, CLANCY--I WORKED ON IT UNTIL THREE THIS MORNIN' TO MAKE SURE IT WAS PERFECT!

DIXIE DUGAN — Being Watched — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

THE GIRLS DON'T KNOW IT BUT THE BOYS ARE WATCHING THEM FROM ABOVE!
SIS SAW SUMP'M IN THAT WOODS!
THAT'S WHERE THEY'RE HEADIN' ALL RIGHT!
LISSEN--DO YOU HEAR A MOTOR?
YEAH--SOUNDS LIKE AN AEROPLANE FLYING AROUND IN CIRCLES
THEY SPOT US--
QUICK! DUCK INTO THAT BIG CLOUD
FUNNY--I DON'T SEE ANYTHING
NEITHER DO I

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — News Break — BY FRANK V. MARTINEK

GOOD-BYE, MISTER AIRPLANE DESIGNER--THE SCORPION NEVER BUNGLES A JOB!
THE NEXT ACT IS ENTITLED "SOUNDS THE ALARM"
CAPTAIN! CAPTAIN! SOMETHING TERRIBLE'S HAPPENED!
YOUR PASSENGER FROM SOUTH AMERICA--I COULDN'T STOP HIM! HE'S JUST COMMITTED SUICIDE!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

IT IS AGREED, SAHIB ROPER--YOU GIVE ME THE FILM OF MY PHOTOGRAPH, I SIGN OVER KASBAR'S OIL EXPORTS TO MAJOR BARCLAY!
RIGHT! BUT HOW DO I KNOW YOU'LL NOT--FORGET --ONCE YOU GET THE FILM?
THE EMPRESS ZORENA NEVER BREAKS A PLEDGE! HOWEVER, I SHALL DELIVER THE OIL LEASES ONLY UPON CERTAIN--CONDITIONS!
NAME THEM!
I SHALL HAND OVER THE SIGNED PAPERS TO THE MAJOR'S DAUGHTER, PAMELA, ON THIS SPOT AT DAWN!
MISS BARCLAY WILL BE HAPPY TO COME! I'M SURE, AND TO EXPRESS HER THANKS TO YOU, EMPRESS!
PERHAPS SHE WILL NOT BE SO HAPPY! MARK THESE WORDS --YOU SHALL COME WITH HER, BRINGING A BLINDFOLD AND A COIL OF ROPE!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

GET AWAY FROM THAT WHEEL, SAM!
NOT A CHANCE, MOUNTIE--SHARK TOLD ME T' DROWN TH' LOT OF YOU!
IF OUR BOAT STRIKES THOSE ROCKS WE WON'T HAVE A CHANCE!--SAM HAS THE ONLY LIFE-PRESERVER!
YEAH, AN' T' MAKE SURE I GET T' USE IT---
---I'M GONNA PLUG ALL OF YOU RIGHT--NOW!

Nazi Victories Masterpieces Of Treachery

Poles, Norwegians And French Stabbed In Back, Says Donovan

Following is a condensation of the first of four articles made public by Secretary of the Navy Knox as part of the national defense program. The other articles will appear on successive days, beginning tomorrow.

By Secretary Knox.

At my request, Col. William J. Donovan went to London. In London he was met by the veteran foreign correspondent, Edgar Ansel Mowrer (Chicago Daily News), who had just reached London following the French debacle.

These two men, on behalf of the United States, made the most thoroughgoing survey of German "Fifth-Column" methods used in weakening the morale of countries they proposed to attack.

The results of this careful study made with every official source available to these two men, is to be found in the series of articles which follow. They are designed to make Americans fully conscious of methods used by the totalitarian powers so that, if or when such methods are used here, they will instantly be recognized for what they are and their effect nullified.

I regard defense against possible enemy propaganda as second only to defense against enemy armaments.

By Col. William J. Donovan and Edgar Ansel Mowrer.

Adolf Hitler's blitz-conquests of Poland, of Norway, of Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and France are military masterpieces.

In all secrecy and with incredible speed, the Nazi leader built up a unique military machine, besides which all other armies in the world were obsolete. Basing his organization on experience acquired in Spain during the civil war, Hitler placed at the head of his mobilized masses a modern "airplane plus tank" spearhead. The German masses were not particularly impressive. They did not need to be. It was the spearhead of 50,000 men that beat France.

To his superior striking power the Nazi leader added surprise and audacity. Equipping dive bombers with noise makers sounds childish, but against green troops it worked. By striking suddenly, fiercely and without regard for his own immediate losses, Hitler gained an initiative he never lost.

Poland Knifed

Yet no amount of genius would have accomplished what the Germans accomplished in so short a time without two other elements. These were the Germans abroad and sympathizers in the victim countries.

In Poland, a tiny minority, probably about a million in all, while claiming to be loyal to Warsaw, was preparing to stab Poland in the back. Directed by the German Gestapo, organized into political groups, the Deutsche Vareiningung and the Young German Party, the minority leaders found means of terrorizing or otherwise inducing virtually all the Germans to become spies and agents. The German army was more quickly informed of the Polish military movements than the Polish commanders.

On the eve of the war these specially coached Germans, acting under direct orders from Berlin, picked quarrels with Poles in order to create frontier and other "incidents." Other Germans disguised as Polish soldiers spread panic through the villages. Germans speaking Polish issued false instructions and orders to the people by wireless. Still others remained deep behind the lines and from there signaled objectives and instructions to German airmen.

Germans have admitted that two weeks' longer resistance by the Polish armies would have exhausted the German blitz units and made a long and exhaustive campaign necessary.

Praactically no Germans lived in Norway. But if the Norwegians had been suspicious of all Germans, including German visitors, Norway might not be occupied today. Trondheim, Bergen and Stavenger, with air fields whose possession later enabled the Germans to fight off the Allies, fell to attacks by German soldiers hidden in the holds of merchant ships anchored in the fjords or moored off the quayside.

There is no evidence that the Germans in Denmark took any considerable part in the actual German conquest of that country. It is certain, however, that German agents by their constant threats and interference with the Danish government, had produced a state of mind bordering on terror that contributed to drive any thought of real resistance from the Danish mind.

Belgian Fascists Aided Nazis

The 60,000 Germans living in Belgium do not seem to have taken any particular part in the treasonable failure to destroy the bridges over the Albert Canal, Belgium's first and chief line of defense, thanks to which both Belgium and Holland were doomed to easy conquest. There was no need for them. The thousands of dissatisfied Flemings of the Dinase (Dietsche Nationale Soldaristien) and the members of Leon Degrelle's Rexist party saw to that.

Nor, in France, would the decision of Petain, Weygand, Baudouin and Laval to lay down their arms and seek salvation in French submission to the Nazis have been possible without the long and tireless activity in that country of such German "intellectuals" as Friedrich Sieburg and Otto Abetz, recent Nazi appointee to the German Ambassadorship at Vichy.

There was no chance for the Germans in Great Britain to show their hand. In the first place, Britain's island situation saved it from any surprise attack. And secondly, the British secret service had, for a long time, been fully aware of the dangers. In the first 24 hours of the war, some 400 German Nazi agents were put out of the way. The whole number of Hitler-Germans were then either expelled or arrested and a great number of the anti-Hitlerian German refugees as well—some say up to 90 per cent.

Mystery Solved in Capital's Own R. F. D. Box on Conn. Ave.

DR. JULIA GREEN'S BIG GREEN MAILBOX

Big, green and bucolic in the midst of one of Washington's most select apartment house districts, at Quebec street and Connecticut avenue northwest, stands a rural-free-delivery mailbox.

The mystery of why it stands there was cleared up yesterday by the answers to two other questions:

1. How far does a mailman have to walk to deliver a letter?

2. Why do relatives give strange gifts?

The postman may ring twice daily for the rest of Washington residents, but for Dr. Julia M. Green, it appears, he doesn't have to ring at all. The quarter-mile climb to her house back in the Rock Creek district at 2726 Quebec street doesn't have to be made because the section has never been developed officially.

Therefore thoughtful relatives of Dr. Green some time ago presented her with the mailbox. She's appreciative, but a little embarrassed at its size.

"I'm afraid," she said yesterday, "that it looks too much like an advertisement, and I don't like to see my name in such large letters."

She epressed some interest, also, in how long it takes for a large green mailbox to wear out, so that she can get a smaller one; and in how long it will take for the mails to go through.

Balkan Parley Deadlocked on Transylvania

Chiefs of Rumanian, Hungarian Delegations Go Home for Orders

By the Associated Press

Turnu-Severin, Rumania (Tuesday), Aug. 20.—Deadlocked on the dispute over Transylvania, chiefs of the Rumanian and Hungarian delegations left for their home capitals early today to consult with their governments in an effort to prevent the collapse of negotiations.

Spokesmen for both delegations said there remained the faint hope of agreement, but that the positions of the two governments are still poles apart on vital issues being considered.

[If the deadlock continues, the New York Herald Tribune said, Rumania will probably refer the matter to Berlin for arbitration, for the Rumanian proposals were said to be much nearer the solution outlined by Fuehrer Hitler last month than those submitted by Hungary.]

The decision for the delegations to remain here while their leaders return to their capitals was reached at a session which lasted from last night until the early hours of the morning.

Meanwhile, at nearby Craiova, Rumanian and Bulgarian delegations were understood to be in agreement on all but a few minor points of the Bulgarian demand for all of Southern Dobruja.

Rumanian ngotiators, rejecting Hungary's demands for nearly two-thirds of the agriculturally rich province, offered counterproposals which the Hungarians apparently regarded as far from satisfactory.

[The New York Times said Rumania offers about 13,000 square kilometers, which is exactly one-fifth of the Hungarian claims, and 500,000 inhabitants, instead of the 3,700,000 who would have been exchanged under the Hungarian demands.]

Board of Trade Approves Draft

The Washington Board of Trade yesterday approved "the principle of selective service training."

The organization also urged the Board of Education and interested Federal officials to provide courses in aviation mechanics in night schools and favored establishment of a direct air line between Washington and St. Louis.

British Behind, 701 to 755, in Score Reported by Both

By the Associated Press

The day-by-day score of planes claimed and acknowledged shot down in the air battle of Britain since August 8:

	German Claims		British Claims
	British Losses	German Losses	German Losses	British Losses
Aug. 8...49	10	60	16
Aug. 11..93	21	65	26
Aug. 12 ..89	24	62	13
Aug. 13..132	22	78	13
Aug. 14..28	12	31	7
Aug. 15..143	32	180	34
Aug. 16 ..92	31	75	22
Aug. 18 147	36	145	22
Aug. 19... 2	0	5	0
Totals 775	194	701	153

(On the omitted dates, August 9, 10 and 17, there was little air fighting over England.)

Yesterday the British Air Ministry put the toll of German planes in the last seven days (August 12 to 18, inclusive) at 513 "of which 377 were bombers or fighter-bombers, or 73 per cent of the enemy's losses."

This announcement refers to German planes shot down in combat and does not include those downed by antiaircraft fire or other causes. A tabulation by the British communiques gives a total of 570 German planes downed August 12 to 18, inclusive.

London, Aug. 19.—British air officials revealed today how they check and compile data on German airplane losses.

Returning pilots are required to fill out forms on which they state the time and position where German planes were destroyed or damaged. If two or more pilots' reports as to time and position coincide, only one enemy plane is chalked up.

Pilots are called on to divide German plane losses into three classifications. The first is the planes they have definitely seen crashing to the ground or the sea, or going down in flames. The second is the planes damaged so badly they were probably destroyed. These are called "probables" and refer to German planes the pilots see wobbling away, losing height as they disappear in the distance.

The third classification is the planes that are damaged although still able to fly. Only the first classification is included in the British totals of enemy losses.

O'Conor Cool to His Directing of Roosevelt's Md. Drive Because of State Defense Work

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 19.—Gov. O'Conor, who has been mentioned as the most likely candidate to manage President Roosevelt's Maryland campaign, will not accept that post, it was reported on good authority tonight.

Sources close to the Governor said it would be impossible for him to manage the President's Maryland campaign and at the same time carry on his own official duties and the activities connected with the recently formed State Council of Defense and Resources.

The Governor was represented as wishing to avoid any semblance of political interference with the work of the council, to which he has appointed several Republicans.

The way to win an election is to let your opponent make the speeches, the White House was told yesterday.

Press Secretary Stephen T. Early announced receipt of 200 telegrams and letters from New Deal Democrats, congratulating President Roosevelt on the acceptance speech of G. O. P. Nominee Wendell Willkie last Saturday.

The President's correspondents, Early said, thought Willkie's speech ineffectual and an indirect aid to Mr. Roosevelt's reelection campaign.

Two Midwestern Congressmen yesterday called on the War Department to make good on promises of a share in national defense expenditures in the Middle West.

Representatives Ellis (Democrat), of Arkansas, and Pittenger (Republican), of Minnesota, protested in the House against lack of defense spending in the Middle West, an equity in which, said Ellis, has been promised. He added that $272,481,750 has been spent in Virginia alone.

Pittenger said to date most defense spending has been on the Eastern seaboard.

Senator Barbour (Republican), of New Jersey, remarked in a statement yesterday that "I feel that any investigation which has anything to do with elections in Hudson County is salutary." ....

He said, however, that he had nothing to do with bringing about a projected investigation by the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee of Jersey City registration rolls.

Joseph E. Colford, chairman of the Hudson County Democratic Committee, asserted in a statement yesterday that Barbour and William H. Albright, Republican leader, instigated the investigation.

With shouts of "keep our men at home," a score or more women virtually took over the Senate reception lobby yesterday and buttonholed Senators to demand that they oppose the conscription bill in its present form.

Mrs. Mary A. Decker, of Detroit, said the women were members of the "Mothers of the United States of America" who believed that "if we're in all the danger these Senators and Congressmen say we are, then we want our men right here at home to protect us."

She said there was a fear among the women that "our men will be sent to Canada."

A. F. L. Suspends Short-Hour Drive

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 19.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, revealed today that the federation would abandon during the war crisis its traditional effort to obtain shorter working hours and would avoid strikes wherever possible, particularly in national defense industries.

Of national defense, Green said: "We are not opposed to compulsory industrial service, registration and training if that becomes necessary to protect our lives and our homeland."
